MRS. SNYDER DEALT BLOW ON HUSBAND AS HE BEGGED HELP

WOMEN IN THE COURT WEEP AT HIS STORY

Witness Says Mistress Long Talked of Killing; Tried Poisons and Gas.

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—With women spectators weeping freely and with tears streaming down his own cheeks, Henry Judd Gray today told from the stand at the Snyder-Gray murder trial his version of the slaying of Albert Snyder, magazine art editor.

His story fixed upon himself and Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, his codefendant, the actual killing. It placed upon Mrs. Snyder the instigation of the crime and revealed him a drunken, quivering tool in her hands. Mrs. Snyder, holding her lips with twitching fingers, as if trying to keep from crying out, wept profusely as Gray described in minute detail how she took him by the hand, led him into the bedroom where her husband lay sleeping, and when his courage failed, snatched up the sash-weight he had dropped and struck her husband as he called upon her to help him.

The murder, Gray related, was committed by both, but he said that Mrs. Snyder must have twisted about her husband's neck the picture wire that, according to expert testimony, caused death by strangulation. The saturation of her husband's pillow with chloroform, a contributory cause of death in the opinion of the expert witnesses, was done by Mrs. Snyder, Gray said.

Gray's mother and sister, both weeping, sat before him as he testified. The courtroom was so crowded that spectators stood on window ledges, blocked all exits and stood on tiptoe to peek over heads. It was the largest crowd of the trial; promise of Gray's "clean breast" having attracted more spectators than came to see and hear Mrs. Snyder testify.

The story of the actual killing came just before the usual time for court to recess. His story had begun slowly; it gained momentum as it progressed, and by the time he came to the description of the murder itself the spectators crowded into the square, ill-ventilated courtroom were hanging on every word in rigid suspense.

Taking a drink of water, Gray pulled himself together to tell of the murder episode. He pictured himself arriving at Queens Village after midnight the night of March 19. He walked dark streets, half-intoxicated, searching for the Snyder home.

He found it, and entered through one of the two doors Mrs. Snyder had left unlocked for him. A package of cigarettes on a table in the kitchen was a signal to go upstairs to the room of Mrs. Snyder's mother, who was absent. But he could not recall what it meant. His face worked as gusts of emotion temporarily halted his narrative.

Found Whisky and Wine.

After waiting fifteen minutes, he said, he went upstairs. He found whisky, rubber gloves, picture wire, a sash-weight, a bottle of chloroform and pliers under a pillow. He drank the

3 FROM HERE ESCAPE AS PLANE OVERTURNS

Lieut. Bowes, of Navy Station, and Passengers Upset by Forced Landing.

Lieut. Harvey R. Bowes, of the naval air station at Anacostia, and two passengers narrowly missed serious injury yesterday afternoon when a naval plane in which they were flying to Norfolk from Philadelphia turned over in a marsh while making a forced landing about 7 miles southeast of Dover, Del.

News of the accident was reported to the Navy Department here last night, Lieut. Bowes saying that neither he nor his passengers were injured. An Associated Press dispatch from Dover gave the names of the passengers as P. H. Bushing and C. T. May, of Washington.

Lieut. Bowes was flying an SC plane and was forced down by a storm. He did not report how badly the plane was damaged, but said motor trucks had been sent from Philadelphia to take the ship there. Two other naval planes were compelled to make forced landings because of the same storm which nearly brought death to those in the SC, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The two planes were UO's traveling from Norfolk to Philadelphia.

Fonck to Contest In Flight to Paris

(By the Associated Press.)

Entry of Capt. Rene Fonck, French air ace, in the contest for the Raymond Orteig $25,000 prize for the first nonstop New York-Paris flight was announced yesterday by Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautic association.

Under terms of the contest, Fonck can take off any time after expiration of 60 days after filing his entry.

CAPT. GRAY, IN BALLOON, RISES NEARLY 8 MILES

Sets New Record of 41,000 Feet, Then Is Forced to Use Parachute.

MAKES 8,000 FOOT DROP

Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., May 4 (By A. P.).—A new world's altitude record for free balloons apparently was established today by Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, who descended at 4 p. m. at Golden Gate, Ill., after his altimeter showed a reading of apparently 41,000 feet. The previous record of 35,433 feet was made 26 years ago by two German aeronauts.

On the descent, Capt. Gray, who depended on his balloon to parachute itself, found that he was falling 1,500 to 1,800 feet per minute at a height of 8,000 feet. He immediately climbed over the side of the basket and made a parachute jump, landing about 200 yards from a creek in a muddy field. Although making a complete somersault while landing, he was uninjured.

Gray, upon his arrival at Scott field in one of two military planes which escorted him, was greeted by a group of nearly 100 persons. Upon his announcement that he had reached 41,000 feet, a cheer went up. The aeronaut acknowledged it with a smile.

Asked about sensations while at a height of nearly 8 miles from the earth, Gray, in a matter-of-fact manner, said he felt normal until he reached the maximum height, when a pain in his chest occasioned discomfort. Medical officers had cautioned him to go no higher in event he felt any ill effects, and he started the descent.

The balloonist encountered a temperature of 60 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, at 41,000 feet.

"The only part of my body that felt cold was the back of my head," Gray related, whereupon Col. Paeglow, commandant of the field observed with a humorous glint in his eye that this was due to Gray's "bald head."

Gray said he rose to 40,000 feet and remained stationary. The sand allast had been discarded by this time, and he attached one of two oxygen tanks to a parachute and dropped them. This enabled him to rise the last 1,000 feet.

His electrically heated oxygen apparatus, newly invented for the flight, functioned perfectly, he said. His first attempt in March of this year came to nought when imperfect oxygen apparatus caused him to lose consciousness at 28,000 feet. A new method of releasing ballast worked well, and showed none of the difficulties encountered in his first flight when he was forced to tear sandbags open with his bare fingers.

ROARING TORRENTS MOVING ON TOWNS AS RESIDENTS FLEE

Thousands, Who Pinned Hopes on Levees, Are Forced to Depart.

RENEWED WARNINGS OVER THE VAST AREA

Lake Hundreds of Miles Long Reported by Fliers; Armies Still Work on Dikes.

New Orleans, May 4 (By A. P.).—The charging Mississippi river tonight rapidly was completing the devastation of northeastern Louisiana started by its tributaries.

Sweeping through its banks at another place today between Vicksburg and Natchez, the river was sending roaring torrents into Tensas parish, north of the town of St. Joseph. Work had been abandoned at Villa Clare, below St. Joseph but reports said the levee had not gone out.

These slowly were reaching out to inundate that and other towns and to meet the floods racing through the four crevasses opened Sunday at Glasscocke, immediately south of Natchez, and the one created yesterday at Cabin Teele plantation north of Vicksburg.

Save for narrow ridges running through Franklin and West Carroll parishes and Ouachita and Morehouse parishes, water now covers or soon will cover the whole of the 5,000 square miles in the funnel bounded on the north by Arkansas, on the west and east by the Ouachita and Mississippi and on the south by the Red and Old rivers.

More Residents Driven Out.

While backwaters long since have driven a large percentage of the population of the nine affected parishes to refugee concentration points, many other thousands have pinned their faith on the Mississippi levees and clung to their homes.

Warned by telephone and airplane, these began moving out last night and the human stream continued on the move today, although all reports indicated there was no wild dash before the waters as it crept slowly toward nearly a dozen towns whose populations had been augmented by hundreds of refugees.

In most of the parishes where the inundation is being made complete by the breaks in the Mississippi levees, main roads already had been blocked by back waters from the Red, the Black, the Arkansas and the Ouchta rivers, and chief reliance for rescue was placed in boats.

Thousands streamed out to the levees, the one place of safety, and anxiously awaited the coming of the rescue fleets dispatched from Natchez and Vicksburg. In several of the towns time was given for moving much of the household goods.

Lake Hundreds of Miles Long.

These new crevasses on the Mississippi are widening what already is the largest lake ever created by any flood since the levee system was installed Aviators flying over the territory report a practically solid sheet of water in southeastern Arkansas, northeastern Louisiana and western Mississippi measuring several hundred miles north and south and perhaps a hundred miles east and west.

'BUTTERFLY' ENVOYS SCORED BY SPEAKER AT CHAMBER PARLEY

URGE PAN-AMERICAN BUSINESS ENTENTE

Meeting Goes on Record Against Government Shipbuilding After Dispute.

Big business struck at the "butterflies" in the diplomatic service yesterday, and demanded that able men be appointed to the posts in North and South America.

Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Co., was spokesman for the business men. He spoke at a joint session of the Pan-American commercial conference and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The most important step that could be taken to establish a great and mutually advantageous trade, Mr. Cutter said, was to "appoint the ablest men and to change the mental attitude of some of the present diplomats in South and North America."

"At the present time," he continued, "a number of consular and diplomatic officers consider their work in North or South America only a stepping stone to a bright and merry social life in the older capitals of Europe.

"The positions of honor and the goal of diplomatic careers for our ablest men should be appointments as between the various American republics. The diplomatic butterflies might well be allowed to flit to the social centers."

Business Entente Sought.

The cultivation of a business entente between the United States and the countries of Latin-America was urged by Mr. Cutter and the others who spoke at the joint session. These were E. B. Filsinger, manager of the export department of Lawrence & Co., of New York; Fernando Ortiz, of Havana, Cuba, and Frederico T. de Lachica, vice president of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of Mexico.

The North Americans scouted the idea that this country has imperialistic aims, while their Latin-American guests pleaded for a better understanding of business conditions and practices and a greater degree of reciprocity.

A plea for the revision of the commercial treaty of 1902 between Cuba and the United States was made by Senor Ortiz, who asserted that Cuba is passing through a critical economic period and needs the assistance of the United States.

Sees Billion Dollar Market.

Senor de Lachica declared that Mexico is, and will continue to be, a profitable field for investment, and he explained that her present economic policy is not to exclude foreign products, but to build up industries within Mexico.

Mr. Filsinger referred to Latin America as a "billion dollar market," and he declared that American exporters should regard the twenty Southern republics as twenty additional states of this republic. The trading methods of American firms in Latin America he said, should be subjected to the same rigorous research that they are in this country.

4 OF FAMILY AND MAID FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Council Bluffs Bank Cashier, Wife and Two Children Are Victims of Gas.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 4 (By A. P.).—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Alberti, their two children, Leo 5, and Eldon 3, and their maid, Genevieve Endicott, 15, were found dead in their home here today, suffocated by gas.

Mr. Alberti was assistant cashier of the State Savings Bank and prominent in business circles.

Exact cause of the tragedy was not apparent, authorities said. The bodies were found by Harold Alberti and a friend who went to the house when Mr. Alberti failed to come to the bank.

The body of Mrs. Alberti, partly dressed, was found in the kitchen. Mr. Alberti was in the bathroom, partly dressed, and the two children and the maid were still in their beds.

Chaplin Would Delete His Wife's Complaint

Los Angeles, May — (By A. P.).—Charlie Chaplin's attorneys today petitioned the superior court to strike out from the divorce complaint of his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, certain sensational charges in an effort to force a hearing on the lone grounds of cruelty.

The appeal was made to court after conferences between Lyndol L. Young, chief of Mrs. Chaplin's legal staff, and Lloyd Wright, the film comedian's personal attorney, had failed to achieve the purpose.

It was expected that argument would be set for Monday before Judge Edwin F. Hahn.

10,000 Crowd Bolling Field As Fliers Brave the Dark

Officials Halt Throngs That Jam Highways—3,000 Autos in Line—500 See Capital From Air in Ford Liner and Stinson Detroiter.

More than 10,000 persons crowded Bolling field last night to witness the night flying display of the All-America aircraft exhibition and fully half that number were turned away. Bolling field officials had the pilgrimage halted after some 3,000 machines had poured in steadily since before 7 o'clock.

Thenceforth, the police diverted cars from Nichols avenue in a circle so cleverly arranged that before the majority of the motorists knew it they were pointed back toward the city. Hundreds who went early to the field in taxicabs found themselves stranded for more than an hour after the exhibition, but they were relieved when the taxicabs were permitted to come in about 10:30 o'clock.

Scores of persons, finding themselves being routed back to the city, left their cars and treked a mile or so over the winding, uncertain road that leads into the field, and for them it was another trek back when the show had come to an end. Hundreds viewed the spectacle from the Anacostia river bridge.

All of the outstanding light manufacturers—the E. E. T., the Sperry Co., the General Electric Co. and the Westinghouse—vied with one another in trying to flood the field with light. Together they wrapped a brilliant blanket over the mud-churned expanse, a spread that lay about 20 feet off the ground. And under this three naval fliers and one from the Department of Commerce tuned their engines and then rode off into the black night.

They were Lieut. Ernest W. Litch, in a Curtis fighter; Lieut. George R. Henderson, in a Voight observation plane; Lieut. Daniel W. Tomlinson, in a Curtis fighter, and Lieut. Frank Jerdone, reserve corps, flying a Department of Commerce plane.

Once into the clouds they were lost to the crowd below save for the red and green lights that described their movements across the sky. There was no spectacular flying, despite the report that a man was to fly upside down. Officials made known that it is not their plan to have any "stunt" flying, but that this is to be an exhibition solely of pleasure air traveling.

That Washington has confidence in aviation was indicated when more than 500 persons went up in the air during

UNITED STATES BANS DEBT CONTROVERSY AFTER BRITISH NOTE CHALLENGES MELLON American Reply to British Note.

Excellency:

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Chilton's note of May 2, 1927, in which he communicates to the government of the United States the comments of the British government on certain statements contained in a letter dated March 15, 1927, from Mr. Mellon, the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, to Mr. Hibben, the president of Princeton university.

The government of the United States regards the correspondence between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hibben as a purely domestic discussion, and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges upon the subject.

Accept, Excellency, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

FRANK B. KELLOGG.

MOB BURNS MAN'S BODY IN LITTLE ROCK STREET

TROOPS ARE MOBILIZED

Little Rock, Ark., May 4 (By A. P.). The body of a negro who had been hanged and riddled with bullets after an attack upon a white woman and her daughter early today, tonight was dragged behind an automobile through the main street of the city and then saturated with gasoline and burned at one of the principal business corners in the negro section while thousands of persons looked on.

National guard troops, with one company already mobilized, were held in readiness tonight awaiting orders from Gov. Martineau should race trouble result from the lynching.

Lynching of another negro tonight was threatened when he was found armed in the huge crowd which congregated where the body of Carter was burned. When the negro was discovered in the crowd and found to be armed, cries went up to hang him, but he was rescued and taken to the city jail for safe keeping.

A negro was shot and seriously wounded by an unidentified member of the crowd parading through the negro section. He was rushed to the hospital.

All national guardsmen, sheriffs, deputies and police available were called on duty tonight in an effort to break up the threatening crowds which were parading through the streets.

As the flames leaped into the air about the body of Carter the firing of guns mingled with the cries of women and children fleeing from the scene. Negroes scattered as the mob dragged the body to the corner and made a bonfire of it.

Police, outnumbered, directed traffic which congested the streets for blocks around the scene.

The negro, John Carter, 22, was surrounded by a mob numbering several thousand men, who found him in a tree after an all-day search. He confessed that he had attacked Mrs. B. E. Stewart and her 17-year-old daughter Glennie with an iron bar as they rode along the road near the city in a wagon early today

Miss Stewart, her head in bandages, was said to have identified the negro at the scene of the lynching.

Told to climb on top of an automobile, the negro tried but was too frightened or weak. He was then pushed atop the car and it was driven from under him. As the negro swung in the air he was riddled with bullets from a volley.

Miss Stewart was said to have been within sight of the lynching.

Feeling around here over the murder of 12-year-old Floella McDonald by a young negro was further intensified by the attack today. The mother, Mrs. B. E. Stewart, was taken to a hospital suffering from a blow over the head and a broken arm. The girl, Glennie, 17, was only slightly injured. The negro fled into the woods when an automobile approached.

Gallotti's Restaurant Raided by Dry Agents

Prohibition agents raided Gallotti's restaurant at 404 Twelfth street northwest yesterday afternoon, seized a small quantity of alleged whisky and arrested Joseph Angelo, 54 years old, a waiter. He was charged with selling and possession of whisky.

The raiding squad was led by B. N. Quinn. Angelo was taken to the First precinct. The agents said they had purchased intoxicants from Angelo in the restaurant on three occasions. The raid was made shortly before 4 o'clock and was witnessed by nearly a hundred persons.

Paris Match Rights To U. S. Interests

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—Private cable advices received here from Paris by bankers late today stated that the French government had decided to lease the government match monopoly to the Swedish-American Match Co, despite the opposition of the finance commission of the chamber of deputies. The Swedish concern is reported to have consented to a lowering from 5½ to 5 per cent on a loan of $80,000,000 to the government to be secured by the lease.

STIMSON PEACE TERMS REJECTED BY LIBERALS

DIAZ STUMBLING BLOCK

Tipitapa, Nicaragua, May 4 (By A. P.).—Henry L. Stimson, peace emissary representing President Coolidge, and Gen. Jose Maria Moncada, commander of the liberal armies, have been unable to reach an agreement for a settlement of the hostilities between the liberals and conservatives. Their conference ended today in a deadlock over the question of the continuance of Adolfo Diaz, conservative, in the presidency.

There appeared to be some hope for a settlement when the conference, which included also delegates from Dr. Sacasa (the liberal president), the American Minister, Charles C. Eberhardt, and Rear Admiral Latimer, adjourned at noon, but in the afternoon, after a brief session, the liberal delegates announced a negative outcome, as Gen. Moncada and the Sacasa delegates were unable to accept the provision that Diaz should continue as president.

Mr. Stimson did not confirm this particular point, but merely said that the conference was over and there was nothing for publication. He and the American Minister immediately returned to Managua.

A member of Gen. Moncada's staff said later to the Associated Press that if the United States issued a signed official mandatory order that the liberals must lay down their arms and cease fighting the liberals would be compelled to accept, as it would be unwise to attempt to combat the United States. But so long as the United States attempted to lay down terms which included the continuance of Diaz in office the liberals would continue to fight for "constitutionality and justice for Nicaragua."

Mexico City, May 4 (By A. P.).—Pedro Zepeda, envoy to Mexico of the liberal government in Nicaragua, stated today that he had information that the conservative generals, Niguera Gomez and Balladares, were killed when Gen. Moncada, the liberal war minister and commander in chief, captured Teustepe and Boaco. The dead of both the liberal and conservative armies in this combat, he said, totaled 1,200.

Suicide Leaves Note, 'Don't Blame Anyone'

Edward Joseph Biddings, 35 years old, of 4207 Canal road northwest, last night committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a pistol. Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt issued a certificate of suicide.

John E. Carnall, of 1413 Wisconsin avenue northwest, who was visiting at Bidding's home, heard the shot. He notified police of the Seventh precinct and they broke into Biddings' bedroom, which was locked. Police found a note, which Biddings had scrawled on a piece of paper reading "Don't blame anyone for this."

Bankers Will Study Causes of Failures

Hot Springs, Ark., May 4 (By A. P.). Investigation and study of the causes underlying bank failures in the United States by a subcommittee of the American Bankers association's economic policy commission, was authorized at the spring meeting of the executive council of the organization here today. The subcommittee that will undertake the study is composed of Evans Woolen, Indianapolis, chairman of the economic policy commission; Walter W. Head, of Omaha; Walter Lichenstein, of Chicago, and Max B. Nahm, of Bowling Green, Ky. The committee was instructed to confer with a similar committee studying the same subject for the Federal Reserve Board.

Rum Runners Caught By Coast Guard Plane

Miami, Fla., May 4 (By A. P.).—With coast guard ranks thinned by the dispatch of a number of Florida craft to the Mississippi valley flood district, seaplanes today went into action against rum runners.

A plane, flying at high altitude, sighted a mysterious boat in Biscayne bay and, swooping down, landed in front of it. Covering the crew of the boat with an automatic shotgun, the aviators seized a cargo of 900 sacks of liquor and arrested four men.

Errors Are Charged in Secretary's Letter to President Hibben.

CORRECTION IS ASKED TO EASE IMPRESSIONS

Treasury Head, in Reply, Stands Firm on Statements as Originally Made.

NEW FACTS ADDUCED TO BACK CONCLUSIONS

Dispute Wholly Domestic One, London Quickly Informed by Kellogg.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

An acute diplomatic controversy with Great Britain, which threatened to throw open to discussion the whole question of war debts, came before the United States government yesterday and aroused the State Department and Treasury Department here to immediate action.

A formal British note was received by the State Department challenging the accuracy of statements recently made by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the war debts and virtually calling upon the government of the United States for an explanation and reply.

The reply was sent back to the British foreign office within a few hours and consisted in a terse formal note from Secretary Kellogg politely asking the British government not to expect formal diplomatic exchanges about a matter of domestic American concern, namely, discussion of the war debt situation between Mr. Mellon and Prof. Hibben, debt cancellationist of Princeton.

Quick Reply by Mellon.

At approximately the same time Secretary Mellon issued a statement in reply to the British note whereby the Secretary of the Treasury did not yield an inch on any important question raised in his previous statement to which the British note referred.

The note which the British embassy made public here unequivocally denied statements which Mr. Mellon made on March 17 respecting British payments on her debt to America and the relationship these bear to amounts Great Britain receives from Germany and debtor nations. Other specific statements made by Mr. Mellon are characterized as inaccurate and not in accordance with the facts.

And, finally, after challenging the statements in question and producing evidence with a view to disproving them, the British government calls upon the government of the United States to "take steps to remove the unfortunate impressions" created by Mr. Mellon's statement.

Challenged by Churchill.

The statement in question was a letter which Secretary Mellon sent to Prof. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, who has favored cancellation of war debts owed to America. In combatting the cancellationist propaganda, Mr. Mellon said that Great Britain's schedule of payments from her debtors called for a substantial amount more than she would have to pay on her debt to the United States. This statement was at once challenged by Winston Churchill in the house of commons and since that time it has been expected that financial experts of the two governments would come to grips, though few expected that the British government would make the matter the subject of a formal note.

Secretary Mellon at once prepared a reply to the British statement as soon as its contents were communicated to him by the Secretary of State. He made his reply public last evening. It is a reassertion of the points made in his previous statement, together with facts and figures to support the conclusions he reached.

Mr. Mellon points out, however, that his statement was framed for the purpose of meeting arguments advanced by those who favor debt cancellation and that the British have lost sight of this fact and endeavored to regard the statement as an issue between Great Britain and the United States. Furthermore, Mr. Mellon declares, that the British have simply made use of complicated figures in such manner as to sustain their point of view, whereas the same figures adequately prove the American contentions.

At Variance in Two Points.

In the battle of figures involved, there are two main points concerning which the British note and Mr. Mellon's statement are at variance. One concerns Mr. Mellon's charge that the dollars with which the allies purchased goods and services in the United States were furnished on credit, while the pounds sterling which Americans used for purchases abroad were paid for in cash. The British note challenges this statement, but Mr. Mellon reasserts it, and offers sustaining proof in his statement last evening.

The other main point concerns a statement credited to Mr. Mellon

ALL REALTY OWNERS DECLARED TAXABLE UNDER BORLAND LAW

City Heads Can Not Determine Exempt Citizens, Committee Reports.

JUSTICE WILL DEPEND ON INDIVIDUAL, IT SAYS

Urges Validity Group Be Appointed to Pass on Specific Cases.

The commissioners may not safely undertake to determine in advance which property owners may and which may not be assessed for street paving under the Borland law, notwithstanding recent court decisions exempting certain kinds of property, but the owner of every parcel must be assessed and only such as do not sleep on their rights will be likely to receive refunds if assessed improperly.

This was the substance of a report submitted yesterday to the commissioners by a committee consisting of Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert L. Williams, Assessor William P. Richards and Surveyor Melvin C. Hazen. Partial meeting of what the committee termed a "bad situation," was recommended by creation of a permanent committee to pass on specific cases wherein a question of validity of assessment arises. The committee recommended that the next Congress be asked to canvass the whole question of special assessments for paving. The report said, in part:

Law Still Operative.

"The Borland law is still operative, and therefore it appears to the committee that the commissioners can not do otherwise than make the assessments contemplated by the act and leave for future consideration the question of whether or not such assessments should be canceled under the authority of the decided cases. The committee is of the opinion that to attempt to do otherwise as a prospective matter would in effect be putting on the commissioners the duty of interpreting the law in such manner as to amount to amending it, a position which would be sure to arouse a great deal of unjust criticism, but criticism none the less.

"The committee is of the opinion that for the time being the commissioners should not consider any property heretofore assessed under the Borland law unless specific application for review of an assessment is made. This treatment at first glance may seem to be inequitable in that it might be argued by property owners that the District accepts taxes which it knows, or ought to know, are illegally assessed and makes no attempt to return such illegal assessments except when demand be made, coupled with a threat of litigation.

"Doubtless such criticism will be made in any event, but the answer would seem to be that he who has a right and does not assert it can not fairly be said to be discriminated against."

Storey Starts Term For Manslaughter

Vernon Samuel Storey will be surrendered in the District Supreme court today by his bondsman to begin serving a five-year sentence for manslaughter in connection with the death of Charles F. Jarvis on November 16, 1924.

Storey was released in $10,000 bond after he had been convicted of the crime several months ago. He went to Georgia and was arrested and sentenced to a prison road camp there for stealing an automobile. He escaped from the camp April 26 and returned to this city. He was arrested by police of the Second precinct Tuesday night.

Gems Lost on Train Sought in Capital

Commander Bernard H. Camden, division commander, United States coast guard, stationed in New York city, appealed to police here yesterday to aid him in finding jewelry valued at $7,000, which he lost on a train between New York and this city, April 11.

The jewelry consisted of two rings, one set with a large opal and surrounded by diamonds and the other set with two diamonds. They are valued at $3,500 apiece, Commander Camden told police. He believes that they may be offered for sale in this city.

Will Rogers Sees Heflin Breakfasting at Tammany Hall

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., May 4.—I was in Albany, New York State capital, last night. They didn't know any more news about Al Smith up there than we do in Claremore, Okla. He hadn't been there in weeks. You can't keep a native New Yorker away from home.

Can you imagine Senator Borah, Nick Longworth, Pat Harrison, Jim Reed and Tom Heflin having to go to Tammany Hall on Fourteenth street to confer at a White House breakfast? Yours, WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—I am addressing Yale tonight on the subject, "Which is More Beneficial to Colleges, Suicide or Football?"

DUPONT CIRCLE CITIZENS OPPOSE INDUSTRY HERE

SMOKE IS NOT WANTED

Efforts of local trade organizations to induce manufacturers to locate in Washington were denounced at a meeting of the Dupont Circle Citizens association, held yesterday evening at Rauscher's. The association adopted a resolution by which the acting president, Mrs. Richard Wainwright, appointed a committee of ten members to make a survey of the manufacturing plants that have operated in the last century in order that information which will discourage manufacturers can be obtained and the action of the trade bodies counteracted.

In advancing the resolution Maj. Clayton E. Emig declared that practically every manufacturer who has located in this city in the past century has failed because he could not compete with the government in wages, hours or special vacation privileges. The committee appointed included Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, Brig. Gen. George P. Scriven, John Hays Hammond, William P. Eno, Maj. Emig, Larz Anderson, Mrs. Wainwright, Miss Bessie J. Kibbey, Mrs. John B. Henderson and Miss Julia D. Strong. The committee was given an appropriation of $100.

Charles Stengle, former representative from New York, and now a delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations from the Petworth Citizens assiciation, addressed the meeting. He declared that Washington does not need smokestacks to mar its magnificent public buildings and monuments. He declared that to allow smokestacks to fringe the beautiful new buildings now proposed for the Pennsylvania avenue triangle would be to "announce that we have commercialized the Nation's Capital and have replaced E Pluribus Unum with the greenback."

Six delegates to the park and planning commission meeting which will be held here next week were appointed. They were Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, Admiral Strauss, Miss Strong, Mrs. Wainwright, Mrs. W. W. Goddard and Maj. Emig.

Jasper Post Gives $50 To War Memorial

Commending the District war memorial committee for its selection of a bandstand as a memorial for the men and women of Washington who lost their lives during the world war, the Sergeant Jasper post, American Legion, last night contributed $50 to the memorial fund.

The erection of the bandstand as a war memorial exemplifies the civic ideals of the American Legion, Past Department Vice Commander Thomas J. Frailey declared. A resolution approving the erection of the memorial was adopted. The resolution was introduced by Frailey and seconded by Capt. J. W. Boyer. Carl C. Brown, commander of the post, presided at the meeting which was held at the Thomas Circle club.

Oil Poured on Fire Costs Life of Girl, 2

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 4.—Juanita Lucille Fisher, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fisher, of Emlen, died today of burns suffered when oil, poured upon smouldering kindlings by her mother, blazed up from a kitchen stove.

The body was taken to Bartlett, Ohio, for burial. Mrs. Fisher was severely burned at the same time.

RECALL OF THREAT TO DROP TEACHERS REFUSED BY BOARD

Instructors Asking Redrafting of Policy Involving Cases Bringing Notoriety.

ALWAYS WILL BE GIVEN FAIR TRIAL, SAYS CARUSI

Gordon and Garnet-Patterson Junior Highs Are to Be Delayed.

Demand by Teachers' union, No. 27, that the board of education recall a statement of policy adopted early in April, suggesting possible suspension of teachers involved in cases receiving undue notoriety, was refused yesterday by the board at its meeting in the Franklin building.

The union, in asking redrafting of the board's policy, had termed the April statement as "un-American and in violation of the organic act."

Replying yesterday to the union's demand, the board reaffirmed its original policy, and declared any implication that teachers would be dismissed without fair trial resulted from misinterpretation of the statement.

"The construction these teachers have placed on the circular is wholly without justification," Charles F. Carusi, president of the board, said. "There is nothing in the statement which would indicate that fair trial of teachers would be dispensed with, or teachers dismissed on rumor alone. I can't understand how a responsible body of teachers could have taken this stand."

Henry Gilligan declared the first duty of the board is to the children in its schools rather than to any teacher or group of teachers.

New Plan Policy.

The board yesterday adopted a new policy regarding approval of plans for school buildings. As a result in the future all members of the board will be notified of the hour at which plans are placed before the chairman of the buildings and grounds committee. All members of the committee will sign the drawings, previously approved by the chairman only.

As a result of change in dates for the completion of the Gordon and Garnet-Patterson Junior High schools, the buildings will not be ready in January, as planned, and from 15 to 20 of the 74 additional teachers asked of the last Congress in anticipation of completion on time will not be needed, Supt. of Schools Frank W. Ballou told the board. As the original request of Congress was based on this demand, the board ordered that Herbert Brown, head of the bureau of efficiency, be notified of the change.

Two of the bureau's experts—Herbert Rapp, director of the school survey, and Paul Rapp—attended yesterday's board meeting.

Dr. Ballou announced that representatives of the municipal architect's office and the budget bureau will leave the Franklin building with him at 10 o'clock this morning on an inspection trip of sites proposed by the finance committee for buildings to be included in the 1929 estimates. The inspection will cover several days, members of the board participating.

Following the proposal by the majority of the rules committee that only gifts of a permanent character, and requiring little or no maintenance, be accepted for school use, the board took action, referring acceptance of all gifts to the discretion of the board, through its committee on buildings and grounds.

Reversal of the report followed Mr. Gilligan's declaration that the body would be acting unwisely to "dampen the ardor" of parent-teacher associations by barring acceptance of those gifts which require maintenance.

J. W. Barse and a committee of the Lincoln Park Citizens association appeared before the board, asking aid in its plan to convert into a drill field District-owned land adjacent to the new Eastern High school. It is the purpose of the committee to plant ten acres of the land with grass seed, making the plot available to Eastern's cadet companies. The board indorsed its efforts and offered to render all help within its power.

On the objection by the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, that invitations for scholastic events are being sent out i nthe board's name without the body ever having taken action on them, official approval of all such occasions was entrusted by the board to its president. Bennett cited the dedication of the Armstrong High school, as the last instance of such a situation.

Menard to Be Tried.

The board voted to conduct a formal trial of W. M. Menard, high school teacher, on charges recently dropped by the District attorney's office. Suspension will be forthcoming if Menard is found guilty, Gilligan said.

Allotment of $6,000 from appropriations to make necessary changes in the entrance to the Franklin building on Thirteenth street, were reported by the committee on buildings and grounds.

June commencement dates for normal, senior and junior high schools were announced as follows:

Wilson Normal, June 24, at Central High school; Business High, 2-year course, June 21, 10 a. m.; Business High, 4-year course, June 21, 8 p. m.; Central High, June 22; Eastern High, 2-year course, June 21; Eastern High, 4-year course, June 22; McKinley High, June 21; Western High, June 22; Columbia Junior High, June 21; Hine Junior High, June 21; Jefferson Junior High, June 21; Langley Junior High, June 21, at Eastern High school; Macfarland Junior High, June 21; Powell Junior High, June 22; Armstrong High, June 21; Dunbar High, June 22, on Howard university campus; Miner Normal, June 23, on Howard university campus; Shaw Junior High, June 22, at Dunbar High school; Randall Junior High, June 21; M. M. Washington Vocational, June 21, at John F. Cook school, and Phelps Vocational, June 21.

The board went into executive session to discuss a communication from Miss Adelia Parks, of the Mott school, recently suspended.

W. E. Hoffheins Heads West Virginia Society

Other officers elected were W. J. Lyle, first vice president; E. M. Irelan, second vice president; D. Pitt O'Brien, third vice president; James Heatherman, fourth vice president; W. T. George, fifth vice president; John W. Smith, sixth vice president. J. L. Bateman was reelected recording secretary; Miss Nellie V. Hollis was reelected financial secretary, and Col. J. William De Grange was reelected treasurer. Cecil E. Custis was chosen assistant recording secretary, and Walter F. Smith, historian of the society. Ap-

Yaden Attacks Board's Rule on Gifts to Schools

Requiring Approval by Heads to "Move to Russianize Under Czar" the Parent-Teachers and Their Funds, He Tells Association.

Passage yesterday by the board of education of a ruling requiring the board's acceptance before any gift may be made to a District school is a move to "Russianize under a czar" the local Parent-Teacher associations, controlling their money and expenditures, James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, declared last night before the Public School association.

Yaden told the association at its meeting in the District building that the board's action is "another illustration of the utter helplessness, inefficiency and childishness of the board of education." He expressed the opinion that the people of Washington would not stand for such a ruling.

Following Yaden's talk, the association went on record as opposing the ruling, and asked its repeal at the next meeting of the board.

In the course of his criticism of the school board's action, Yaden declared the board's primary object is to control the finances of the parent-teacher organizations.

"The board is not going to refuse any gifts," he said. "That is not their object. Their object is to show the people of Washington that they are the big boss. They have more dignity and less ability than any body I have ever known anything about."

The discussion was precipitated by information of the board's action given the association by Mrs. Daniel T. Murray, who, together with a number of the members, took exception to a remark attributed to Charles F. Carusi at the board meeting. Mr. Carusi was reported to have objected to the policy of accepting gifts for the schools, on the grounds that it made possible advantages to one group of pupils not available to another.

Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, who presided, said every material improvement in the elementary schools has been installed by parent-teacher groups. "Equipment," she said, "is much the same now as it was in Thomas Jefferson's time."

On motion of Mrs. W. T. Bannerman, a committee was named to ask the District commissioners, to submit to the Public School association the school board's budget estimates. The committee was authorized to ask the appropriation of a lump sum for school repairs.

H. F. Lowe, principal of the Lennox-French vocational school, addressed the association, advocating extension of the manual arts in District schools. The association petitioned the school board to provide for proper equipment and a new building for the Abbott school as soon as possible.

"HIAWATHA" IS SUNG BY HOWARD SOCIETY

Oratorio, Set to Music by English Negro Composer, Accorded Ovation.

Rendition of the oratorio "Hiawatha," the legend of the American Indian, set to music by the English negro composer S. Coleridge Taylor, was made last night in Rankin chapel by the Howard University Choral society. Miss Lulu Vere Childers, dean of the school of music, under whose direction the trilogy was sung, was accorded an ovation at the conclusion of the second part, and soprano, tenor and barytone soloists scored individual triumphs.

The Choral society, of 50 voices, included as soloists Alexander Gatewood, tenor, fellow of the Juilliard Foundation; Miss Avis Andrews, soprano, and Barrington Guy, barytone, both of the university conservatory. While warmly received by a capacity audience throughout, the soprano and barytone were most effective in the final part, opened by Miss Andrews with a song, "Spring Has Come in All Its Splendor," followed by the solo for barytone, "True Is All Iago Tells Us," which Guy accorded sympathetic treatment displaying unusual talent and promise.

The tenor solo, "Onaway, Awake, Beloved!" in the first part, served as an effective introduction of Gatewood to a Washington audience. The dramatic intensity of the farewell song, "I Am Going, O Nokomis," as rendered by Guy; the chorus in its rendition of "By the Shores of Gitchee Gumee," and the descriptive beauty of the Indian legend, translated into music by the composer, were the high spots of the evening's entertainment. Camille Lucille Nickerson acted as accompanist.

WHITE HOUSE TIMBER AND BOLT DONATED

Oldest Inhabitants Association Receives Relics From Joseph Thomas.

A piece of timber and a hand-made bolt from the roof of the White House was presented to the Oldest Inhabitants association meeting in the old engine house, H and Nineteenth street northwest, last night.

Joseph Thomas donated the gift. The card stated that it was a part of the first White House. The probability of this was questioned because of the fire of 1814. It was finally decided that the timber was not of the original structure, but the bolt held possibilities, it being stated that a hand-made bolt would be salvaged because of the difficulty of duplicating it.

The association plans to participate in the bicentennial of George Washington's anniversary in 1932. The following committee was appointed to cooperate with other organizations: John J. Edson, Gist Blair, F. B. Hester, John B. Larner, John Clagett Proctor, J. Elliot Wright, Fred A. Emery and Odell S. Smith. The following were elected to membership: John Edward Buckey, Henry A. Parker and John S. Garland. William J. Purman, a member of the Forty-third Congress, spoke. Charles A. Langley was named vice-president to succeed the late J. H. Yarnall.

END TO COMMERCE BARRIERS SOUGHT BY PAN-AMERICANS

Will Try to Frame Program Agreeable to Both Continents Today.

Introduces Resolution to Provide Commission to Study Trade Difficulties.

With the North American delegates and some of the Latin American delegates openly in disagreement over the United States tariff policy, the third Pan-American commercial conference will try today to frame a program for removal of trade barriers between the two continents.

These barriers arise principally from clumsy consular procedure and involved customs regulations. A batch of resolutions aimed at their removal have been under consideration by the committee on resolutions and some of them will be reported out to the full conference today.

The tariff policy of the United States was assailed by the delegates of two South American countries yesterday—Luis Duhau, of Argentina, and Enrique A. Schroeder, of Uruguay. It was defended by John H. Fahey, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The Argentine tariff, Duhau said, is purely fiscal in character, while the American duties falling on Argentine products are altogether protective and in some cases prohibitive. The producers of beef in the Argentine, he said, are particularly ha d hit by the American tariff, and have had to sell at extremely low prices in the British market.

Could Increase Buying Power.

"If the United States," Duhau said, "allowed the yearly entrance of 350,000,000 pounds of Argentine beef, that amount would only represent the relatively small proportion of 5 per cent of the total consumption. But the same quantity would constitute 28 per cent of Argentina's average exports of dressed beef in the past decade and 23.3 per cent of an exportation calculated at 1,500,000,000 pounds."

If the United States would permit this, he said, it would increase the buying power of Argentina and encourage the buying of American products. He told of the slogan now much heard in the Argentine—"Buy from those who buy from us"—but he assured the American delegates that it was only a temporary slogan, to be employed while there are customs barriers in existence that "suffocate" the country's economic development.

Mr. Fahey, the American delegate, departed from his prepared speech to answer Senor Duhau. He declared that the tariff policy of the United States was equally fair to all nations, and he cited statistics for the purpose of proving his point.

Assails American Tariff.

Senor Schroeder, of Uruguay, assailed the American tariff on the ground that it was having an adverse effect on his country's foreign trade, particularly in the matter of wool, hides and meat.

After delivering his attack on the tariff, Senor Duhau introduced a resolution proposing that a commission of business men be created to study the commercial difficulties between North America and South America.

Development of Pan-American exchange, the resolution said, must be sought principally in the gradual reduction of customs duties.

"It is not upon the shifting sands of commercial prejudices that inter-American solidarity should be built," said the resolution, "but upon the solid ground of economic liberty."

The resolution was turned over to the committee on resolutions.

Last night the delegates to the conference were the guests of Ambassador Tellez and Senora Tellez at the Mexican embassy.

SOCIETY OF BAPTISTS OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

Women's Mission Organization Celebrates Golden Anniversary at Meeting.

The Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society of the Atlantic district celebrated its golden anniversary yesterday in the National Baptist Memorial church in connection with the fourteenth annual meeting of the Woman's American Baptist Foreign and Home Mission Societies of the Atlantic District.

In celebration of this occasion, $563,910.58 was contributed by people throughout the country. The goal set was $500,000, and this amount will be distributed among institutions fostered by the society. Mrs. Caleb Moor was in charge of the observance. At the dinner of the foreign mission society last night eight missionaries spoke. Ruth Hall, Edna Smith and Mabelle Culley, all of China, predicted their early return to resume their work. Others who spoke were Margaret Suman and Ellen Martine, of the Philippines; Marie Holmes, of Assam; Thelka Shaffer, of Africa, and Verna Blakely.

The Americanization department gave a luncheon. Those who spoke were Mrs. O. E. Howe, Mrs. John P. Thompson, Mrs. William E. Morris, Mrs. Frank M. Newcomb, Mrs. William H. Farmer, Mrs. H. M. Kendrick, Mrs. M. V. Freas, Mrs. Edward E. Richardson, Miss Louella Adams, Mrs. Moor, Mrs. William S. Abernethy, Miss Helen Hudson, Mrs. Ray L. Hudson, Mrs. Howard Wayne Smith, Miss Marian Jones, Mrs. Rittenhouse Neisser, Mildred Kaminskie and Mrs. Joseph S. Wilds, president.

Wealthy Man, Held With Son, Hangs Self

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—A wealthy real estate operator, who rose from the ranks, took his own life today, leaving his 23-year-old son alone to face charges brought by an old friend of grand larceny and fogery in alleged fraudulent real estate deals involving from $160,000 to $500,000.

The father, Abraham Crosney, who started life in Grand street, on the lower East Side, and the son, Paul, were arrested last night while they were entertaining at a party in their luxurious West End avenue home. They were taken directly to night court.

The son, released with his father in $5,000 bail shortly after their arrest, appeared at Yorkville court this morning for arraignment and, after explaining about the tragedy in his home, obtained an adjournment until May 18.

Mrs. Esther Crosney, the widow, said today that worry and sleeplessness brought on by the sudden arrests last night caused her husband to take his tions of the United States—the East, the South, the north Central and the Pacific coast—was painted by speakers at the chamber of commerce sessions yesterday morning.

The agricultural situation in the West, however, was described as one of "unusual gravity" by Silas Strawn, of Chicago.

A spirited discussion broke out yesterday at a meeting of the transportation section following the introduction of a resolution by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

This resolution would have the Chamber of Commerce "look with disfavor" upon "recent efforts of the Shipping Board for authority to enter upon a new program of ship building."

T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, immediately arose and declared that it was not true that the board contemplates entering upon a program of ship building. On the contrary, he said, the board is making every effort to dispose of its ships.

When Chairman O'Connor had finished, Julius H. Barnes, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced a resolution which said that O'Connor's assurances were in accord with the policy of the chamber. The resolution, which was adopted, impressed on the Shipping Board "the need of energy in placing this shipping in private operation."

Alfred Pearce Dennis, vice chairman of the United States tariff commission, was the principal speaker at the chamber's annual banquet in the Willard hotel last night.

"If the war has taught us anything," he said, "it has lessoned us in the economic solidarity of the world. We have learned that no man liveth to himself nor dieth to himself. What is true of individuals is true of nations. When the British government released its accumulated war stocks of wool in 1921, the market collapsed and there was not a shepherd on the lonely plains of Australia or the slopes of Judea who did not feel the pinch of hard times. When the Russians withdrew from the Paris perfumery market, rose valleys in the secluded valleys of the mountains of Bulgaria, which had been producing attar of rose for 50 years, were left untended."

Before the war, he said, the United States regarded Great Britain as its greatest trade rival. Now it regards the British as customers rather than rivals, he said, because it realizes that it has more to gain from Britain prosperous than from Britain depressed.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY SHOWS BIG STRIDES

(By the Associated Press.)

Strides made by the United States as an industrial nation were strikingly illustrated today in data prepared for the Commerce Department by Prof. E. E. Day, of the University of Michigan, and Woolief Thorne, of the Federal Reserve Board. The data covers the advance since 1899.

The quantity of manufactured goods produced by the country in 1925 was found to be 163.4 per cent greater than that of 1899; the number of wage earners employed was increased by 88.2 per cent, and horse power of electrical, steam or other energy, increased 229.6 per cent.

There were only two classes of industries which were not producing more in 1925 than in 1899—liquor manufacture and shipbuilding. No legal liquor of any kind was found to have been manufactured in 1925, while in the shipbuilding field, if the 1899 output is represented by the figure 9, the 1925 output dropped to but 7. The most notable increase in a single industry was reported in that devoted to automobile production, which had an index figure in 1899 of 5, and in 1925 had soared to 238.

BAKER BOY'S BODY DUG FROM GRAVE, IS BELIEF

Fredericksburg Police Say Lad's Slayer Then Flung Body Into River

CASE IS STILL UNSOLVED

Fredericksburg, Va., May 4.—That the body of 9-year-old Albert Baker, found in the Rappahannock river, 6 miles below here last Monday afternoon, had been buried ashore for some days before it was cast into the river, tied in a burlap sack weighted with stones, is the belief of Fredericksburg authorities as a result of their investigation.

They believe that whoever cast the body into the river first had buried it ashore, but later feared to let it remain in the grave.

Despite the efforts of Fredericksburg police, aided by specially employed detectives, the end of another day of investigation, theorizing and questioning found them little nearer a solution of the mystery of the boy's death.

Albert disappeared on February 22 on a bright afternoon from a Fredericksburg street, and all efforts to discover his whereabouts were fruitless until fishermen discovered the body in the sack in the river last Monday.

An autopsy performed by Dr. John E. Coll, coroner, disclosed two fractures of the back of the skull of a nature to indicate the blow which caused them had come from below. The fractures might have been caused by a stone similar to those with which the sack which held his body was weighted, Dr. Coll said. A dark line about the neck of the lad may have been made by a strangling cord, he said. The fractures would cause severe hemorrhages, but not necessarily quick death, he declared.

Out of these facts police are attempting to develop a hypothetical case which seems reasonable. It has been suggested that the boy may have been injured inadvertently and the person responsible killed him to cover up the first injury.

Harry Wheeler told police today that he and another boy had seen the sack containing the body four days before it was washed ashore, but they believed it merely contained the carcass of some animal.

Negus Is Mt. Rainier Mayor, Says Council

Uncertainty, which has surrounded the results of the election of town officers of Mount Rainier since Monday, was cleared last night when the council, following a meeting with retiring Mayor John H. Beall, decided Fred Negus had been elected mayor of the town for the coming year.

Bert Sager was declared victor in the contest for councilman of the First ward. Inability to agree on the number of votes cast in the Fourth ward caused the council to reject the claims of D. J. Orcutt and Norman Brulitt that they had been elected. The council decided that according to the town charter Louis Rosenfield, present councilman, will hold office until the next election. Immediately after the first results of the election were posted Monday night, requests for a recount were made. Results of the recount were laid before the council last night.

SIX CHARGE JUDGE SHOWED PREJUDICE AT VANZETTI TRIAL

Editor, Attorney, Reporters and Church Agent Tell of Outside Remarks.

FORMAL PLEA IS SENT TO GOV. FULLER

Sacco Refuses to Sign; Clings to His Principles as an Anarchist.

Boston, May 4 (By A. P.).—Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, under sentence of death in the week of July 10 for the murder of a pay roll master and his guard in Braintree seven years ago, today carried their world-wide fight for exoneration to Gov. Fuller with a personal plea for an investigation. The plea was submitted by Vanzetti from his cell in the Dedham jail.

"We hereby pray you to exercise the power conferred on you by the constitution of Massachusetts publicly to investigate all the facts in our case and set us free from that sentence if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience," was the opening sentence of the petition.

Written by Vanzetti, with the aid of his counsel in matters of English grammar and reference, the petition was signed by Vanzetti only, although it called for an investigation on behalf of both men. Sacco's refusal to sign was explained in covering letters submitted by William G. Thompson and Herbert B. Ehrmann, defense counsel, and Dr. Abraham Myerson, Boston psychiatrist, as the result of "experience during the past seven years," which has "convinced him that it would be against his faith to do so."

Consistent as an Anarchist.

Citing the fact that Sacco "is determined to be consistent with his principles as an anarchist," Dr. Myerson wrote that "there is no question that the seven years of his incarceration have helped bring about an abnormal state in which his fanaticism has been intensified to an obsession."

Accompanying the petition, which covered 20 typewritten pages, was what the defense counsel have termed their best legal trump—a set of six affidavits from prominent persons, each of which charges that Judge Webster Thayer (trial judge, who later refused all exceptions and petitions for a new trial), showed "prejudice and bias." against the men during and after their trial.

The affidavits were signed by George U. Crocker, a leading Boston attorney; Robert Benchley, dramatic editor of Life; Elizabeth Bernkopf, newspaper reporter who covered the hearing on motions for a new trial; Frank P. Sibley, who covered the trial for the Boston Globe; John Nicholas Beffel, of New York, who attended the trial as a reporter for the Federated press; and Lois B. Rantoul of Jamaica Plains, who attended the trial as a representative of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

Remarks At a Golf Club.

The Benchley affadavit reported an account of Loring Coes, a friend of the New York dramatic critic, of Judge Thayer's remarks made before Coes and several others in the Worcester Golf club in 1921, the year of the trial.

"Mr. Coes told us," said the affidavit, "that Judge Thayer had just been telling about what he (Judge Thayer) intended to do to Sacco and Vanzetti, whom Judge Thayer referred to as 'those —— —— down there.' Mr. Coes said that Judge Thayer had referred to Sacco and Vanzetti as bolsheviki who were 'trying to intimidate him,' and said that 'he would get them good and proper.'

Mr. Benchley said that he believed Mr. Coes had refused to make an affidavit similar to his on the grounds of hazy memory and the fact that he was an old friend of the judge.

Sibley and Beffel both swore to affidavits that Judge Thayer talked of the case to reporters and made prejudicial remarks regarding counsel for the defense in the court lobby and luncheons during the noon recess.

Could Not Be Hoodwinked.

Miss Bernkopf said that Judge Thayer talked to her several times, and that the "substance of his talk was generally the same, namely, that he could not be hoodwinked, that he could not be intimidated by anybody or anything and that he disliked and was suspicious of Attorney Moore (original Sacco-Vanzetti defense counsel), whom he generally referred to as 'that long-haired anarchist.'"

Attorney Crocker charged that Judge Thayer came to him, "unsolicited, at the University club, in Boston, on several occasions and discussed the case, giving evidence of bias and prejudice."

Mrs. Louis B. Rantoul said that Judge Thayer twice talked with her during the trial. The judge "expressed dissatisfaction" with her statement soon after the trial opened that she had not heard sufficient evidence to convince her that the defendants were guilty. In the second interview, Judge Thayer "expressed scorn and contempt" for Mrs. Rantoul's belief that the statements of a character witness for Sacco were important.

"Justice, not mercy," was the theme running through Vanzetti's 5,000-word letter to the governor, in which he asked that a commission appointed by the governor investigate the entire case.

Extensively he described "the views and opinions that have brought us to death's door," their belief in radicalism and anarchy "which is neither a sect nor a party, but a philosophy that, like all philosophies aims to human progress and happiness. Our goal is the ultimate elimination of every form of violence."

"We love and venerate our cause, our martyrs, our heroes, our masters. For this cause, we are willing to suffer and die, but not for the low and sordid south Braintree crime."

WOMEN WEEP AT GRAY'S STORY

The Snyders, Albert and Ruth and their 9-year-old daughter Lorraine, were at a bridge party. They returned. Gray, squatted on the floor in the upstairs bedroom of the absent mother, a quart of whisky beside him, heard them. He drank—drink after drink. Then Mrs. Snyder put Lorraine to bed and came to him. She whispered that all would soon be ready.

Albert Snyder, having put the family automobile in the garage, entered the house and went to bed in their bedroom. Mrs. Snyder, having disrobed, pretended to sleep beside him. Then she came into her mother's room, in her night gown. Gray drank more whisky. He gave her his buckskin gloves. He put on the rubber gloves. They waited, whispering in the darkness.

"'Now's the time,' Mrs. Snyder said," Gray testified, as spasms of emotion shook his body. Mrs. Snyder bowed her head and wept.

Snyder Began to Fight.

"She took me by the hand," Gray continued. "I had the sashweight and the chloroform. She had the pliers and the picture wire. She led me to the door of the room and opened it. She went in first and I followed. I had my glasses off. I struck him once, on the head as far as I could see. I must have struck him a second time, but he rose up and began to struggle with me."

Women spectators and women reporters were crying. Men dabbed surreptitiously at their eyes with handkerchiefs. Gray took another drink of water and, tears coursing down his cheeks, went on with his story.

"I yelled: 'Momie! Momie! Don't let him do it.' I had dropped the sashweight. He grappled with me. I couldn't go on. I couldn't have done it. He would have got the best of me."

Then as Albert Snyder called upon her for help, Mrs. Snyder, Gray said, picked up the fallen sashweight and struck her husband on the head.

Gray's story had the spectators in an emotional state almost equal to his own. Mrs. Snyder's head had sunk to her arms. His mother and sister were pittiably upset. Justice Townsend Scudder leaned forward to catch each word of Gray's testimony.

Grappled With Snyder.

Gray grappled with Snyder, getting on top of him and trying to smother him with bed clothing. He also tried to choke him, now in self-defense more than with murderous intent, he felt. He recalled rushing to close a window, so that Snyder's cries would not be heard by neighbors. Mrs. Snyder poured choloroform on the pillow.

Gray was sure the picture wire was first tied about Snyder's wrists. Mrs. Snyder, he said, must have twisted it about Snyder's neck. He didn't see it there, even when he entered the room later and accidentally touched Snyder's hand, feeling the coldness of it. Gray shivered as he uttered the word "cold."

The murder, Gray said, had been planned for weeks. It was not clear, even to the last moment, who would do it.

Mrs. Snyder had asked him to hire a gunman. She had talked of poison. She had believed chloroform would be used. But at the moment of the deed there was no plan, only some instruments and her unswerving purpose. Gray felt himself unable to do the thing. Even more than a quart of whisky had failed to make him what, he felt, she wanted him to be. He sat in the absent mother's room drinking whisky and wondering if he could bring himself up to the point of murdering Snyder.

But when Gray desisted at the bedside, Mrs. Snyder egged him on, saying, "It has to go through or I'm ruined." And it was Mrs. Snyder, Gray related, who went to the bathroom, got a towel and with it tied her husband's hands.

"What Shall We Do?"

The deed done, the murderers, as Gray pictured them, turned to look at each other, and ask "What shall we do now?" They went into the absent mother's bedroom. Little Lorraine was sleeping soundly. There was blood on Gray's shirt. She got him another, telling him she would burn her night dress and bathrobe and his shirt.

They began to plan the burglary story. They mussed up the entire house, burned the telltale garments in the furnace and wrapped the chloroform in an Italian language newspaper, leaving it where it might suggest that the crime was committed by Italians. She wanted him to strike her on the head, to strengthen the story of burglary. He refused, because "I couldn't do it."

And now Mrs. Snyder was bound and about to be gagged. She was lying on her mother's bed. She asked him when she would see him again. Here Gray's emotions became too great for repression, and he sobbed out that he had told her that he "was through with her and everything and that she would never see me again." It was dawn. He went out of the house.

The jurors were hunched forward on their chairs. The courtroom was in confusion. The hands of the court clock pointed to 4:30, the usual recess time. Samuel L. Miller, chief of Gray's counsel, said:

"Your honor, in view of the condition of the witness, I move that court be recessed."

Deny Gray Fainted.

Justice Townsend nodded assent. But Gray, turning to the judge, said he was all right and would like to go on and clear up some points he had missed.

Gray then told details he had omitted, but his further testimony seemed an anticlimax. He told of Mrs. Snyder showing him, after the murder, bottles of poison, and of her saying that she had a capsule that was potent enough to kill a dozen people and that she intended keeping it. He told of drinking more whisky in the dining room.

When court recessed, the weeping women and their male companions, whispering in tragic voices, filed slowly from the courtroom. From the door through which Mrs. Snyder and Gray had been taken to their cells came the sound of an uproar. A report that Gray had fainted was soon in circulation. Bailiffs denied this.

Gray Resumes Testimony.

When court convened this morning Samuel Miller, Gray's counsel, resumed the direct examination of his client. Gray testified that in the middle of the year 1926, Mrs. Synder showed him a $5,000 insurance policy on her husband.

"She asked me if it would be payable if her husband drowned," he said. "She told me she thought her husband might be drowned that summer."

He told then of her meeting him at the Waldorf when she brought two bottles of whisky and some sleeping powders.

"She asked me to try the sleeping powders," he said. "She told me they were not poison but she wanted to know what the effect was. I took the powders and my brain became very vague and did not clear up for a whole day. Under the influence of those powders, I moved about, took her home, and returned to the hotel without any knowledge of what I was doing. She said the powders must be potent enough for a very good use. I agreed that they were potent as they had put me in a trance."

In September of 1926, he said, Mrs. Snyder told him that her affairs at home were unbearable and that she had definitely decided to kill her husband.

Woman Highly Nervous.

"I told her she was crazy," he said, "and advised her to see a doctor. She said she intended to give her husband some of the powders she had tested out on me and then kill him by gas while he was in a stupor."

Gray said she was in a highly nervous state at this time, fainting on the street on one occasion, and that "she didn't know what she was doing."

As Gray testified, Mrs. Snyder sat bowed in her seat with her head hanging, but apparently not crying.

Late in September, he said, Mrs. Snyder told him she had tried to kill her husband by gas, but had failed.

"I don't have any luck," he quoted her as saying. "It's too bad the tube wasn't long enough to stick in his nose."

This identical phrase was attributed to Gray himself when Mrs. Snyder was on the stand and told of telling Gray of an accident her husband had had.

"I met her again early in October," he said, "and she told me she had had another argument with 'the old crab,' and that she was at the limit of her endurance. I urged divorce, but she said that was not the way out."

In the middle of October, he said, she met him in Newark, N. J., and they drove up to Newburgh, N. Y., for lunch, and from there to Kingston. He said she referred to the trip as the first honeymoon she had ever had.

As Gray related this, his voice caught with emotion and it seemed for a moment that he was going to cry.

At Kingston, he continued, she told him in detail of her differences with her husband. He said he told her he could not understand her feelings as he was not unhappy at home to that extent.

They went to Albany from Kingston, and thence to Troy. As Gray continued his recital he sighed deeply at intervals and was evidently hard pressed to retain his composure.

From Troy they went to Schenectady, he said, and from there to Amsterdam.

He testified that on this trip Mrs. Snyder's lovemaking was so aggressive that he became to all intents a slave to love. It is this condition of helpless submission that Gray's counsel says the corset salesman was in at the time of the killing.

At Amsterdam, he said, Mrs. Snyder learned by telephone that her husband was ill. He said he suggested her return home, but she said "Let the old crab die."

They then went to Syracuse, with stops at Gloversville, Booneville and Watertown.

Woman Buries Face.

While Gray testified Mrs. Snyder sat at her counsel table with her head buried in her arms. He spoke in a flat, even voice, devoid of emotion, and was allowed to tell his story with almost no prompting questions from his lawyer.

Binghamton was the next stop, where they had luncheon with the buyer for his principal customer. Then they went over into Pennsylvania. At Scranton his funds were low and he borrowed $57 from Mrs. Snyder.

In Scranton, he said, Mrs. Snyder suggested they "get good and plastered," as it might be the last day of their trip. He said he protested that he must stay in condition to call on his trade, but in the end they both got intoxicated.

They then went to Stroudsburg, Pa., and thence to Newark, ten days having been passed in the trip. Gray said that at Newark he repaid the money he had borrowed and they then went to their respective homes. At subsequent meetings, he said, Mrs. Snyder told him of continuous quarrels with her husband, and said "something would have to be done."

"Foolish," He Told Her.

"I told her she was foolish," he said, "and that I had taken her on the trip to get her over any such ideas."

"She replied by asking me if I knew anything about knockout drops and if I could get her some. I said absolutely not."

He said that she then told him of a friend in Hartford, Conn., who was going to take her to the theater, saying she had asked him to bring her some sleeping powders.

He visted her in her home, Gray said, and she showed him how she had kicked a tube from a gas heater in an attempt to asphyxiate her husband.

"I think you are absolutely crazy," Gray said he told her, "and she then told me she had also tried to kill Snyder in his garage. She said she took him two drinks of whisky there and had then closed the door while the engine was running."

On this visit he said he took her some small bottles of whisky and she told him she was going to put powders in the bottles.

"She had several kinds of poison around the house," he said.

Again Talked of Killing.

Gray said he saw Mrs. Snyder half a dozen times in November of 1926, and she spoke constantly of her marital troubles. He then identified the suit case which has figured in the case several times before, telling which articles in it were his and which Mrs. Snyder's.

At one of the November meetings, he said, she again asked him about knockout drops.

"She said she had some powders," he said, "but told me she was afraid they were not strong enough. She asked me if I could find out. I said I could but that I would not. I refused to have any part in such a scheme."

Toward the end of the month, he said, she asked him if there weren't any way to get rid of her husband that Gray would help her with. He testified that he refused.

"She told me she was going to make one more attempt alone," he said, "and if that failed, I would have to help her.

"I said that I would not do so, that I knew nothing about such things. She told me to ask a doctor she knew I was friendly with about knockout drops.

Obtained the Information.

"I told her I would try. The next morning she reminded me of my promise and said she wanted the information right away."

"Did you get this information for her?" Miller asked. "I did."

"Did she act on the information you got her?" "She said she had tried to get the poison I had told her about and failed. She asked me to get it for her and I refused. She told me later a friend, the Hartford man, had got it for her."

"Did she use it?" "In December I met her an dshe said she had used it twice on her husband, kicking off the gas tube accidentally with the second attempt. She said she had no luck because the gas woke him up and he was just sick."

Then, he said, Mrs. Snyder asked him if he knew other ways to kill and he replied that he did not.

"She said she was afraid her husband might become suspicious of her," he testified.

Asked About Revolver.

Just before Christmas last, Gray said, Mrs. Snyder told him of her husband slapping and threatening her. He said she expressed fear for her life.

"She asked me if I knew how to shoot a revolver," Gray testified, "and I said no."

He then told of doing Christmas shopping with Mrs. Snyder and her daughter, the second year they had done this together.

This Christmas she gave him a traveling set and he gave her underclothes, as he had the year before. He gave Lorraine, Mrs. Snyder's daughter, some silk underwear, and Mrs. Snyder bought some books for his little girl.

Gray said he went to the Snyder home the day after Christmas "to see the tree and the presents."

Lorraine and Mrs. Snyder's mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown, were present until after lunch.

"Then," Gray testified, "Mrs. Snyder asked me if I wouldn't help her by shooting her husband. I refused, and she then asked for suggestions as to how she could do the killing.

"I told her she must see it through alone, and I went back to New York."

He said that early in January she told him she was having trouble keeping up her husband's insurance, and he advised her to cancel it. She said she would think it over.

Poison in Medicine.

Gray resumed the stand promptly at 2 o'clock, after lunch, and Samuel Miller, his attorney, continued direct examination. The recital at this time dealt with meetings of Gray and Mrs. Snyder in January of this year. At one of these meetings, he said, Mrs. Snyder told him her husband had been suffering from hiccoughs and that she had given him poison in his medicine.

"Don't you know that poison is deadly?" Gray said he asked her, and she replied that she had thought it was when she administered it but that it had only made her husband sick.

She then related, Gray said, how she had filed labels off a bottle of poison tablets and told her husband the tablets were harmless medicine.

"She asked me later," Gray testified, "if I would get her some more of the poison I had found out about for her, and I said I would not. She asked me again if I couldn't think of any plan for getting rid of her husband, and I said I could not. She said she was intent on killing him one way or another."

The testimony then doubled back into 1926 to tell of money Gray said he had borrowed from Mrs. Snyder and which he said he repaid. She had previously testified that he never repaid any of the money he borrowed. He said that one loan of $25 he had not repaid "as yet."

Whisky Also Poisoned.

Gray then brought his account up to February of this year, the month before the killing of Albert Snyder, and continued to tell of frequent meetings.

In the second week of that month, he said, Mrs. Synder told him of her husband drinking whisky in which she had put poison. Snyder became ill, but recovered.

She then told him that she had tried three different strengths of poison on her husband without avail and asked Gray to find out what constituted a lethal dose.

"I told her I had no experience in such matters," Gray testified, "and I didn't want any."

Miller asked if in that month Mrs. Snyder had spoken to Gray about "procuring the services" of a gunman, but on objection by council for Mrs. Snyder the question was withdrawn.

The last week in February, Gray said, Mrs. Snyder told him she had tried every means to kill her husband and failed, and that he would have to help her.

"She said it was him or her or all of us," he testified. "I asked her what she had in mind and she said she had thought that the best plan might be to beat her husband unconscious and then chloroform him."

"I said this was quite impossible. She asked me to help her and I refused. Then she asked me if I would get her the chloroform and I said I would.

"I then asked her if she was going to do this thing herself and she said she was going to try."

Widow Begins to Weep.

Mrs. Snyder wept quietly as this testimony was being given.

The recital then reached happenings during March, on the 20th day of which Snyder was killed. Gray said he went to the Snyder home close to the first of the month, Mrs. Snyder being alone when he arrived.

"We talked over this matter of killing Snyder," he said, "with chloroform and an instrument."

"She said 'you are going to help me, aren't you?' And I said, no; only so far as getting the chloroform. Then she asked me about a suitable instrument and I suggested a sashweight.

"She told me to get the chloroform, the weight and a pair of rubber gloves and I said I would."

Gray said he left her after she had beseeched him without avail to take an active part in the murder. He also refused, he said, to get a man to help her. He went to Albany the next day and telephoned Mrs. Snyder to see if she still wanted him to get the implements of murder. He testified she told him to go ahead and buy them.

The following day he went to Kingston, N. Y., where he bought the sashweight and chloroform and then returned to New York.

Gave Her the Package.

The day after that, he said, Mrs. Snyder telephoned him to meet her at a restaurant and give her the things he had bought. He said he kept the appointment and turned over the package.

"She asked if the weight was in there," he said, "and I told her it was. Then I left."

Gray said he next saw Mrs. Snyder at noon March 7 at Jamaica by appointment.

"She asked me to come out to the house," he said, "but I couldn't then That afternoon, however, I met her at the Jamaica station again and she said she wanted to talk about doing away with her husband. She said she had practiced with the weight and all her strength left her when she picked it up. She said I must help her, but I refused, saying 'you must do this all by yourself.'

"She asked me to come to her home that night, and I said I would. I went there with some picture wire from my office. I took an old duster too.

"I got to the house a little after 11 and Mrs. Snyder beckoned to me from the kitchen. She kissed me and gave me several drinks.

Refused to Do Killing.

"She asked me if I would do the job, and I said no. She asked me to stay and do it with her. I said no. I took her the rubber gloves and the wire and the duster. I did not see the weight. I left and she said she would write me the details of what happened."

Then Gray said he took a train for Buffalo. While in Buffalo, Gray said, he received eight or nine letters and one telegram during the next five days. He destroyed them all.

One of these letters asked him to get some poison and stated that Mrs. Snyder was going to a party on the night of March 19.

"She asked me to come to her house that night," he said. "She said she hadn't had any luck with her husband as yet, but was hoping for better luck soon."

Gray said he went from Buffalo to Hornell, then to Olean, to Jamestown, to Dunkirk and back to Buffalo on a business trip in the next few days. At Hornell and Jamestown he got letters from Mrs. Snyder telling him that her mother would be away March 19 and that she would send him "final plans" at Rochester.

He said he found two letters from her waiting for him when he got to Rochester, going there from Buffalo.

"She told me in these letters," he said, "that she would definitely expect me on Saturday night, March 19. She said to bring some rope. She said she would leave both doors unlocked and that if a package of cigarettes was on the table in the hall, to go up to her mother's room; if not, to stay in the hall till she came to get me.

Told Not to Worry.

"She said she would leave a bottle of whisky and a pair of pliers under the pillow of her mother's bed. The pliers were to cut the telephone wire. She told me not to worry, that I was doing this for her."

Gray said he went from Rochester to Syracuse on March 18.

He told of mailing Mrs. Snyder two handkerchiefs for her birthday and inclosing two sleeping powders in the envelope. He went to New York on March 19, buying a return ticket to Syracuse for the next day on his arrival. Then he took a train to Queens Village, getting there shortly after midnight.

"I walked to the Snyder home," he said, "drinking considerably on the way. I found the door open, but had forgotten whether the cigarettes on the hall table meant I should go up or stay down. I stayed in the kitchen awhile and then as there was no sound I went up to Mrs. Brown's room.

"I found the sashweight, the rubber gloves, the pliers, the chloroform and a small bottle of whisky which I drank.

"I got dizzy and sat on the floor, where I found a large bottle of whisky. I drank some more. I had some cotton waste I had picked up in Rochester and I put that with the other things.

Started to Leave.

"I finally started downstairs to leave, but got only half down when I saw a car approaching and I ran back upstairs.

"I heard Mrs. Snyder coming upstairs. Lorraine went into her room. Mrs. Snyder came into the room where I was. Then she went out and I had six or seven more drinks.

"I heard her husband coming upstairs. He went to his room and she came in to see if I'd found everything. She noted that I'd been drinking and then left, saying she'd get back soon as she could. I had more to drink, and soon she came back.

"She said her husband was dozing off. She said 'You're going to do it tonight, aren't you?' I replied that I didn't know if I could, but I'd try. Then she said the time had come.

"I gave her my gloves and I put on the rubber gloves. I gave her the chloroform and the wire. I took the sashweight. She took me by the hand to her husband's room.

"We went in. I struck him on the head one blow, and maybe another.

"He hollered at the first blow and I jumped on top of him. He was full of fight and was getting the best of me. I yelled, "Momie, Momie, help me!' and I dropped the weight. I tried to strangle him with my hands and she tackled him from behind and tied his hands.

"She put chloroform over his face."

Terrified by Blood.

After it was over, he said, he asked Mrs. Snyder what to do next, he being terrified by finding blood on himself. Then she got him one of her husband's shirts. Then he had some more to drink, and she asked him if Snyder was dead.

"She said, 'He's got to be,'" he testified, "'or I'm ruined.' She told me to put wire around his neck, and I tried to but I couldn't.

As Gray talked, his voice choked frequently and tears wet his face. Mrs. Snyder was using smelling salts and crying openly. Gray told of putting Snyder's revolver on his bed.

"She asked me again if he was dead," he said, "and I told her I thought so. Then she gathered up a lot of poison she had, and I got my hat and coat. We went downstairs and I had some more to drink. She took the money from her husband's wallet and gave it to me. She offered me her jewelry, but I wouldn't take it. I told her to hide it and we went upstairs, where ——"

Her counsel asked the court to adjour, but Gray said: "Oh, I can go on. I've still got something to say. I would like to go on."

He said Mrs. Snyder then told him that she had burned the blood-stained clothing and hidden the sash weight. He said he put ashes on the weight to make it look as if it had been collecting dust a long time.

"Then we went upstairs and she asked me to hit her on the head to simulate a robbery. "I told her I couldn't do that, but I tied her up before I left the house and went back to Syracuse."

U. S. WILL DEFEND WAR DEBTS POLICY AT ECONOMIC TALK

LOUCHEUR UNANIMOUSLY NAMED VICE PRESIDENT

Americans Hope Immigration and Loans Views Will Not Be Criticized.

Geneva, May 4 (By A. P.).—The great international economic conference, summoned to evolve plans to stabilize economic conditions throughout the world, was opened today in Reformation hall.

Some 1,500 delegates were present, representing 46 nations—including the United States, soviet Russia and Turkey as nonmembers of the League of Nations—and the hall presented an even more animated and crowded scene than during meetings of the league assembly.

Former Premier Theunis of Belgium, president of the conference, in his opening address, declared there had never been a meeting so comprehensively qualified to study the problems which jeopardize "the two precious boons for which mankind is ever yearning—peace and prosperity."

The conferen he added, must help maintain peace by providing guidance in the economic field in the face of difficulties which made the world uncomfortably dangerous and sensitive.

Must Survey Situation.

M. Theunis emphasized that the conference primarily must survey the world's economic situation to determine the economic causes of the present instability. It must also examine economic tendencies which may influence world peace, giving particular attention to the problem of commercial and tariff policies and international industrial agreements.

The last point was probably specifically European, he remarked, but the delegates must not forget that interdependence of nations means that every measure affecting the economic life of one nation produces effects in all the other countries.

M. Theunis expressed the opinion that it would be found that dislocation of economic relations because of the world war has had more serious consequences than the material havoc wrought. He believed that the crux of the existing difficulties was that trade, particularly in Europe, had been unable to keep pace with the developments of means of production which have equalled and even surpassed the prewar level.

Loucheur Vice President.

The first task of the conference was to elect a vice president, M. Louis Loucheur, former French minister of finance, being unanimously elected for the post.

A group of workers, delegates to the international economic conference adopted a resolution today in favor of international selling combines as a means of regulating production. They warned, however, against the danger of such capitalistic combinations fixing arbitrary prices, and said steps must simultaneously be taken to protect the interests of the consumers.

The workers' delegates voted to concentrate their efforts toward making the conference a success, believing international cooperation in the domain of economics to be the most practicable way of eliminating unemployment and preventing wars.

Americans Fear Topics.

American representatives were concerned chiefly with the question whether the conference would adopt a policy of "selling combines," and if so, how far the policy would be carried. Under such a plan, they feared, efforts would be made to compel America to accept fixed monopolistic prices on European goods.

Another fear entertained by the Americans was that the conference would go on record as fostering State subsidies to companies exporting raw materials required by the United States, like rubber and coffee. Experts believe such a step would indicate a mass selling plan, and point out that such an attempt to "choke" America would have to be met by massing buying, similar to that followed in the case of rubber.

Italy raised the problem of emigration, but very mildly. Premier Mussolini's delegate, Count Bonin-Longare, committed his country to complete cooperation, asserting that the grave questions arising from the shrinkage of markets could be solved only by the earnest and altruistic cooperation of all nations.

"Italy is short of raw materials," he said, "and you know we have difficulty with our population because it is larger than we are able economically to support."

The American delegation is headed by Henry M. Robinson, president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and former member of the United States Shipping Board. It includes Norman H. Davis, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; John W. O'Leary, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Alonso E. Taylor, director of the food research institute of Stanford university, and Dr. Julius Klein, of the Department of Commerce. They are assisted by a number of experts

Would Defend Debt View.

Hope that the question of Europe's debts to the United States would not be raised was expressed unofficially by the American delegates. It was added, however, that if the subject was introduced, together with the immigration restrictions of the United States, the Americans were prepared to defend the American policy on both subjects.

There was a report by David F. Houston, former American Secretary of Agriculture, saying that the great prosperity of the United States the last four years and continued improvement in the European situation have contributed to the practical application of "rationalization" of industry in the United States.

The political criminal, who may be bent on resorting to violence against the Russian soviet delegation to the conference, will have a hard time reaching his intended victim. The hotel where the Moscow delegates arrived today after the police had escorted them from their train outside of Geneva resembles an entrenched encampment; detectives swarm the corridors and servants' stairways, as well as the lobby. Traffic in a measure has been diverted and particular attention is being paid to food. No soviet delegate can move a foot without a detective at his heels. The Russians have been requested to use only automobiles furnished by the police. Never were public men more completely protected against possible attempts on their lives.

Labor Party Project Defeated by Miners

Peoria, Ill., May 4 (By A. P.).—A move toward forming a labor party was voted down by the Illinois miners' union in convention here today. The name of Frank L. Smith, United States senator-elect from Illinois, figured in the discussion. One delegate cited him as an example of how labor is often misled. Harry Fishwick, president of the miners, defended Mr. Smith.

86 Rebels Killed, Mexico City Reports

Mexico City, May 4 (By A. P.).—Eighty-six rebels were killed when several bands were dispersed or exterminated in the states of Guanajuato, Guerrero and Zacatecas, Monday, says a statement issued today by the presidential bureau.

President Calles declared last night that the present revolutionary movement in Mexico is "absolutely unpopular and lacks capable leaders." The government, he added, is confronted with two problems in this connection—the local Yaqui uprising in the state of Sonora, and several "gangs of Catholic extremists headed by Catholic priests in the state of Jalisco." But, he said, these "gangs" never controlled a zone, city or town in the state of Jalisco.

Rt. Rev. T. J. Toolen Consecrated Bishop

Baltimore, May 4 (By A. P.).—Before the same altar at which he was ordained a priest in the Catholic cathedral here sixteen years ago, the Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Toolen, of Baltimore, today was consecrated bishop of Mobile, Ala., by Archbishop Michael J. Curley. Bishop Michael J. Keyes, of Savannah, and Bishop Richard O. Gerow, of Natchez, were the coconsecrators, and Mgr. Joseph A. Cunnan, of Baltimore, preached the consecration sermon.

Among the several hundred priests and prelates present were 46 priests from the diocese of the new bishop.

DEBT NOTE FROM LONDON

SECRETARY'S WAR DEBT DATA WRONG, NOTE SAYS

Correction of Inaccuracies Asked to Quiet Impressions in England.

REPARATIONS DISCUSSED

The full text of the British note with regard to war debts follows:

The attention of his majesty's government has been drawn to the letter on allied war debts addressed to Prof. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, by Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, which was published on March 17. So far as this letter deals with matters of domestic controversy, his majesty's government have, of course, no desire to offer any comment upon it. But the letter also contains certain specific references to the position of Great Britain: and his majesty's government feel bound to point out that on points of cardinal importance, these statements do not correspond with the facts as known to his majesty's government. His majesty's government feel that in justice to themselves and in order that public opinion in both countries should have a fair opportunity of judging the position, it is essential that they should frankly bring such points to the attention of the United States government.

In the first place, Mr. Mellon states that the United States "agreed to furnish the allies dollars with which all their purchases in the United States should be consummated and what is more, we agreed to lend them these dollars;" but "when the United States purchased supplies and services from France and the British empire," they "did not get these francs and pounds on credit: they paid cash." The United States "are now urged to cancel these debts because it is alleged that they were incurred in the common cause, but neither abroad nor in the United States has it been suggested that if this is to be done, the United States are to be reimbursed the dollars actually expended by us in France and Great Britain."

Mellon Statement Discussed.

This statement implies that the United States government lent the British government all the dollars required to purchase supplies in America and that, over and above these loans, they paid dollars to great Britain for the services and supplies they required from the British empire and that these dollars were retained by his majesty's government for their own purpose. Such, of course, is not the case. All the dollar payments made by the United States for their sterling requirements in Great Britain—which, though considerable, were of course smaller in amount than the war loans to the United Kingdom—were taken into account in fixing the total amount of the war loans advanced to Great Britain and were applied directly to the purchase of supplies in America or to the repayment of debt. The arrangements made are clearly and concisely stated in an article published in Foreign Affairs (April, 1925) by Mr. Rathbone, who was during the war Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury.

Mr. Rathbone's explanation was as follows:

"For its own war purposes in Great Britain, France and Italy, the United States did not borrow pounds or francs or lire. Our Treasury was obliged to procure these currencies for the use of our army abroad. We bought pounds, francs and lire from the governments of Great Britain, France and Italy, and made payment therefor in dollars here. The dollars thus obtained by Great Britain, France and Italy were applied by them toward the cost of their war purchases here, and thus the amount of the dollar loans required by these countries from our Treasury was diminished in a corresponding sum."

Net Requirement Covered.

It will be seen that the United States government did not lend the whole of the money required for the British purchases in America, but that the dollars received from the United States Treasury in payment of sterling provided by Great Britain were used to cover a corresponding part of Great Britain's dollar requirements, and only the net dollar requirements were covered by loans from the United States government.

This arrangement was obviously equitable and satisfactory to both parties, and was in fact originally suggested by the United States government, in a letter dated the third of December, 1917, from Mr. Leffingwell, then Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury, to the British treasury representative in Washington, which includes the following paragraph:

"I assume that your government will use the dollar fund thus received for meeting its dollar requirements for purchases here and would therefore reduce correspondingly its requests for dollar advances from the United States Treasury."

Applied to Dollar Advances.

The dollar payments to Great Britain were thus regularly applied to reduce the dollar advances to Great Britain, so long as the latter continued: when they ceased in 1919, the dollar payments by the United States government were utilized to reduce the debt incurred by Great Britain. The statements made in Mr. Mellon's letter on this point appears to His Majesty's government to be likely to give a very erroneous impression of the facts.

His majesty's government now pass to Mr. Mellon's contention that the payments made to the United States government in respect of the British war debt impose no burden on the British taxpayer.

Mr. Mellon states that "all our principal debtors are already receiving from Germany more than enough to pay their debts to the United States." So far as Great Britain is concerned, this statement is incorrect. The receipts of Great Britain during the financial year 1926-1927, from Germany, on account of reparations represent approximately one-quarter of the payments made by his majesty's government to the United States government, and their prospective reparation receipts during the present financial year, 1927-1928 (assuming that they are transferred in full) will fall substantially below one-half of the payments due to be made to the United States. Even if the receipts from Germany on account of army costs (which represent a partial reimbursement of the expenditure incurred by his majesty's government on the maintenance of their forces) and on account of the Belgian war debt (which represents a payment on behalf of Belgium) are included, the total receipts of Great Britain from Germany in either of these years will not exceed one-half of her payments to the United States. There can be no dispute as to the facts: The figures are published by the agent general for reparation payments and are fully available to the United States Treasury.

Comparisons by Mellon.

"When he comes later to deal with the position of Great Britain, Mr. Mellon does not in fact compare British receipts from Germany alone with British payments to the United States government; he compares the total receipts of Great Britain from reparations and interallied debts, together with the payments due by her to the United States government. He gives figures purporting to show that Great Britain will receive $2,000,000 (£412,000) more this year than she pays to the United States; $15,000,000 (£3,000,000) more next year and $70,000,000 (£14,403,000) more in 1928-1929. While he admits that "in the past two years Great Britain has received about $100,000,000 (£20,576,000) from Germany, France and Italy less than she has paid to the United States," he adds that "it is equally true that, from this year on, Great Britain will, every year, receive from her debtors a substantial amount more than she will pay to us, so that her American payments will not constitute a drain upon her own economic resources."

This statement is also inaccurate, both as regards the past and as regards the future.

From the first of April, 1919, to the thirty-first of December, 1926, Great Britain has paid the sum of $828,500,000 or £170,500,000 in respect of the debt to the United States government, whereas the sums received by Great Britain on account of reparation, Belgian war debt and allied war debts up to the same date amount to £41,000,000 ($200,000,000), leaving a deficit of £129,500,000 ($628,500,000).

Receipts From Reparations.

There seems no special reason to select the past two years only, as is done in Mr. Mellon's letter, but the position as regards this period is that during the first two years of the operation of the Dawes plan (1924-1925 and 1925-1926), the receipts of this country from reparation (including Belgian war debt) and allied war debts together, fell short of British payments to the United States government by approximately £50,000,000 ($234,000,000).

As regards the financial year 1926-1927, the share of the United Kingdom in the third Dawes pan annuity in respect of reparation and Belgian war debt amounts to £12,000,000, and the receipts from interallied war debts to £8,500,000, or a total of £20,500,000, as against the payment due to the United States government of £33,000,000. During the following year (1927-1928), the share of the United Kingdom in the fourth Dawes annuity in respect of the Belgian war debt and reparation should amount to £14,250,000, and the receipts from interallied war debts to £10,500,000, or a total of £24,750,000, as against the payment of £33,000,000 to the United States. The share of the United Kingdom in the fifth and subsequent Dawes annuities (i. e., after September 1, 1928) for Belgian war debt and reparation should amount to £22,400,000, and this, together with the payments from interallied war debt (assuming the French war debt agrement to have been ratified and neglecting past deficits in British receipts as compared with payments) would be sufficient to cover the current payments due to the United States government. Whether the payments from the Dawes annuities included in the above calculations will, in fact, be received, depends, of course, upon whether it is found possible to transfer the full amounts provided for by the Dawes plan.

Still Under Payments to U. S.

But even if the full Dawes payments continue to be received for 60 years from now onward, the present value of the receipts of Great Britain from reparation and allied war debts together would be less than that of the payments she is obligated to make to the United States government on account of the British war debt, assuming interest at 5 per cent to be added to payments and receipts in the past and future payments and receipts to be discounted at the same rate.

It is quite true that his majesty's government have frequently declared that their policy is to recover such a sum, in respect of their war loans to the allies, with the reparation receipts of Great Britain, will suffice to cover the annual payments which they have to make to the United States, but this situation has not yet been reached, and up to the present the British taxpayer has had to find the greater part of the payments to the United States from his own resources, even after applying all receipts from reparations and interallied debts to this purpose, and using none of these receipts as a set-off against the interest which has to be paid on the loans raised in Great Britain out of which advances were made to the allies.

In no circumstances will Great Britain receive from reparations and interallied war debts, taken together more than she pays to America. The policy of His Majesty's government on this subject has been repeatedly declared. It is not their desire to retain for their country anything out of receipts from reparations and interallied war debts. In the event of their receipts from interallied war debts and reparations exceeding the payments made by them to the United States government, they have undertaken to reduce, proportionately, the payments due to be made to Great Britain in respect of interallied war indebtedness and a provision to this effect appears in the various war debt funding agreements, which His Majesty's government have signed.

Receipts Are Discussed.

It is not clear on what basis the calculations cited by Mr. Mellon have been made, but it appears probable that error has arisen on the following points:

(a) Receipts from Germany:

The figures mentioned by Mr. Mellon appear to relate to the total receipts of the British empire from the Dawes annuities. But these include receipts in respect of the costs of occupation as well as in respect of Belgian war debt and reparation. The receipts in respect of costs of occupation represent a partial reimbursement of expenditure incurred by Great Britain; they are thus not available to enable payments to be made to the United States without imposing a burden on Great Britain and must be left out of account for the purpose of the present calculation. Further, the British empire reparation receipts have to be distributed between Great Britain and other parts of the empire, the share of Great Britain having been agreed at 86.85 per cent of the total. The balance is not received by the British treasury.

(b) Receipts from France:

A more important error is contained in the figures given by Mr. Mellon of the receipts of Great Britain from France. These appear to include the sums which were due by the Bank of France to the Bank of England in repayment of an advance made during the war. This loan was a private transaction and is not an intergovernmental debt. The payments are made to the Bank of England, and not one penny thereof accrues to the British treasury or the British government. They are thus entirely irrelevant to the question of the extent to which the British taxpayer can meet payments to the United States government out of receipts from reparation and allied war debts.

$680,000,000 Paid U. S.

It should be added that while the British taxpayer receives nothing from this commercial debt of the Bank of France, he has to meet very large market debts incurred by the British treasury in the United States before the United States government entered the war. Since April 1, 1919, the British taxpayer has paid $680,000,000 or £140,000,000, on this head, over and above the payments made to the United States government.

These facts and figures appear to his majesty's government sufficiently to controvert the statement put forward by Mr. Mellon that the payments made to the United States government in respect of the British war debt will not constitute a drain on British economic resources. But much more might be said. It must be remembered that in addition to paying their own debts to the United States, the British people are sustaining the full charge for the advances made by his majesty's government to the allied governments to enable them to finance the purchase of necessary commodities during the war not only in Great Britain but also in neutral countries. The capital sums lent for this purpose amounted to a net total of £1,350 millions ($6,600 millions) which, with interest accrued during the war period, amount on July 1, 1919, to over £1,450 millions ($7,000 millions) or nearly double the debt which his majesty's government had themselves contracted at that date with the United States government.

This amount was borrowed by the British government from its own nationals and in respect of this debt, the British taxpayer has had to pay interest at over 5 per cent each year since, making a total annual payment of £72½ millions which will continue until the debt is paid off by further and additional contributions from British taxpayers. No relief from this burden can be looked for from receipts from reparations and allied war debts, for in no case will those receipts amount to a greater total than that of British debt payments to the United States government.

Will Retain No Receipts.

Whereas the United States government is receiving from Germany a share of the Dawes annuities estimated to cover its reparation claims in full, and at the same time obtain from Great Britain repayment, with interest at 3 per cent, of the full amount of war loans it advanced to Great Britain, Great Britain will retain for herself nothing of any payments she receives in respect either of reparations or of interallied war debts, but will apply all her receipts toward part payment of her liabilities to the United States. Any balance that remains she will pay out of her own resources, and in any case she will have to support the entire burden of her war losses and of the war loans she herself made to her allies.

His Majesty's government have set out these considerations in no contentious or controversial spirit. On the contrary, their desire is to maintain and to promote a friendly understanding between the two great English-speaking nations, on whose cooperation great issues for the peace and progress of the world depend. They view with great misgiving the divergence of opinion and the estrangement of sentiment which is growing up in regard to these war obligations. It appears to them to be the task of British and of American statesmen to do what can be done to alleviate this difference of view by setting out frankly and fairly the facts of the case and the policy adopted on either side. But the controversy can only be intensified if public opinion in America is guided by statements of facts in regard to their European debtors which to those debtors appear inaccurate and misleading.

Regrets Issuance of Statements.

It is for this reason that his majesty's government regret that there should have been issued, under the authority of the Secretary of the United States Treasury, a series of statements in regard to Great Britain, which for the reasons set out above, appear to them not to represent accurately or completely the facts. They trust that the United States government will take steps to remove the unfortunate impression that has been created by the issue of this statement. The position and policy of the British government in regard to these international payments is wellknown and the records are easily available; but if at any time further information is desired by the United States Treasury, his majesty's government will be happy to furnish it.

U. S. BANS DEBT CONTROVERSY AS BRITISH QUESTION MELLON

the British would receive more money from Germany than they would have to pay to the United States. In replying to the British charge that was a misstatement of fact, Mr. Mellon expresses surprise that the British have attached so much importance on an obvious typographical error which appeared in the first reports of his letter to Prof. Hibben.

The correct text quoted the Secretary as saying that countries "excepting Great Britain" were receiving more from Germany than they were paying to the United States. In the first copy the word "excepting" was inadvertently omitted, but Secretary Mellon says it should have been clear to the British government that he had excepted Great Britain because he dealt with the British situation in another part of the letter.

Incident Summarily Closed.

The State Department's reply to the British note was made public last evening and is regarded as summarily closing the incident by suggesting to the British government that the United States will not look with favor upon engaging in a diplomatic controversy over a matter of American domestic commerce. The terseness of Mr. Kellogg's reply admittedly adds another note of spice to the incident and it is for the British government to either accept the American decision as final or make the next move.

Incidentally, the State Department's reply tends to snuff out the sort of war debt discussion which the debt cancellationists have been vainly trying to start for several years, it was pointed out last night.

London Press Approves Answer by Churchill

London, May 5 (By A. P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill's reply to Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, has been received with a chorus of approval by the London morning papers, the Liberal papers indorsing it as heartily as the conservative.

One of the chief grounds for resentment here at Mr. Mellon's letter to Prof. Hibben was that it was regarded as gravely prejudicing Great Britan's relations with the European nations, as indicated by the readiness with which a section of the continental press seized on Mr. Mellon's statements as a text to attack Great Britain.

The London papers now express the hope that "this mischief" has been countered by Mr. Churchill's reply. The Liberal News, referring to this, says: "Mr. Churchill's rebuttal of this monstrous legend of a perfidious Albion could hardly have been given more trenchantly, or at the same time more courteously."

Some of the other papers lay stress on "the courteous and friendly tone of the note." The Daily Chronicle (liberal) says: "The British note does its utmost to save Mr. Mellon's face and to facilitate his making, if he will, the 'amende honorable.' One may fairly look for its frank acceptance from the United States government."

The liberal Westminster Gazette, says: "Mr. Churchill's facts and figures are supported by a cogency of argument which is all the more effective because its tone is temperate, even friendly."

The Daily Telegraph (conservative), contending that the chancellor of the exchequer "sets forth with crushing simplicity how hopelessly wrong are Mr. Mellon's figures in every particular," says: "The facts and moral considerations which moved the American professors to urge the United States to review the war debt position still remain, and in the long run may prevail."

The conservative Morning Post, denouncing Mr. Mellon's "extraordinary perversion of the truth," continues: "The British people are accustomed to bear in silence the misrepresentation of American politicians, assuming that these breaches of international amenity are merely an essential part of the vast and complicated scheme of American domestic politics.

"But Mr. Mellon went further. Whether influenced by domestic exigencies or not, he published to the world erroneous statements which we trust he will see fit to withdraw."

PARTIAL OIL INJUNCTIONS THROWN OUT IN MEXICO

Amparos Granted to Firms Must Be Told, Supreme Tribunal Rules.

LAW STILL UNDER FIRE

Mexico City, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Mexican supreme court by unanimous decision revoked today the partial amparos, or injunctions, granted by lower courts to nine foreign oil companies restraining the federal authorities from enforcing the new oil regulations.

The supreme court ruled that the district court must grant or reject amparos in totality, not in part, as had been done by the Mexico City district courts in the case of the amparos in question.

Litigation over the new Mexican oil regulations began as soon as the new law became effective, January 1 last.

Most of the amparos granted were of a provisional nature. These injunctions prevented all of the Mexican authorities, even President Calles himself, from enforcing the regulations, which the foreign oil companies considered detrimental to their properties and rights. It was the contention of the petitioners that inasmuch as their rights to properties were acquired prior to the promulgation of the Mexican constitution of 1917 their properties were not liable under article 27, which virtually declares all subterranean property to be property of the nation. The new oil law simply enforces article 27.

Under the new oil law foreign-owned oil lands for which no concessions were asked before January 1 may be assigned to other claimants.

The Mexican government so far has abstained from rigid enforcement of the statute, probably to await action by the supreme court.

The American government has held the article of the constitution confiscatory.

COOLIDGE AID LEAVES FOR VACATION SITES

President to Depend Largely on Starling's Report in Selecting Place.

(By the Associated Press.)

Col. E. W. Starling, White House secret service man, left Washington late yesterday as special envoy of President Coolidge to inspect the sites in the West which have been offered for a summer White House. Starling did not reveal his itinerary, but it is expected he will go first to Wisconsin and nearby States.

More than a score of sites in the middle West and in the region just this side of the Rocky mountains will be looked over by Starling, on whose report the President will depend largely in making a decision.

Particular attention will be given to the numerous invitations received from Wisconsin and Minnesota because of their relative nearness to Washington, but Starling will go as far West as Colorado Springs and the Black hills of South Dakota, and will include Lake Okoboji, Iowa, in his trip, which is expected to require at least two weeks.

U. S. AND CHAPLIN AGREE ON OLD TAXATION CLAIMS

SETTLEMENT KEPT SECRET

(By the Associated Press.)

The government has reached an agreement with Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, for settlement of claims against him for income taxes for years prior to 1924.

Representatives of Chaplin and the internal revenue bureau are now at work on the tax returns for 1925 and 1926, seeking to arrive at an equitable settlement.

Because the law prohibits making public the amount involved in settlements, it was said at the Treasury that the sum Chaplin would pay would not be revealed.

The internal revenue bureau began its action against Chaplin at about the time his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, brought her divorce suit. Revenue officials claimed Chaplin owed the government considerably over $1,000,000, and for a time tied up his funds to such an extent that Mrs. Chaplin was unable to gain access to them. The period for which the claims were filed covered seven years.

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—Nathan Burkan, counsel for Charlie Chaplin, commenting today on a report that Chaplin had settled with the government for part of the disputed income tax claims against him, said:

"What has happened, is that Mr. Chaplin has turned over to the government $1,300,000 to be held pending final decision of the amount which he will have to pay for the years 1917 to 1926. Originally, when the question of income tax was raised, he put up $700,000 in bonds and that amount has been increased by $600,000."

WHEELER OUT TO 'GET' ANDREWS, IS CHARGE

Association Says He Issued Report to Bring Pressure for Haynes.

(By the Associated Press.)

Asserting that it was the intention of Wayne B. Wheeler to destroy the prohibition machine created by Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment issued a statement here last night quotng a report it said Mr. Wheeler had sent to Antisaloon league superintendents to be used in bringing pressure for the permanent appointment of Roy A. Haynes as prohibition commissioner.

The report, the association said, was a comparison of the enforcement records of Haynes and Andrews. As given out it said the "downward tendency in arrests is hardly evidence of increased efficiency," and that the "decreased prosecutions of these fewer arrests in also significant."

The number of cases nolle prossed or continued had greatly increased, the report said, and it was added that "it is evident that the decentralized reorganization of the department has not produced the expected results."

MELLON DEFENDS FIGURES

SECRETARY SAYS BRITISH EXCLUDE WAR STOCKS

BRITONS TOO TECHNICAL

Statement of Secretary Mellon, yesterday, on the note from the British government:

The Treasury Department has no desire to enter into a controversy with the British government on the subject of allied war debts, but inasmuch as the British government, in an official note to the American State Department, has seen fit to challenge the facts and figures contained in a letter addressed by the American Secretary of the Treasury to the president of Princeton university, the Treasury deems it its duty to present the facts as it knows them, and to endeavor to explain existing differences.

It should be noted at the outset that the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury to President Hibben was in answer to a statement put out by members of the faculty of Princeton university urging a reconsideration of the debt settlements and was directed specifically to their arguments. It was not intended as a communication, direct or indirect, to the British government, and that government was referred to only as an incident to the general thesis therein set forth.

It should be noted in the second place that the figures in the British note are apparently used in a technical accounting sense, so that, for instance, the term "allied war debts" excludes debts for war stocks. Similarly, payments received from Germany are used in the most strictly limited sense, and do not include such items as receipts on account of army of occupation.

Not Denied by Great Britain.

While not admitting it, the British government's note does not deny that the sums specified in my letter were actually paid by the people of France, Germany, and Italy, but says in substance that some of the sums paid accrued to the benefit of the Bank of England, others to the Dominions, and apparently from our reading of their figures such items as payment for war stocks are not considered by them as accruing to the benefit of the exchequer on account of war debts.

This is the real cause of the apparent disagreement as to facts. There is no basis of comparison when, for instance, payments on account of war debts, as used by the American Treasury, include the payments on account of war stocks sold, but such an item is not included by the British under the head of war debt payments. Again, there is bound to be disagreement when the American Treasury Department, in discussing payments received from Germany, includes all payments, while the British government in answer confines itself to payments strictly on account of reparations and Belgian war debt. Under such circumstances there is not a disagreement as to facts; there is simply a failure to join issue.

But even these differences of interpretation are material only in respect of the period prior to September 1, 1928. The British government admits that, beginning on that date, assuming that the French agreement is ratified, it will receive from its own debtors and from Germany sums "sufficient to cover the current payments due to the United States goverment." This, it should be noted, is the principal point made in the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury to President Hibben and the accuracy of this point is now officially confirmed by the British government.

Exception Taken by British.

The first statement to which the British government takes exception is one advanced by me in reply to the argument that the loans made by the American government during the war should be considered as contributions to a common cause, in which I pointed out that there was merit in such a contention only if the proposed adjustment was a mutual one and to be applied on a strictly equal basis between us and our debtor nations. I pointed out that the dollars with which goods and services were purchased in this country were furnished to our associates on credit whereas the pounds with which we purchased goods and services in Great Britain were paid for in cash. I then went on to say:

"In other words, we paid cash for the goods and services necessary to enable us to make our joint contribution to the common cause. Our associates got the goods and services purchased in this country necessary to enable them to make that part of their joint contribution on credit. Here is the fundamental reason which explains why we ended the war with every one owing us and our owing no one. We are not urged to cancel these debts because it is alleged that they were incurred in a common cause, but neither abroad nor in this country has it been suggested that if this is to be done we are to be reimbursed the dollars actually expended by us in France and Great Britain so that the goods and services they sold us might constitute their contribution to the common cause."

This the British government does not deny; that we paid cash for goods and services obtained in Great Britain and that for the most part they received goods and services in this country on credit; but they say this is misleading because they used the dollars purchased by us in Great Britain for further purchases in this country. The point seems to me immaterial. The dollars they received from the American government increased their available cash resources, while the promissory notes we received did not increase our available cash resources.

Borrowed to Aid British.

For the purchases made by Great Britain in the United States dollars were furnished by the American government by borrowing from its own citizens, the British government giving its obligations to the American government for the equivalent. For purchases made by the American government in Great Britain the United States government did not borrow pounds from the British government and give its obligation to the British government, but borrowed dollars from its own citizens with which to purchase the pounds and actually paid cash to Great Britain. Had the transactions been identical in form the British government would now hold obligations of the American government to cover purchases made in Great Britain just as the American government holds obligations of the British government for purchases made in America, and obviously cancellation could not be urged on a one-sided basis. The fact that the cash employed in puchasing pounds was borrowed from American citizens and not from the British government is the distinguishing difference, and any program of cancellation which does not allow for this difference gives the United States no credit on the amount of its war debt for purchases made in Great Britain and other countries.

The British note refers to the statement in my letter to President Hibben that "all our principal debtors are already receiving from Germany more than enough to pay their debts to the United States." The Princeton and Columbia professors had stated that "we do not desire to impose tremendous burdens of taxation for the next two generations on friendly countries." My letter pointed out that in reaching the debt settlements based on the debtors' capacity to pay, only incidental consideration was given to the reparation payment to be received by the debtor countries from Germany. In other words, I pointed out that we endeavored to make settlements which the debtors could meet from their own resources without too serious a burden on their economic life. We have always claimed, and claim now, that the debts due us are in no way connected with German reparations. I then went on to point out that it now appears that all of our principal debtors are already receiving from Germany more than enough to pay their debts to the United States.

Words Inadvertently Omitted.

There was no intention to include Great Britain in the statement that enough was received from Germany alone. The British situation I covered separately later. That sentence as originally drafted contained the words "except Great Britain," but these words in the final copy were inadvertently omitted. The error was an obvious one and was corrected by the text immediately folowing. It is not believed that any injustice to Great Britain has resulted or that the British government could have been misled in view of the fact that on the page next folowing, Great Britain's position is segregated and treated separately from that of our other debtors, and in the case of Great Britain we enumerated specifically the payments to be received, stating that they will be received not only from Germany, but from France and Italy as well. I said:

"Finally, we came to Great Britain. Under the agreements with France, Great Britain will receive from France approximately $71,000,000 this year; from Italy approximately $19,000,000; from Germany approximately $72,000,000, and will pay us $160,000,000."

In the light of this very clear and definite statement, it is rather surprising that the British government should lay stress on what the context showed to be a typographical error, immediately corrected, and go to such lengths to disprove a statement which was already completely covered.

The British government also questions certain figures given as to payments received by Great Britain from France, Germany and Italy. These figures were taken from the attached table showing the estimated payments and receipts of Great Britain during a 12-year period. The figures are inclusive figures and are derived from the best sources available to the Treasury.

War Stock Payment Not Included.

I do not understand that the British government challenges the accuracy of these inclusive figures in so far as they represent amounts paid and to be paid by the peoples of Germany, Italy and France to Great Britain, but that it contends that all of these sums will not inure to the benefit of the British treasury and, therefore, can not be held to relieve the British taxpayer directly, though they unquestionably add materially to British economic resources. Even so, it is not understood why the British government apparently fails to include in its figures the payments made by the French on the debt incurred in respect of war stocks sold. From our standpoint the amount paid this year by the French government on account of the $400,000,000 of supplies sold the French government after the war constitutes a payment on account of war debts beneficial to the American Treasury.

In so far as the payments from the Bank of France to the Bank of England were concerned, they were included in the figures set out in the table, because in the report presented by M. Clementel, the French finance minister in 1924, known as the "Inventaire de la Situation Financiere de la France au Debut de la Treizeme Legislature," the statement is made that the Bank of France was simply acting as an intermediary and that the loan was made to the Bank of France for the benefit of the French government. Moreover, the published report of the finance commission of the French chamber of deputies indicates that the 1927 budget of the French government includes an item of 1,200,000,000 francs to be paid to the Bank of England under the head of reimbursements of foreign commercial debts which the treasury must meet in 1927. In this connection, carrying as it does the implication that no government was involved, the statement of the British note "that this loan was a private transaction and is not an intergovernmental debt" is not strictly accurate. It was in the light of these facts and in the absence of any official statement as to the responsibility of the British government to the Bank of England that these payments were included in my statement of international payments on account of war debts. If the British government was obligated to indemnify the Bank of England, the payments would serve to reduce a contingent liability which, if not paid by France, would become an added burden to the British taxpayer.

Professor's Statements Challenged.

But irrespective of the application of the large payments which Great Britain has received and will receive this year from the governments of Germany, France and Italy, I desire to point out that the Columbia and Princeton professors had claimed that the payments to this country would impose a tremendous burden of taxation on friendly countries for the next two generations. This is the statement which I challenged. The note of the British government makes it entirely clear that I was correct in challenging the accuracy of that statement, for whatever differences there may be as to the payments to be received and made by Great Britain in the years 1926 and 1927, the British government admits that after the 1st of September, 1928, it will receive from its debtors enough to cover current payments due to the United States government, assuming the agreement with France is ratified.

The two points most stressed by the advocates of debt cancellation are that capacity to pay is not a fair basis of settlement and that the agreements that have been negotiated will impose on those debtors with whom we were associated in the war a heavy burden over a very long period of time. What

CONTROVERSY DOMESTIC, TREASURY HEAD ASSERTS

Statements to Hibben Made as Reply to Arguments, Urging Cancellation.

BRITISH NOT IN HIS MIND

I desired to emphasize in the letter to President Hibben was that there could be no fairer measuring stick than capacity to pay liberally interpreted, and then to bring out the all-important fact, apparently overlooked, that some of our debtors have already reached the point, and others are about to reach it, where, taking into consideration all payments on account of war debts and war indemnities, our principal debtors are receiving or will receive more than they pay us.

In other words, in the near future balances on international payments resulting directly from war debts or Dawes payments will be in favor of our principal debtors. The purpose of the Hibben letter was to make this clear to the American people.

Reparations to U. S. Small.

I have in this statement confined myself to answering the criticisms of the Hibben letter contained in the British note. It seems to me wholly undesirable to enlarge the field of possible differences by commenting on other phases of the British note, and the failure to do so should not be interpreted as an agreement with all of the views therein set forth. It seems to me, however, that the reference to the share of the Dawes annuities to be received by the United States "estimated to cover its reparation claims in full," is rather unfortunate in view of the very limited claim presented by the United States on account of reparations as contrasted with those presented by our associates in the war. The payments on account of reparations which the British government is receiving are based in part on claims, such as pensions and separation allowances, of a character not included by the United States in its reparation bill.

I have no desire to comment on the statement of the policy enunciated in the British note to the effect that Great Britain will retain for herself nothing of any payments she receives in respect of either reparations or interallied war debts, but will apply all of her receipts toward payment of her liabilities to the United States.

By implication this means that should the United States further reduce British obligations to the United States the British government would cancel a like amount of obligations due to it from its debtors. It is very obvious that the British government would neither lose nor gain in such a transaction. The United States government is, however, in a very different position. The British government is both creditor and debtor. The United States is a creditor only and every dollar of debt canceled by the United States represents an increase by just that amount of the war burden borne by the American taxpayer.

Baldwin Called Liar In Labor Bill Debate

London, May 4 (By A. P.).—Sneers and peers from the labor back benchers punctuated Premier Baldwin's speech in the house of commons today in justification of the trades union bill, and at one point in the debate the lie was passed, with the prime minister as the target.

As one reason for the government's sponsoring the bill, which seeks to prevent general strikes and strikes of a coercive nature, Mr. Baldwin maintained that in some unions the power was gradually getting into the hands of what is called the minority movement. This brought labor interruption from several quarters. There were cries of "withdraw," and John Beckett, member for Gateshead, sprang to his feet and, pointing at the premier, shouted: "Admit you are a liar."

In a moment the house was in an uproar. Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, moved that Beckett be suspended, and the motion being carried, the speaker ordered suspension for five days. Beckett left the building.

Air Mail Contract Is Canceled by New

(By the Associated Press.)

Postmaster General New has canceled the air mail contract awarded November 8 to the Kaess Aircraft Engineering Corporation of Amityville, N. Y., for the Cleveland, Akron, Columbus, Dayton, Cincinnati, Louisville route. Another call for bids for the service probably will be made.

The cancellation was decided on after an investigation by the department, but the nature of the investigation was not disclosed.

Cross-Ocean Plane Scorched in Blaze

Villacoublay, France, May 4 (By A. P.).—An early morning blaze in the hangar here today barely scorched the transatlantic plane of Capt. Charles Nungesser, French war ace, who is about to start on a Paris-New York flight. Ignition of gasoline by an electric lamp, stored in tins under the plane's wings, is thought to have caused the fire. Fabric on the underside of the wings must be replaced, and it was stated that repairs could be made within a day or two.

G. O. P. TACTICIANS DECIDE UPON THREE CONGRESS POLICIES

Action on Flood Control, Farm Relief and Tax Cut Expected to Win Election.

WILL FORCE DEMOCRATS TO SUPPORT PROGRAM

Plans Will Be Studied and Definitely Outlined Before December Session.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.

Three major policies, selected and drafted so that even a hostile body such as the Seventieth Congress may prove to be, can not help but lend a hand, have been decided upon by the tacticians of the Republican party as a means of best developing the pre-election strategy of 1928.

Conferences between administration leaders of Congress with frequent contact with the White House have, it was learned yesterday, resulted in the broad outlines. The summer months will be devoted to detailed developments, so that the Republican proposals may be presented in the form of concrete and definite suggestions for legislation.

The decision accounts for the veto of an extra session, announced first by the White House, and seconded yesterday by Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas, following a breakfast conference with President Coolidge.

Perpared for Congress.

Instead the administration will come to Congress in December with plans for flood control, farm relief and tax reduction, carefully studied and fully prepared, so that whether the proposals are adopted as offered, modified or rejected, the Republican party will be able to go to the hustings upon a record calculated to have a broad political appeal, regardless of sectional lines.

The chief executive and his advisors have, it is true, been on solid ground in their decision not to bring Congress back into session. Southern leaders have ackowledged that it would not be possible to get the legislative branch of the government down to work in time to do anything that would assist in the immediate existing emergency. The fact that the membership of the Senate and House is scattered to all points of the compass is only a fraction of the problem that must be considered in connection with an extra session.

In the meantime flood control will become an administration problem. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, intends as the result of his surveys in the flooded regions to present a program, which in his opinion and that of the War Department engineers, will prevent a repetition of the devastation that took place this spring.

Strategy in Flood Control.

Flood control, instead of being a sectional issue with the river States attempting to get as much as they can from representatives of other sections, will have the full backing of the administration, and Southern Democrats will find themselves virtually forced to put their shoulders to the wheel in behalf of the Coolidge-Hoover program.

Another set of circumstances, leading to almost similar conclusions, will be involved when the farm relief question comes to the fore. Here again the administration plans to have a definite policy of its own to place before Congress, and those representatives of the agricultural States who are not entirely anti-Coolidge will be forced to choose between pulling in harness with the administration or obtaining no help for the farm element in their respective States.

Finally, in consideration of tax relief, administration leaders have engaged already in discussion of a measure with the broadest possible appeal. Income, corporation and excise tax reductions have been discussed with the various groups carrying such tax burdens, and the suggestion is that the House ways and means committee will have the outline of a measure pretty well in mind before actual work is begun.

Administration leaders already have headed off some independent movements for revenue legislation changes. Automobile producers suggested some months ago that they would be in favor of a reduction in the duty on sugar, provided that Cuba would spend increased profits so derived on road improvements and provide a more open market for motor cars.

Sugar-Motor Alliance Broken Up.

Within the past few weeks the manufacturers have announced that they no longer favored such an alliance. It is understood that the change in sentiment was caused by the broad hint that if the motor car producers abandoned any idea of tinkering with the tariff they would in all probability find Congress willing to reduce the tax on new cars, and the makers would, through such reduction, find new markets at home which might be made more profitable than any development which could take place in Cuba.

The fear of Republican leaders when the Sixty-ninth Congress adjourned was that the thoroughly hostile Senate in the coming legislative session would prevent the administration from reaping any political benefits for use in the presidential campaign. Senators and representatives were as much interested in this phase of the situation for their own sakes as for the effect it might have on the ambitions of President Coolidge.

Still in the dark as to what the ultimate decision of the chief executive will be, members of Congress now are not hesitant in acknowledging that the party as a whole will benefit if the adopted plan can be carried out and their own prospects, as well as those of President Coolidge, be furthered by its presentation to Congress.

MOFFETT DECLARES AIR MISHAPS NOT SAFETY CRITERION

NAVY HEAD EXPRESSES REGRET OVER DEATHS

Lieut. Comdr. H. B. Page's Funeral to Be Conducted at Arlington Today.

The sixteen deaths in naval aviation since April 1 are not a fair criterion of either the safety of the airplane or the efficiency of those operating them, but must be laid to the vagaries of fortune, the bureau of aeronautics held yesterday, its opinion being given following Secretary of the Navy Wilbur's request for a report as to whether the recent number of air accidents was abnormal.

Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, in response to Secretary Wilbur's request, issued a statement declaring that recent naval aviation disasters, while most regrettable, should not be considered without first making a study of the history of aviation accidents for the preceding months.

During the twelve months ended March 26, 1927, it showed, over 20,000,000 passenger miles were flown by naval planes, during which time there were nineteen deaths, or a death for every 1,000,000 miles traveled by the average aviator.

"The scouting fleet alone has just completed a cruise, during which over 750,000 passenger miles were flown and during which there was neither death nor serious injury to the personnel. During the year preceding this, planes of the fleet flew the equivalent of over eight and a half times around the world without a single forced landing. Over 3,300 landings have been made on the aircraft carrier, Langley, without ever seriously injuring an aviator. A general summation of this history will show that although recent casualties have been high, the airplane is safer today than ever before.

Wilbur Expresses Regrets.

Secretary Wilbur expressed regret over the deaths of Lieut. Comdr. Hardy B. Page and Lieut. R. V. Pollard, in Tuesday's plane crash, the former having been associated with him daily until three days prior to his death, in connection with work between the Secretary's and the judge advocate general's office with which Lieut. Comdr. Page was associated.

Secretary Wilbur said Lieut. Comdr. Page was a fine officer with a good legal knowledge. He also referred to Lieut. Pollard as one of the best aviation instructors in the service.

Asked regarding reports that the navy intended to stop stunt flying as a hazard to life, Secretary Wilbur said he knew nothing of them, explaining that the department had had the question of added safety in flying under consideration for some time but that none of the recent accidents had resulted from stunt flying.

Funeral services for Lieut. Comdr. Page will be held from the receiving vault at Arlington National cemetery this afternoon at 3 o'clock, Capt. C. H. Dickins, navy chaplain's corps, officiating.

Pallbearers will be members of the Naval Academy graduating class of the deceased in 1913. They are Commander Stuart O. Greigg, Lieut. Comdrs. Paul S. Theiss, Francis E. M. Whiting, Charles J. Parrish, Bruce G. Leighton and Lieut. Lowell Cooper. Funeral services for Lieut. Pollard are not yet completed.

the morning and afternoon and there were any number of others who wanted to go. This, despite the fact that there were clouds aplenty and intermittent rain.

Some of the planes kept to their hangars or on the theoretical chalk line during the day but it was solely because they did not want to get muddy. That is what happened to any plane that showed any animation and to any spectators that might be grouped around at the time.

Hundreds of persons who came to the field seeking flights were disappointed for there were no planes with the capacity for a circus crowd. But William B. Stout and his all-metal Ford air liner with Lieut. Harry Brooks at the helm, and Eddie Stinson, who would be arrested for one-hand driving if there were an Acting Traffic Director Eldrigde of the air, and his Stinson-Detroiter sedan, rendered yoeman service in giving rides.

As the crowd gathered and requests for flights became more pressing, the representatives of the National Aeronautical association viewed the report that anybody in the city who wanted a ride could have one as a rather broad statement.

Field officials had to do some diplomatic work, but as many were taken up as could possibly be accommodated in the brief span of a day.

The Ford all-metal air liner took eight passengers on a trip, all comfortably seated in cushioned chairs, glass screened against the flying mud and water as the big bus took off. It was hardly more of an effort for it to do this than the smaller sedan in which Eddie Stinson carried three passengers each time.

Not quite as spry as the lighter craft, it nevertheless moved with a grace that does not usually go with big things. It was turned laboriously around by simply applying the brakes to its two big rubber-tired wheels and skidded its tail into the position.

Although the field was churned into a muddy mass, the liner moved over it at high speed with assurance. This it did for a few hundred yards and then lifted easily into the air. Lieut. Brooks, the pilot, and his assistant were seated in a cabin of their own, while in the passenger compartment the guests moved about, talked easily and listened to the stories of the plane by Mr. Stout, the designer.

The Washington monument appeared not much larger than a cemetery shaft as the ship seemed to stand directly over its point, and a passenger suggested what a stunt it would be to saddle the plane astride it and then spin around.

This Stinson-Detroiter is in sharp contrast to the big air liner, both in size and the way in which it handles itself. It simply darts away from the figurative chalk-line, pauses to look up and down the field, swings its tail around and takes to the air.

Stimson don't let the time hang idly on your hands. Instead, when he gets on a nice stretch of "road" he lets the control-stick go and produces "smokes" for the crowd. Then he takes up a lively conversation.

"Nice riding this afternoon," he begins, and soon the guests are swapping yarns. Now and then Stinson will ask you to pardon him for a second while he takes off through the air to catch some other plane and pass it. He likes to say "Excuse my dust." None of this is "stunt stuff," it is emphasized.

Both of these planes are equipped with Wright whirlwind motors, as is the Fairchild cabin monoplane. This is an inclosed monoplane, whose chief characteristic is its visibility and folding wings. It carries four passengers and a pilot, yet its wings can be folded and the machine placed in a garage 12 feet wide.

Two of the planes are in use by the Department of Commerce. It has been seen frequently in Washington doing photographic work.

Police Judges Isaac B. Hitt and Gus A. Schuldt weer among the passengers of the day and there was also a large party of railroad officials and officials of the Japanese government.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. has an exhibit of propeller blades made out of ordinary canvas compressed into a noncorrosive product of metallic strength. It is known as micarta, and is to be used by the Navy Department in its training planes.

Today two pilots are expected to arrive who have only been flying two weeks. They are Robert W. Johnson and his brother, Seward, members of the surgical manufacturing firm of Johnson & Johnson. They are flying from New Brunswick, N. J., on a test flight preparatory to equipping their traveling representatives with airplanes.

BISHOP LAWRENCE URGES AGE LIMIT IN CHURCH OFFICE

Explaining Own Retirement, He Advocates Younger Men in Authority.

DIVORCE, PEACE, SACCO TRIAL ARE DISCUSSED

Massachusetts Diocesan Convention Votes Faith in Gov. Fuller.

Boston, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Massachusetts diocesan convention of the Episcopal Church today heard Bishop William Lawrence explain that his resignation of the title of bishop of the Massachusetts diocese, announced last week, was due to a lifelong belief that "old men should give way and resign office in order that young men may have full opportunity and authority." Bishop Lawrence, who is 76 years old, was elected to the office on May 4, 1893.

Divorce, the Sacco-Vanzetti case and questions of war and peace also came before the convention. The Rt. Rev. Charles L. Slattery, who, as bishop coadjutor, has had full jurisdiction over the diocese for the last two years, said that the rapid increase of divorce "threatens the best life of the nation," and that "the surest way to lessen the evils of divorce is to take all due precautions to see that the original marriage promises success before it is solemnized."

Trusts Modern Youth.

"I believe," he added, "in the young people of our day and their essential goodness."

A resolution offered by the Rev. Smith O. Dexter, of Concord, petitioning Gov. Alvan T. Fuller to review, in person or with the assistance of a committee, the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, under sentence of death for murder, was referred to a committee. The convention, without a dissenting voice, adopted a vote of confidence in Gov. Fuller.

Majority and minority reports were presented by the committee on war and peace. In the debate an amendment was offered recognizing "under present conditions the necessity of providing adequately for our national security." Finally the whole matter was tabled.

Age Limit Urged.

An age limit for the retirement of those holding high office in the Protestant Episcopal Church was urged by Bishop Lawrence in the formal announcement today of his own voluntary retirement. The bishop explained that while the press already had indicated his intention to relinquish active responsibility, his resignation would not become effective until it had been reported by Presiding Bishop John Gardner Murray and acted upon at a meeting of the house of bishops called for June 1. He said that he had long felt that old men should give way in order that the church might be administered by men in full vigor.

WRC TO PICK UP PLANE TO GROUND MESSAGES

Will Attempt to Rebroadcast Conversation From Airship Today.

FLIER WILL BE OVER CITY

As a further experiment of radio broadcasting to airplanes, station WRC at 12:10 o'clock this afternoon will endeavor to rebroadcast a 10-minute conversation between Dr. George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards, at his desk telephone, and W. B. Stout, head of the aircraft division of the Ford Motor Co., in a plane flying high over the Capital. It is hoped to bring in the conversation with sufficient volume so that Washingtonians may listen in on the two-way conversation.

Yesterday noon, in the height of a thunderstorm, William MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, talksd successfully over his desk phone with Dr. J. H. Dellinger, of the bureau of standards, the latter above the city in an airplane. It is estimated, as a result of these experiments that the present range of desk telephone to airplane communication service is about 100 miles.

Contrary to the popular impression that yesterday's performance was the first of its kind, is the fact that about August, 1924, a two-way conversation was carried on by and rebroadcast by station WRC and an army airplane in which Capt. Burdett Wright was the observer.

The utility of the arrangement was demonstrated by the thunderstorm yesterday. The occupants of the plane, strange to say, from their position high in the air to the southeast of the city, could not see the gathering storm. They were warned by Mr. MacCracken that "you had better take a tip and come down to ground," explaining that the storm, which was clearly discernible from the earth, was moving in the plane's path. Now the giving of such warnings is one of the things which the system of communication is expected to do. The storm therefore made it a perfect day.

MOSCOW WARNS PEKING NOT TO KILL RUSSIANS

Trials of Mme. Borodin and Other Prisoners Are Delayed After Stern Threat.

OTHER POWERS MAY ACT

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Peking, May 4.—The soviet today handed to Cheng Yen-Hsi, Chinese charge d'affaires at Moscow, a strong note to the effect that it had been reported that the Russians arrested in the soviet embassy raid were about to be court-martialed, and also that Mme. Borodin, wife of the soviet adviser to the Cantonese government, and the three soviet couriers recently arrested had been brought from Tsinanfu to Peking for trial. The soviet warns that should the accused persons receive the same fate as the Chinese communists, which is strangulation, Moscow will "immediately take the inevitable steps."

As a result of this note, the trial of the captives taken in the embassy raid, whose request for an American lawyer has been ignored, has suddenly been postponed, this being followed by a conference of the military, judicial and foreign office officials.

It is understood the court contemplated a speedy trial, followed immediately by a trial of the Yangtze captives, with sentences suspended and deportation, but Moscow's threat has caused the officials to reconsider.

In the meantime, the protocol powers who protested against the communist executions may protest in the Russians' behalf.

Hongkong, May 4 (By A. P.).—With the arrival here today of the American passenger and freight steamer, President Lincoln, it was learned that plans are being dicussed for placing armed guards and machine guns on all Dollar line steamers touching at Shanghai.

This step is being considered because of the firing on the President Lincoln from the native city of Shanghai May 1, while the vessel was bound from the harbor for the sea on the way to Hong kong.

Shanghai, May 4 (By A. P.).—Indiscriminate firing on British warships on the Yangtse river continues. The gunboat Cockchafer was under rifle fire today near Nanking while convoying steamers, but there were no casualties. The destroyer Wanderer was fired on with rifles at Kiangyiu, a member of the crew being slightly wounded. Both warships returned the fire.

London, May 4 (By A. P.).—Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, was asked in the house of commons today what prospects there were for resumption of foreign business in the Wuhan cities (Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang), Hupeh province, China.

He replied that British Representative Newton in Hankow reported that Foreign Minister Eugene Chen, of the Hankow nationalist government had expressed the anxious wish for restoration of economic life and cooperation of the foreign firms. There were two obstacles, however; first, the nationalist prohibition of silver shipments, which had caused the suspension of the reopening of foreign banks, and second, the general unsecurity and fear of extremist violence.

MINE CREWS BATTLE GAS IN SEEKING DEAD

Five More Bodies Found in Everettville Pit; 65 Still Unaccounted For.

Fairmont, W. Va., May 4 (By A. P.).—Stubbornly resisting every step forward of rescue workers, the Everettville mine yielded only five more of its entombed dead today. The result of the day's exhausting labor in the fire and gas filled tunnels brought the known dead in the disaster to 29 and strengthened the conviction of mine experts that the remaining 65 men, unaccounted for in the mine, were killed by the explosion last Saturday.

An advance of only 600 feet was made during the day by the rescue crews in their search for the victims, with ill-fated mine fighting back with deadly gases, threatening another explosion.

The bodies recovered were encountered late in the day in one of the main entries about 4,600 feet from the pit mouth. Four of them were found in the wreckage of the dispatcher's shanty, near the fire zone. The fifth man was found about 140 feet distant.

TOWN'S ROOFS RUINED BY BIG HAILSTONES

Merchants in Sallisaw, Okla., Report Stocks Damaged in Storm.

Sallisaw, Okla., May 4 (By A. P.).—A hail storm followed by more than 5 inches of rain, last night destroyed roofs on a third of all buildings here and broke hundreds of windows, causing damage esimated at more than $400,000, a survey revealed today.

Hail stones more than an inch in diameter fell 20 minutes. Roofs on business houses, as well as residences, were punctured. Some merchants said 90 per cent of their stocks were damaged by water, while many persons reported the interior, as well as the exterior, of their homes wrecked. Trees were stripped of foliage and gardens leveled.

Sallisaw, county seat of Sequoyah county, has a population of approximately 3,000.

PRESIDENT OF CHILE, "ON LEAVE," RESIGNS

Action Follows Forcing Out of Brother as Court Head by the Premier.

Santiago, Chile, May 4 (By A. P.).—Emilio Figueroa-Larrain, president of Chile, sent his resignation today to the president of the senate. He gave ill health as the reason.

In agreement with Premier Ibanez, congress was called in extraordinary session to discuss this latest development in the Chilean political situation, which has been acute for some time.

Brother love may have been the underlying cause of President Figueroa's resignation. Premier Ibanez had demanded the resignation of Javiet Figueroa, president of the supreme court, for alleged meddling, but the chief executive refused. Insistence by the premier, however, prompted President Figueroa to obtain a two-months' leave of absence, thus permitting Gen. Ibanez to assume the vice presidency and the executive power and remove the justice.

When going on his leave of absence President Figueroa, broken in health and spirit, withdrew to his farm in the interior, while the brother, deprived of his judicial office, went to Europe.

Thompson Is Called Into Mexican Court

Mexico City, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Yucatan district court has summoned Edward H. Thompson, former United States Consul at Merida, to appear within three days in connection with the suit against him for sending to the United States Mayan Archeological treasures found in a sacred well at Chichenitza.

Last October the district judge at Merida ordered the attachment of the Yucatan property of Mr. Thompson, including his hacienda at Chichenitza, which contains Mayan ruins. According to the reports at that time it was the intention of the Merida authorities to hold the property pending settlement of the charges that he sent valuable archeological treasures to American museums in contravention of Mexican law.

Exponent of Culture Of India Gives Speech

Coming here to found a school of Vedic culture, Jagadish Chandra Chatterji, of India, last night spoke before a gathering in the home of Mrs. Campbell Forrester, 1700 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

The lecturer will give another address at Mrs. Forrester's home at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, taking as his subject "Moses' Vision of God as Fire Burning in a Bush," giving the Hindu version and interpretation of the story.

MRS. W. H. RAYMOND DIES.

Wife of Colonel, Who Once Lived in Washington, Was in Philippines.

A cablegram telling of the death May 1 of Mrs Beatrice Cottrell Raymond, wife of Col. William Henry Raymond, U. S. A., assigned to the Philippines, has been received here. Mrs. Raymond lived in Washington for several years when her husband was attached to the War college and at Fort Washington. Mrs. Raymond, a native of Kentucky, was the niece of Mrs. Thomas Cruse and of Mrs. Ida Cottrell Hodgson.

Besides the husband Mrs. Raymond is survived by two children—Miss Ida Louise Raymond and William Henry Raymond, jr. The body will be brought to the United States for burial in Arlington National cemetery.

SERVICES TOMORROW FOR FRANCIS S. HILL

Practiced Law in Capital for More Than 30 Years.

Funeral services for Francis Snowden Hill, 73 years old, who practiced law in Washington for more than 30 years, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at St. Mary's Catholic church, Upper Marlboro. Burial will be in Mt. Carmel cemetery. Mr. Hill died Tuesday night in Garfield hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Hill was a member of the old law firm of Hill, Mattingly & Rogers, of this city, and for many years was prominent in Maryland politics. He was collector of internal revenue in Baltimore before starting in practice in Washington about 35 years ago. He retired five years ago.

Born near Upper Marlboro, Md., Mr. Hill was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill and was a direct descendant of prominent early Maryland settlers, including Clement Hill, the first colonial surveyor general in Maryland. His mother was a member of the Snowden family of Mountpelier, Md. He also was a descendant of the Carroll family. He studied at Georgetown university and later at the University of Louvain, Belgium, from both of which he received law degrees. The last few years he had resided in Upper Marlboro, but recently came to Washington, where he resided at 2024 Klingle road. Mr. Hill is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ida Bowie and Mrs. Nelson Jarboe, of Upper Marlboro, and six nieces and a nephew.

Ernest R. Ball Dies; Was Song Writer

Santa Ana, Calif., May 4 (By A. P.). Ernest R. Ball, composer of "Mother Machree" and many other popular songs, died here late last night from a heart attack as he was preparing to leave a vaudeville theater, where he had finished an engagement. He was in his dressing room when stricken.

The composer, whose songs have stirred the hearts of the last generation, had told Santa Ana friends he was not feeling well. After his last appearance on the stage, Ball retired to his dressing room and chatted a few minutes with E. D. Yost, theater manager, and then died.

MRS. ANNA W. LUKEI RITES.

Resident, 86, Was Member of Relief Corps and G. A. R. Ladies.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna W. Lukei, 86 years old, who died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry A. Fox, 58 V street northwest, will be held at the residence tomorrow at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Rock Creek cemetery.

The Rev. George Hines, pastor of the Congress Street Methodist Protestant church, in which Mrs. Lukei was married in 1861, will officiate. He will be assisted by the Rev. R. Y. Nicholson, pastor of the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant church.

Mrs. Lukei was a native of this city. She was a member of the George H. Thomas Woman's Relief corps and the McKinley circle, G. A. R. Ladies. She is survived by two sons and four daughters. She was the widow of Andrew J. Lukei.

THE NOTE FROM BRITAIN.

It is regrettable that the war debt question should have come to the front at this time, when other questions, notably a difference of policy in dealing with China, engross the attention of the British and United States governments. The British note to Secretary Kellogg, controverting statements made by Secretary Mellon in his letter to President Hibben of Princeton, is courteously expressed, and doubtless it was deemed necessary by the British government to give its views at this time, but it can not be expected that the new discussion will result in a change of opinion on the part of Secretary Mellon or the United States government.

The two points mentioned by Secretary Mellon, to which the British government takes exception, were as follows: First, that while the allied powers were obtaining credit from the United States with which to purchase supplies here, the United States was not obtaining credit from them, but made purchases outright, in pounds and francs; and that neither the allies nor the United States had made any suggestion that the United States should be reimbursed for the cash outlay it had made in those countries, although there is an insistent demand in certain quarters for cancellation of the obligations incurred by the allies in this country. Second, that Great Britain is receiving, or soon to receive, more from reparations and war debt payments than she will pay to the United States.

In regard to the first point, the British government states that it was not the beneficiary of purchases made by the United States in Britain; that the transactions were not between the two government, as was the case in the war loans to the allies. Regarding the second point, the British government states that it is paying more than it is receiving from reparations and payments by its debtors. It admits that if the German reparation payments are maintained it will soon be receiving more than it will be paying to the United States, but it insists that if it receives from its debtors more than it is required to pay to the United States, it will scale down its debtors' payments accordingly. It maintains that it is not seeking to collect more than is required to pay its debt to the United States.

In addition to this, the British government reminds Secretary Kellogg that its taxpayers are paying off the amounts borrowed from Britain by the allies, as well as the obligations incurred by the British government for war purposes before the United States entered the war.

The controversy deals with gigantic figures and complicated transactions, which the average citizen can not be expected to understand. Unfortunately, the exchange of notes on the subject does not tend to enlighten the public or promote good feeling. The original suggestion of debt cancellation was mischievous in the extreme, and all suggestions having cancellation as the basis of settlement tend toward confusion and irritation. Cancellation is not only hopeless, but the suggestion is offensive. The British government is not culpable on that score. It has never hinted cancellation, and no doubt it appreciates the fact that irresponsible cancellation talk has placed it in an embarrassing position.

Secretary Mellon, in putting a quietus upon the cancellationists, could not have had in mind misrepresenting the debt situation or wounding the feelings of the British government. The friendship of the two nations can not be destroyed. It is a pity that any difference of opinion should have arisen.

RATHER FISHY.

According to the discoveries made by the tariff commission it costs 2.3 cents more per pound to put a lake trout into the market in New York, if that fish was caught in a net in American waters, than the cost of putting a Canadian fish into the same market.

The commission has been engaged in investigating the relative cost of catching and marketing fish in the two countries. It has found that the consumption of fish caught in the Great Lakes and the Canadian northern lakes in 1924 was 79,000,000 pounds, of which 65 per cent might be designated as native American and 35 per cent of foreign origin.

The 27,000,000-odd pounds of Canadian fish which found their way into American markets, principally New York and Chicago, paid duty at the rate of 1 cent a pound. But the American fishmen are not satisfied with the cent-a-pound duty and want more protection. This accounts for the investigation by the commission, which has found that, owing to higher wages paid to American crews of the fishing boats, it costs from a fraction of a cent to several cents more to market all kinds of lake fishes caught by the "Yankees" than it costs to sell those caught by the other fishermen.

The commission has also found that there are no fewer than 154 different species of fish swimming in the Great Lakes, but there are only 15 varieties which are worthy of consideration from the tariff standpoint. They are whitefish, lake trout, ciscoes, blue pike, yellow pike, yellow perch, lake herring, chubs, tullibees, jacks, suckers, saugers and sheepshead.

All fish look alike to the customs authorities, and the duty is the same on all kinds. Owing to the fact that there is such a wide difference in the market value of the different varieties, the commission indicates in its report that it might be well in framing a new tariff act to consider the desirability and practicability of differentiating between the species, and perhaps to give consideration to the advisability of substituting ad valorem for specific duties. There would appear to be good reasons for such action when it is remembered that the wholesale price of whitefish sometimes reaches 30 cents per pound, while herring are often sold for one-tenth of that figure and even less than that.

THE AIR DEATH ROLL.

The deaths of Lieut. R. V. Pollard and Lieut. Comdr. Hardy B. Page in an airplane crash at Norfolk, Va., brought the number of fatalities in the naval air service up to ten within the last two weeks. An officer and two enlisted men were killed just six days previously when their plane crashed into Chesapeake bay after it had been struck in the air by lightning. Two days before the two officers who were to have piloted the American Legion on a transatlantic hop were killed while making a test flight. On April 21 two naval student aviators lost their lives when their plane nose dived into Hampton Roads.

It is only natural that the public has asked the question, "What is the matter?" Unfortunately, the answer is not easy to find. Overloading may have been the cause in one case; an unforeseen stroke of the elements was the cause in another. The remaining two cases seem inexplicable, however, for the planes apparently got out of control for no apparent cause.

It is unfortunate that these accidents should have occurred at a time when the eyes of the nation are turned toward aviation, for every crash diminishes public confidence in air travel. Yet all setbacks will be but temporary, for the greater problems of human flight have been solved, and means will be found to make flight as safe as other means of rapid locomotion.

No doubt every air accident is carefully studied by the experts, in order to eliminate the causes, so far as is humanly possible.

NEW YORK'S OFFICIAL SNOOPERS.

All the investigating now going on by legislative committees is not confined to congressional snoopers. The State of New York has set a very fair task for its legislative committees for the season of 1927, and has provided liberally for their expenses.

The much discussed Baumes law is one of the subjects upon which further light is desired. The commission charged with the duty of shedding that light has $50,000 at its disposal with which to carry on its inquiries. Just how to handle the question of controlling the tenement houses in the big city, as well as in such other municipalities as Buffalo and Rochester, is committed to the tenement house law committee, and $25,000 may be expended by that body in the course of its inquiries. This particular line of investigation is made necessary through the failure of the legislature up to the present time to find an antidote for the orders of Mayor Walker with reference to the use of cooking appliances in certain apartment hotels and tenements.

Fifteen thousand dollars has been appropriated to cover the expenses of another commission that is directed to investigate the defects in the law of estates and to suggest remedial legislation.

Another committee to investigate the necessity for broadening the scope of savings bank investments has an allowance of $20,000 for its expenses, and still another committee to "examine into the question concerning labor and capital" will deplete the funds in the State treasury to the extent of $25,000, if it expends all that it is authorized to draw, and few junketing commissions fail to do that very thing.

Altogether the fourteen commissions will cost the State $204,500 for travel expenses, hotel bills and incidentals. New York State is liberal in such matters, and the fact that little of value ever comes from such summer activities of her lawmakers arouses no particular protest on the part of the taxpayers. It may be, however, that this habit of "investigating" accounts for the repeated refusals of the voters to ratify the constitutional amendment that aims at increasing the legislative salaries.

GOV. DONAHEY'S BREAKS.

For a man who is looked upon as a presidential possibility, Gov. Donahey of Ohio has made some queer, and possibly serious, mistakes. When he attended the Sesquicentennial exposition in Philadelphia on Ohio day last summer he was waited upon by a committee with an invitation to visit New York. His reply to the invitation brought out the unusual fact that the governor of Ohio had never so much as set foot within the boundaries of New York city, nor had he the slightest inclination to do so. In short, Gov. Donahey led his would-be hosts to believe that in his opinion the metropolis of the Empire State was no fit place for a decent, moral, law-abiding citizen of the republic.

Now it seems that Gov. Donahey has taken a decided stand against golf. Some time ago the Ohio legislature passed a bill permitting municipalities to condemn and appropriate land upon which to build municipal golf courses. The governor has vetoed the bill because golf is in "no sense a game for the general public." In addition, he said:

> The public need for parks is readily understood. Nobody questions the necessity for children's playgrounds. Parks, market places and playgrounds are established for the benefit of the people and are used by so many as to plainly justify the expenditure of public funds for their purchase.
> The game of golf, however, is indulged in by comparatively few, and these few usually are able-bodied or well-to-do-men. Few women play. It is distinctly not a children's game.

Gov. Donahey could not have asked the advice of practical politicians before he made this statement, any more than he could have had the benefit of counsel before he disparaged New York. Nor does it seem that he ever could have visited a municipal golf course, crowded always to capacity by individuals of all ages and of both sexes. As it is, his opponents now have ammunition with which to assault him. New York city too wicked for honest people? Golf a rich man's game, in no sense for the general public? What manner of words are these, from an individual supposed to be currying popular support? Did the governor overlook the fact that even the farmer of today is not adverse to a trip to the metropolis, and is no longer uninformed as to the definition of the words putter, niblick and tee?

THE VARE-WILSON CONTEST.

The country has not failed to note that the Pennsylvania legislature adjourned without taking cognizance of the Vare-Wilson senatorial controversy or the question of excessive campaign expenditures. Apparently the legislature took it for granted that Mr. Vare had been elected and that the Reed "slush fund" committee was merely playing politics.

There are four Democratic senators and seventeen Democratic members of the Pennsylvania house. It is rather remarkable that not a voice was raised among them in behalf of William B. Wilson in his contest against Vare. Naturally, the question is asked: If it be true that Vare's followers stuffed ballot boxes and stole the election from Wilson, why did not Wilson's party colleagues in the legislature enter a protest and demand an investigation? But there was no protest and no demand for an inquiry.

The subject of excessive campaign expenditures does not seem to have aroused comment in the Pennsylvania legislature, although the attention of the whole country was turned to the Pennsylvania primary expenditures by Pinchot, Vare and Pepper and their associates.

No bill was offered for the reform of primary elections or other elections.

What does all this mean? Are the Democrats in the Pennsylvania legislature convinced that Wilson has no case? Are they satisfied that Vare was duly elected?

THE WAR MEMORIAL.

Only 2,000 citizens have so far sent in contributions to the $140,000 fund necessary to erect the District memorial to those who died in the line of duty during the late war. Only $18,000 has been raised in a city of half a million population, the only municipality which has not as yet erected a suitable monument to its war dead. It can not be that Washington has forgotten, that within ten short years the memory of sacrifices made has become dim. What other explanation, however, can be offered?

Ten years ago last month war was declared. Ten years ago today Washington was a beehive of industry, sweating, toiling and planning in order that an army might be assembled for transport overseas. Thousands of boys were experiencing their first feel of khaki and blue. The Red Cross was preparing for its tasks of mercy. Factories, institutions, transportation and commerce were rapidly being turned over to the serious job of the moment—prosecuting a war. Has Washington forgotten those stirring days?

The domed memorial will stand in Potomac park for all time in honor of Washington's 535 gold star heroes. Every one should have a share in its construction. It is only by filling the fund full to overflowing that the National Capital can prove to itself that it still remembers the sacrifices of 1917 and 1918.

PASSPORTS FOR CANADIANS.

As the Department of Labor interprets the law there is a wide difference in the privileges extended to a native of the Dominion of Canada and like privileges granted to a naturalized citizen of the Dominion. The State Department and the Department of Labor recently reached an understanding by which natives of Canada are permited to come and go at will across the border without the necessity of exhibiting passports or consular visas. But if the traveler happens to have been born outside the Dominion and has passed through the process of naturalization he is required to exhibit a visa, which must be periodically renewed.

It is only within a comparatively recent period that any restrictions whatever have been placed upon the passage of the nationals of one country into the territory of the other, and the imposition of these restrictions has caused a great deal of friction. The latest ruling in reference to passports has started a storm of protest which will culminate this week in the arrival of the mayor of Windsor, Canada, and a party of interested Canadians who are coming to consult Minister Massey with the idea of bringing about a better understanding and, of possible, an agreement which will remove the causes of complaint.

It is felt by the residents on both sides of the border that with the opening of the new peace bridge, which spans the Niagara river at Buffalo, and the later erection of the proposed highway bridge across the Detroit river between Detroit and Windsor, the friendly relations which have existed for more than a century between the two countries should not be placed in jeopardy just as the physical connections between the two are about to become more firmly bound.

ONE-EYED.

A University of Pittsburgh psychologist has made the discovery that 85 per cent of the population is one-eyed—that is, uses one eye more than the other. In a test with young men and women as subjects, it was discovered that 89 were right-eyed, 32 left-eyed and 24 undecided. The discovery, however, need cause no alarm, for probably it is just as well that the greater proportion of the population does not have full vision.

One often has heard, particularly of children, that this person or that sees more than is good for him. Eighty-five times out of a hundred, according to the new theory, the person spoken of is one-eyed. If he sees too much under this circumstance, it would be worse if he made equal use of both eyes. Almost every day additional evidence is discovered that a kindly Providence has taken care of all matters. The 85 per cent who are afflicted with one-eyed vision probably see just as much as the 15 who are not handicapped, and anyway, "what they do not see can not hurt them."

The cost of a very small war would dike the Mississippi safely, but people wouldn't get "patriotic" about the prosaic business of saving life.

The Latest Demonstration of Television.

PRESS COMMENT.

Isn't It Wonderful?

Kansas City Times: At last Switzerland has made its peace with the soviet government over the assassination at Lausanne four years ago of the soviet envoy to an international conference. Heretofore the Swiss government has been ready only to offer "formal disavowal," and "sincere regrets," while Moscow insisted on "absolute disavowal" and "exceeding regrets." Now the Swiss federal council has changed from "formal" to "absolute" and from "sincere" to "exceeding."

In view of this handsome concession the soviet consents to be again represented at international conferences held in Switzerland, and it may even join the league.

Isn't diplomatic language wonderful?

Perhaps.

New York Evening Post: Now that the poultry trade has a czar, perhaps there will be an answer to the question of which comes first, the hen or the egg.

The Greatest Enemy of All.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The inventor of television is credited with inventing "noctovision." He made the discovery accidentally, we are told. In "televising" a motion picture of a boy smoking a cigarette, he noticed that the smoke was as transparent as air to the rays. From this he came to the conclusion that his "owl eye" could penetrate smoke or fog. The theory is soon to have a practical test.

If the experiment is successful it will point the way to ending the chief peril which a stanch and well-found ship has to fear at sea. Seldom is such a vessel wrecked by any stress of weather. Fog is the real enemy. The navigator can not see, nor can he hear with absolute precision. If by "noctovision" he can penetrate the thickest of weather, the element of danger at sea will be as nearly eliminated as human skill can do it.

Good Advice.

Rochester Times-Union: Spade your garden early, when the worms won't be such a temptation.

Related Facts?

Florence Herald: The output of pumps increased 29 per cent in the United States during 1926, which was also a banner year for the milk business.

Poor Fellow.

Indianapolis News: If his neighbors raise hogs, a champion hog caller's life must be full of misunderstandings.

Why Continue It?

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: The Supreme Court throws out the suit of the Federal Trade Commission to compel the alleged millers trust to show its books. "Why the trade commission, then?" is a natural question. Without the power to examine records such a body helps precious little in the enforcement of the Sherman law or any other statute.

Ask Us Another.

Philadelphia Record: Strange, how the lowly dandelion has altered its position in the world. Formerly the despised principal among all despised weeds, it was hunted high and low, ejected from lawns, cursed out of gardens, discouraged even in the meadows. Only the children, who were not sufficiently civilized to scorn the plant for its fertility and who saw only the beauty of its gold, welcomed the dandelion's spring flowering. But somewhere in the years a change has occurred. Roads leading countryward bear processions of automobiles, each with several empty potato baskets stowed away, all en route to the bright spots where dandelions are found in quantities. There the passengers pile out and harvest a mighty crop. One might suspect the gathering of dandelion greens for a piquant spring salad, and, by the way, the plant has even got into the seed catalogues as an edible green. But the fact is that those potato baskets all go back to town with a load of blossoms only. What do these people do with their harvest when they carry it down to the cellar where, when they return to the peace of their homes, all is still?

Style.

Philadelphia Ledger: Lace cuffs and silken breeches are being urged for spring and summer wear upon the mighty men of England. The London tailors have "decreed" the thrilling departure from accepted routine. And in tailoring the English claim preeminence. Let us stop for a terrible moment and contemplate this thing.

When trousers became longer, skirts grew short. When trousers began to flap in the breeze, skirts became skimpier and skimpier. Women insist on such contrasts. If men wear lace and silken trousers in England, the last ribbon and the last bit of embroidery will probably disappear from the feminine costume.

What was the name of the philosopher who told us all to shudder and prepare for the end when men became gentle and women became brave?

Not to Be Outdone.

New York Telegram: Berlin cable says the Elbe and the Oder have overflowed their banks. Probably out of compliment to the Father of Waters.

Modern Bad Men.

A Few Short Years Ago.

Richmond Times-Dispatch: In these good days of scientific aviation it is hard to realize that we used to call every man who went up in a balloon "professor."

Good Sign.

New York Evening World: The English press is not satisfied with the American policy in China—which is reassuring.

World Domination.

Trenton State Gazette: We're still leading the world by a wide margin. England during the last year had 22 grade-crossing fatalities, France 23, and the United States over 2,200.

When December Marries May

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As all the world knows, there is danger in the mating of an old man and a young girl.

It may not be, as the cynics say, that she is unprincipled and avaricious, and married him in expectation of enduring torture for a little while in order to get his wealth.

Perhaps she respected him; was awed by his superiority; thought she loved him.

But matrimony is the greatest of coeducational institutions, and in a little while both parties to the contract will see the truth.

He, having married her to keep in touch with that lost youth for which he yearned, will discover that her knowledge and wisdom are much less than his; and having learned to value these things highly, he will low-rate her for her lack of them.

She, overflowing with vitality and possessed of a great capacity for enjoyment of tinsel pleasures, will feel that she has bartered away her youth and will feel cheated.

If she is one kind of girl, she will sacrifice honor and go to the devil with young friends; if she is another kind she will slacken her pace to keep time with his faltering feet and feel a martyr.

He, finding her incapable of intellectual companionship, will feel cheated; and if he is a small-minded man he will be full of jealousies and reproaches.

The whole truth is that, without sacrifice that is hateful, there can be no compatability between one whose delight is to sit at home in slippered ease and one whose abundant vitality forever urges her to be on the wing.

There have been successful marriages of this kind, but they were between very exceptional men and very exceptional girls.

Nature's way is for girls and boys to mate while both are pliant, while the convictions and habits of both are in the making, and grow up together.

And when you attempt to interfere with nature's way, you invite disaster.

Mates need not enjoy the same things, but if one enjoys sitting and the other enjoys running, only a high sense of duty can keep them out of the divorce court—and the high sense of duty dooms them to one of the most hateful forms of martyrdom known to man.

Youth loves in spite of itself, without counting the cost; age loves with grim calculation, its eyes on the profit.

Youth is springtime, and spring is the time of mating. How tragic it would be if nature should let her December snows fall on the flowers of May! How quickly the snows would become slush! How quickly the flowers would wither!

Another good memory test is to recall all the pastes that are best for your teeth.

Correct this sentence: "The church members divided on the question," said he, "but neither side said anything insulting."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Beautify the School Grounds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is pleasing to note that Architect Harris is urging the beautifying of school grounds. There is one trouble in the way: You cannot have a playground and a flower garden on the same piece of ground. A playground is a necessity. Children must play; it is a part of their natural inheritance. It is necessary for their health. So, a playground is the first consideration, but still much might be done for beauty. Beautiful surroundings will make the children more contented, and in addition will cultivate in them a love for the beautiful that will follow them when they have a home of their own.

A few years ago in one of the smaller cities of the Middle West the school superintendent began an agitation for beautifying the school grounds. The high school building was set in a large tract. The superintendent of that school divided the ground into several sections, assigning one to the geography class, another to the grammar class, and a third to the higher mathematics class, offering a premium to the class that would produce the most beautiful results. That little city soon became noted for its beautiful school grounds, and drew visitors from other and larger cities. I recall that one section was assigned to the juniors of the school, and they decided to use it as a vegetable garden, planting several kinds of vegetables. It was a premium section both for its usefulness and for its beauty, for they bordered the vegetable plat with a selection of rose bushes.

Why not adopt some such plan here, thereby developing individuality in the school children? The competition would be keen, and its after results on the individual child would be a blessing. By all means beautify the grounds, surround the buildings with flowers and shrubs; fill the windows with potted plants, at the same time teaching botany through object lessons.

HENRY ABBOTT.

If War Were Abolished.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There seems to be much talk of the Tinkham resolution requesting the President to call another conference at The Hague, or to accept an invitation to such a conference, to consider the formulation and adoption by the nations of a body of international law, by means of which many disputes leading to war and bloodshed could be eliminated. The populace has heard so much of these "plans" to end war that they have become almost nauseated at its sound.

I am neither pacifist nor militarist, but under the present "plan," if it had not been for war, famine, flood, fire and disease, we would not be here to tell the tale.

The great plan of men of these times seems to be to devise means to prevent death. What if all wars were abolished; all disease conquered; and all famine and flood stamped out and all men could live to a wabbly old age? The world would become so full, at the present birth rate of something like 70 or 80 per minute, with the death rate something like 68 per minute, that means would have to be formulated to rid the world of some of its people. The natural thing for the world to then do would be to revert to wars and disease.

I know of no proposition the humane purpose of which is so full of the hues of tenderness, sweetness and charm than a plan to end war. It is a praiseworthy undertaking. But wars can not end; plagues can not be conquered; flood, famine and fire can not cease, because it seems to be the divine will!—and why? If we are unfortunate enough to be born we must submit to all the hardships the world compels us to accept if we live.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS

MRS. COOLIDGE will hear the jubilee singers of the Fiske university tomorrow, when she will receive them at 15 Dupont circle.

The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard, accompanied by Mr. Henry L. d'A. Hopkinson, third secretary of the embassy, who are touring in the West are now at the Grand Canyon.

The Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Tellez entertained at a large reception last evening at the embassy for delegates to the Pan-American and world welfare conferences. The Ambassador and Senora de Tellez received the guests, assisted by Dr. Leo Rowe. The rooms of the embassy were decorated with roses, lilies of the valley and spring blossoms. A canvas was spread over the terrace at the side of the embassy and red, white and green electric lights were strung. A Hawaiian orchestra played on the terrace and another orchestra played in the music room for dancing. Among the guests, who numbered nearly a thousand, were chiefs of missions, members of the diplomatic corps and members of official and resident society.

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla, with their daughters, Senorita Rosa Padilla and Senorita Maria Padilla, and their son, Senor Alvaro Padilla, are in New York. They are expected to return today.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Curtis D. Wilbur, returned yesterday from New York, where he went to attend the dinner given by Mayor Walker in honor of Admiral Charles F. Hughes, commander of the United States fleet. Secretary Wilbur was accompanied by his aid, Capt. Halsey Powell.

The Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Sanchez Latour entertained at dinner last evening in honor of the delegates from Guatemala to the Pan-American conference. Their guests were: The Minister of Egypt and Mme. Samy Pasha, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora Morales, the Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Paraguay and Mme. Ramirez, the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Everett Sanders, Representative Stephen G. Porter, the Consul General in Chicago and Mrs. Brower, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schlubach, Mr. Ricardo Vasquez, Mrs. Hochspepper and Miss Snow.

The Minister of Panama and Senora de Alfaro entertained at dinner last evening at the legation in honor of the former Ambassador of Peru and Mme. Pezet, and the delegates from Panama to the Pan-American conference.

The Minister of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Fierlinger, entertained at luncheon Tuesday in honor of the retiring Minister of Latvia and Mme. Seya, and the newly appointed American Military Attache to Prague and Mrs. Hicks. There were fourteen guests. The Minister and Mme. Seya departed yesterday and will sail Saturday on the Olympic for Europe.

The Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom entertained at dinner last evening, when some of the members of the diplomatic corps were present.

Mme. Schlimpert, wife of the secretary of the German embassy, is in Virginia, where she is the guest of Mrs. G. P. Blow at the latter's estate, York Hall.

Gen. Villa to Depart.

The military attache of the Italian embassy, Brig. Gen. Augusto Villa, will depart tomorrow evening for San Antonio, Tex., to attend the army maneuvers. On his return trip he will stop at Fort Leavenworth, Fort Sill and Fort Riley, and will arrive in Washington June 1, when he will reopen his apartment at the Wardman Park hotel.

Mr. Edouard de Streel, the newly appointed second secretary of the Belgian embassy, arrived yesterday from New York.

Mrs. J. Butler Wright, wife of the American Minister to Hungary, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Alvin T. Hert entertained at luncheon yesterday at her apartment.

Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, wife of the chief of staff, U. S. A., was the honor guest at luncheon yesterday of Mrs. J. E. Fechet, who entertained at the Army and Navy club. The other guests were Mrs. Mason Patrick, Mrs. Graham Kilner, Mrs. Archie Miller, Mrs. Harry A. Smith, Mrs. Thomas Hammond, Mrs. James Mars, Mrs. Karrick, Mrs. C. F. Mitchell, Mrs. John N. Smith, Mrs. Lawrence Richey, Mrs. James Councilor, Mrs. J. T. Marchand, Mrs. Virgil Miller, Mrs. O. O. Oliver, Mrs. Charles Seals and Mrs. Theodore Tiller.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Read, of Cardiff, England, who are touring in the United States, are passing several days at Carlton hotel.

Among the entertainment features planned for the conference of the National Democratic Women's Law Enforcement league will be the first showing in Washington of the Woodrow Wilson film memorial at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the ballroom of the Mayflower hotel, and which, through the courtesy of the organization, will be open to the public. Mrs. Fannie Shreve Heartsill will sing.

On Saturday evening the banquet of the conference will be held at the Mayflower hotel. There will be a program of speeches by prominent Democratic men and women and music by the George Washington University Glee club. Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson will preside. Speakers will be former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma; Mr. Huston Thompson, of Washington and Colorado; State Senator Belle Kearney, of Mississippi, and Mrs. Edward Thurman Smith, of St. Louis, member of the Missouri State legislature. Prominent guests at the banquet will be the delegates from the States, including Mrs. John H. Ireland, of Florida, sister of Representative Oldfield; Mrs. D. McNeill Turner, of Corpus Christi, Tex.; Mrs. Frank L. Ball, wife of State Senator Ball, of Virginia; Mrs. Epha M. Marshall, of Chicago; Mrs. J. L. Yancey, of Alabama; Mrs. Mary P. Bang, of Tennessee; Dr. Jennie M. Callfas, of Nebraska, national Democratic committeeman for that State; Mrs. Charlton Dunn, of Mississippi; Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, of Virginia; Mrs. Blanche E. Mize, of Kansas; Mrs. J. E. Andrews, of Georgia; Mrs. J. J. Ross, of Houston, Tex., and Mrs. William Tilton, of Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Van Buskirk, of Bayonne, N. J., are passing several days at the Carlton hotel.

Reception for Corps.

A reception to the diplomatic corps of Washington was an important social event of yesterday's program for the world welfare conference of the Women's Universal Alliance, which is in session at the Carlton hotel. The reception, which was from 4 to 6 o'clock, was held in the patio of the hotel, the balconies of which have been draped with flags of all nations for the conference.

An additional note is given by the paintings in oils and water colors which have been hung on the walls of the patio in connection with the art exhibition arranged by Mrs. Franklin Barber Clark and Mrs. William Fitch Kelley.

Mrs. Clarence Crittenden Calhoun, president of the alliance, received, assisted by the members of the committ-

"Surprised!"

"It seems like every few days I have a surprise—find new uses for the delightful Black and White Cold Cream," says attractive Miss Helen F. de Groff, 889 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. "I've been enthusiastically using this velvety Cream for nourishing my skin and keeping it firm and smooth—free from the faintest suspicion of wrinkles or crow's feet. Now I find it's wonderful for chapped or roughened hands and lips, 'rusty' elbows and for filling out hollows in my neck. I'm never going to be without a jar of Black and White Cold Cream on my dresser!"

This pure, exquisitely textured Cold Cream, along with the other famous Black and White Beauty Creations, is amazingly popular everywhere because of its supreme quality and excellence and low 50c and 25c prices.

Best results come from using Black and White Skin Soap along with the Black and White Beauty Creations.

Concerning a New Madelon

Tucks, stitching and pleats! The fashion cry of summer sponsored by Patou and Vionnet, in this trig, little georgette frock, the latest by Madelon. And that is not all—it is flesh and coral reef, and you certainly know flesh is ultra smart with any shade this year, and coral reef is one of the summer's new shades. It is in two-piece mode with a picoted georgette slip, smartly long-sleeved, gracefully scarfed and belted after Patou. Since its label reads Madelon you can rely on its tailored correctness, and, like all Madelon frocks, it is only $39.50. A smart, summery adventure, n'est-ce pas?

CAPITAL SHOULD AID SOLDIER MEMORIAL DRIVE, SAYS NOYES

War and Flood Appeals Do Not Conflict, Chairman Declares.

PLEDGE MAY BE PAID IN 3 YEARS, HE ASSERTS

$7,073 Contributions in Day Swell Total in Hand to $25,000.

While the Red Cross appeal for flood relief undoubtedly has made more difficult the task of obtaining funds for the District War memorial, the two appeals are in no manner conflicting, but both should have the whole hearted support of the Washington public, Newbold Noyes, chairman of the memorial campaign, declared in a statement to team workers last night.

"The Red Cross emergency appeal for relief in a calamity deserves and has had the sympathetic response always to be expected from Washington," said the statement. "This response should continue until the emergency has passed and the appeal has been answered. But that any Washingtonian can consistently decline to contribute to the War memorial on the basis that he has just contributed or is about to contribute to the Red Cross appeal is impossible, save in the rarest instances. The two appeals are utterly dissimilar in nature.

"The one is for the immediate alleviation of distress that has befallen our fellow Americans. It is an appeal of national emergency. It must be met. The other, the memorial appeal, is based on a desire to express, in simple but lasting form, our love and reverence for our fellow Washingtonians who died in the world war. It is an intimately Washington affair. It, too, must be met.

"It can be met if we are honest with ourselves. Every contributor to the memorial is given the opportunity to subscribe over a period of three years, paying any nominal sum at present and the balance as convenient.

$7,073 Raised in Day.

"With this true, the coincidence of the Red Cross appeal with that of the memorial can not have any but a psychological significance, and if that coincidence does in the end defeat the obtaining of the memorial fund, it will be a sad reflection on our gratitude, so loudly and so often proclaimed a few short years ago, to those who died in their nation's defense."

Yesterday's contributions of $7,073 brought the amount so far subscribed to the memorial to slightly more than $25,000. In the remaining three days the memorial workers are faced with the necessity of obtaining a balance of $115,000, if their goal is to be reached.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB ON RADIO TONIGHT

DOUGHBOYS AT WMAL

Living up to the fine name they are making for themselves, it is expected that the concert by the Howard University Glee club over WRC at 9:30 o'clock tonight will be a real musical event. The club is under the direction of Roy W. Tibbs and several special numbers are being prepared. This is the second recent appearance of the club, due to the favorable comment received.

The La Salle Symphony orchestra, under direction of Rosario Bourdon also shows promise. Bourdon gained a reputation as musical director in phonograph recording at Camden, having been engaged in the work for years. He now is applying the phonograph technique to radio broadcasting.

Our old friends, the Eskimos, will step gayly to the microphone at 8 o'clock, followed by Erma Calvert and Kin Carroll, known as the radio twins. Katherine Floecker Cullen, pianist, and Gretchen Hood, soprano, will be heard in the Kitt hour. There will be an hour of dance music from Le Paradis beginning at 10 o'clock.

Dorsch's Doughboys and Auth's musical ensemble will be heard over station WMAL tonight along with the program of the banquet of the Palais Royal Basement Boosters club. The latter will be broadcast from the City club and Samuel Einstein will act as toastmaster.

The Silvertown orchestra, with the silver masked tenor, will return to the air through WEAF and associated stations of the red network, but not WRC, at 9 o'clock.

The Goucher College Glee club of Baltimore will be heard through WBAL at 9 o'clock. It consists of several hundred students and is ranking as one of the best in the country. Henriette Baker Low, director of music at Goucher, will direct the program.

The feature, "Our Musical United States," scheduled through WJZ and the blue network at 8 o'clock, will include songs typical of Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. This, as naturally supposed, will include "That's Where the Tall Corn Grows" and "Chicago."

Rogers Hornsby will take his place at the "home plate" before the microphone in WEAF's studio tonight at 6:30 o'clock and will broadcast a short talk on "The Boy." He will be the guest of the New York city Y. M. C. A. Hornsby is making his radio debut in the metropolitan area on this occasion, which follows shortly after his first local appearance as a member of the famous New York Giants.

No sports enthusiast needs any introduction to Hornsby, who as a member of the St. Louis Cardinals for several years captured the highest batting honors of the National league. Last year Hornsby became manager of this team and the inspiration of his personality drove it into the world's series, in which his club defeated the New York Yankees.

Personnel Changes In Veterans' Bureau

Appointment of Henry W. Longfellow to be chief of the Milwaukee regional office of the veterans' bureau was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the bureau. Mr. Longfellow has been chief of the personnel division of the bureau here.

George H. Sweet, who has been assistant chief of the personnel division, was promoted to be division chief. Robert L. Jarnagin was transferred from the Milwaukee office to Washington to take charge of the investigation division of the bureau, Gen Hines said. Mr. Longfellow's home is in Marinette, Wis., Mr. Jarnagin's home is in Shelbyville, Ill., and Mr. Sweet's home is in Washington.

Darby Women Refuse To Furnish Tax Test

Darby, Pa., May 4 (By A. P.).—Harry W. Shein, deputy tax collector of Darby and Sharon Hill police chief, tried his futile best today to arrest a woman and so get a test case in this borough's tax war.

Mr. Shein, obeying Albert Shaw, tax collector, failed when the intended victim refused to submit herself and paid $2 as an installment on her tax of $4.05.

Women of Darby have declared war on the personal tax, otherwise known as the occupational tax.

Rumors Name Ingrid As Wales' Betrothed

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 4 (By A. P.).—Persistent rumors are current here that Princess Ingrid, 17-year-old daughter of Crown Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden, is about to become engaged to the Prince of Wales.

Only last week rumors reached London that the Prince of Wales was about to become engaged to the Infanta Beatrice, daughter of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain. The prince, with his brother, George, has been visiting the Spanish sovereign. The princess, with her mother, will visit England next month.

ELOPING DAUGHTER OF GOVERNOR BLESSED

Michigan Executive Praises His Son-in-Law, Student; Bride Is 19.

Lansing, Mich., May 4 (By A. P.).—Miss Peggy Green, only daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Fred W. Green, eloped yesterday with Norval Tyrrell, of Detroit, a fellow student at Michigan State college, and the two were married at Bowling Green, Ohio, it became known today.

Choosing a day when the governor was absent from the capital, the young couple left East Lansing by automobile yesterday forenoon, drove to Bowling Green, and were married by the Rev. Paul J. Gilbert, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, returning later to Detroit.

The bride, who is 19, and Tyrrell, son of a Detroit investment broker, plan to return to school to finish their studies.

Mr. Green first heard of the elopement at his office this morning.

"Peggy always was a surprising girl and now she has surprised her dad," he said. "I know young Tyrrell and he is a fine boy. One naturally likes to keep his baby with him as long as possible and I hoped to keep mine a while yet. But it is all right and Peggy with her husband will be received into the arms of Mrs. Green and myself gladly and we shall all be very happy."

Vita Glass

—a new scientific discovery—admits the vital daylight which ordinary window glass keeps out

YOUR bright windows are barriers to health. You live in sunlit rooms robbed of the health of the sun. Your well-lighted, attractive apartment is a sealed-in, dark room—as far as the health value of daylight is concerned. For the vital rays of the sun cannot penetrate ordinary window or plate glass.

And these vital rays, physicians and scientists have proved, are of prime importance to health. They increase the red corpuscles and hemoglobin in the blood and thus increase resistance to disease.

They cause tanning.

They assist in the prevention and cure of rickets in children. Tests have shown that children who obtain sufficient exposure to ultra-violet rays do not develop rickets even when their diet is deficient in vitamins.

They kill germs.

They are connected in a not clearly understood way with vitamins. Tomatoes, for example, and other vegetables, lack vitamins when grown under ordinary glass.

They tend to produce strong-boned children, well-grown and healthy.

They increase physical and mental energy in adults.

Now sun-health can pour through your windows

But your windows need shut out these vital rays no longer. It is possible now for everyone to live under the constant, beneficent influence of the sun. Vita glass makes it so. Vita glass is the discovery of Prof. F. E. Lamplough, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, England. It is a genuine glass, made in two forms, clear and translucent, or cathedral. Its cost is so low that it is unreasonable to be without it. The clear glass looks like ordinary window glass. The cathedral glass is widely useful for skylights, sunbath rooms, upper panes of windows and for decorative purposes.

Searching tests have proved its health value

For two years now Vita glass has been subjected to searching tests. Its transmission of ultra-violet health rays is unquestioned. Eminent authorities from universities and laboratories throughout the country attest it. And leading physicians are prescribing Vita glass for their patients.

In actual use its effect on health is remarkable. English school use has shown that children in Vita glass rooms grow faster, weigh more, and are healthier and more energetic than children in rooms glazed with ordinary glass. And there is a marked decrease in absences.

In this country, hotels and apartment buildings are installing Vita glass for the benefit of their patrons, people are ordering it for their homes, and it has already been installed or ordered for an impressive list of hospitals, schools, sanatoria and offices.

Managers of offices are beginning to insist on Vita glass windows because of the well-being of their employees and because it increases efficiency and decreases the number of absences from illness.

Send for important booklet

If you are not already acquainted with the important effects of sunlight on health you should investigate. Send for our booklet which tells about Vita glass and the searching tests that have proved its remarkable transmission qualities and its value to health. And, meantime, ask your physician. Vita glass is so sensibly essential, for it brings outdoors indoors without inclement exposure. Vita glass is sold through the better glass distributors.

NATION-WIDE FLOOD FUND IS INCREASED $900,000 BY GIFTS

$65,000 CONTRIBUTED BY CITIZENS OF CAPITAL

Employes of Treasury Donate $6,360 Toward Relief in the South.

The Red Cross relief fund for flood sufferers increased nearly $900,000 yesterday. Contributions had totaled $6,310,348 last night, it was reported. As a result of yesterday's good showing, almost two-thirds of the $10,000,000 fund has been raised, and indications are that the amount asked will be oversubscribed.

Oversubscription will be needed, too, for the $10,000,000 fund, set by presidential proclamation as the very minimum with which the Red Cross can accomplish its task of general relief, will by no means suffice to thoroughly rehabilitate the 250,000 persons now cared for as refugees.

Washington showed a remarkable stride in contributions yesterday. Victor Deyber, chairman of local disaster relief, reported that approximately $65,000 had been collected towards Washington's new quota of $60,000. The Capital will begin to climb over the top when another $25,000 has been raised.

Employes of the Treasury yesterday took a place among the front rank heros in contributions to the fund. F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury Department, reported to the Red Cross that a total of $6,360.02 had been contributed by employes of the department.

In addition, the Federal Reserve Board contributed $461.75.

Revenue Bureau Gives.

The internal revenue bureau contributed $2,765.85. The bureau of engraving and printing contributed $900. The contributions were received in response to the first call, which pointed out that the city's quota was $45,000, now doubled to $90,000. The Treasury employes contributed nearly one-seventh of the city's initial quota.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, reported to headquarters yesterday that the corporation had made a subscription of $100,000 to the fund.

Postmaster General Harry S. New issued an appeal to employes of his department to support the relief fund.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, James L. Fieser, acting chairman of the Red Cross; Secretary of War Davis, Maj. Gen. Jadwin and several others left Washington at 9:50 o'clock last night for a second tour of the flood zone, where points not inspected last week will be visited.

The bridge party given at the Meridian Mansions, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday afternoon, netted $200, which will be contributed. The hostesses were Mrs. William M. Throckmorton, Mrs. William L. King, Mrs. L. T. Rouleau and Mrs. G. M. Church.

Post Fund Growing.

The local chapter yesterday began its speaking campaign, which will attempt to reach the public by appeals through theaters. A. Julian Brylawski yesterday afternoon spoke at the Metropolitan and Rialto theaters. Last night the Rev. W. S. Abernethy spoke at the Rialto theater, and Earl Gates spoke at the Metropolitan theater.

The Salvation Army yesterday leaped into the relief work. It was announced that in view of the fact that clothes were needed by the tens of thousands for flood victims, garments will be received at local social service headquarters to be sent to the flood zone.

The Post, which every day receives contributions and daily turns them over to the Red Cross, collected yesterday $182 toward the fund, bringing the total collected by The Post to $3,344.70. Among the contributors was Judge Robert E. Mattingly, who made his second contribution, thus following the policy of increasing the contribution in view of the increase in quota.

Contributors to The Post's fund yesterday were:

Builders Urge Study Of Flood Prevention

Appointment of a commission of engineers and executives by President Coolidge to make a technical study of all types of flood prevention methods to eliminate chance for recurrence of present conditions in the valleys of the Mississippi and its tributaries yesterday was urged by the executive board of the Associated General Contractors of America in conference here this week.

This action was taken by adoption of a resolution which stated that "the investment of hundreds of millions of dollars by the Federal and State governments for flood control in the Mississippi valley has proved ineffective for the protecting of lives and property." Flood prevention was held to be a matter of national concern, attention being called to the fact that water drains into the Mississippi river from an area comprising two-thirds of the territory of the United States.

It was contended that "appropriations for flood control should not be initiated by local levee boards primarily interested in minimum tax assessments," in view of the vast scope of necessary protective action. The proposed investigation, the resolution stated, should cover "all means of flood control, and should include a necessarily related study of irrigation and electrical power generation."

The request for presidential appointment of a committee asked that the proposed body "be appointed from the country at large and be composed of the best engineering and executive talent to investigate this whole problem of flood control and to make recommendations."

Earlier in the day the builders considered elimination of unnecessary costs and delays from construction operations, a topic brought before the conference Tuesday afternoon. Many means for obtaining an increased efficiency in construction operations were discussed yesterday afternoon.

Birmingham Ala., was selected as the city in which the next meeting of the executive group of the contractors' national organization will convene in October. The next annual meeting of the Associated General Contractors of America will be held either at French Lick Springs or West Baden, Ind., it was determined.

Capital Theaters to Give Joint Show for Flood Aid

Washington theaters will give a joint vaudeville performance for the benefit of the Mississippi river flood sufferers at 8:30 o'clock, May 13, in Poli's theater, with stars from all theaters participating.

The theater has been donated by Shubert and Poli. The benefit is sponsored by the Washington Theater Managers association and the musicians' and stage hands' unions. Among those who will take part are stars from Keith's and the Earle theaters, the National theater and several other performers.

ROARING TORRENTS MENACE MORE TOWNS; PEOPLE FLEE

are broken at nearly a dozen places and swift currents still are passing through even the oldest of the breaks.

The waters from the Mississippi delta can be observed rusing back into the parent stream through the Yazoo river north of Vicksburg, and those from the Glasscocke breaks are coursing down the Tensas valley to seek a remingling with the mother stream through the old river.

This vast funnel of water bearing down on the Old river, the Red and the Atchafalaya has created a new battle front for those fighting the floods, a front of water and mud along a winding course of 80 miles. On the outcome of this battle depends the safety of the rich sugar can section in south central Louisiana.

New Orleans Levees Holding.

If the engineers can hold the line on that front, the flood water will be taken up by the Mississippi and cause a corresponding increase of pressure on the levee of the main stream from Angola south to New Orleans as the flood crest moves on to the sea.

Reports made today to former Gov. John M. Parker, civilian flood dictator for Louisiana, said no weakness had developed on the east levee between Baton Rouge and New Orleans. Some seepage was observed at Conrad's point, south of Baton Rouge, but this was succesfully blanketed.

Levees on the west bank also were reported holding in good shape as the work went forward in their strengthening and raising against the record flood stages about which the weather bureau has issued repeated warnings only to renew them today.

Improvement in the defenses of New Orleans was continued today as low points here and there around the crescent bend were topped and additional thousands of sand bags were filled for emergency use. These are placed at strategic points and workmen are held in readiness to throw them into position.

River Stationary at City.

After falling to 20.4 feet here, the river remained stationary, although the breach in the levee to the south of New Orleans was completed, greatly accelerating the flow of water through the artificial crevasse, which now is opened to a width of nearly 2,000 feet.

I. M. Cline, meteorologist of the weather bureau, predicted late today that the depth of overflow in the lower Tensas basin in Concordia parish would be greater than in any previous flood.

Announcement also was made that the crevasse waters above Vidalia, joining with other crevasse water already in that area, would tend to retard the progress of the flood crest toward Old river and slightly reduce and prolong the daily rise below Old river.

"Crevasse waters will further intensify the flood situation in the Mississippi river below Old river, and in the Atchafalaya," the weather bureau bulletin said. "The water from the Glasscocke and Bougere crevasses is already returning through Old river and has caused a rise of two-tenths of a foot at Angola and Baton Rouge in 24 hours."

Looting Is Charged to Five.

Memphis, Tenn., May 4 (By A. P.).—With 25,000 homeless Louisianans already in concentration camps and the expectation that today's breaks in the Mississippi levee will raise the figure to between 40,000 and 50,000, the American Red Cross turned anxious eyes to the stretch of river between Baton Rouge and New Orleans.

Levee breaks between Baton Rouge and New Orleans will increase the number of refugees in Louisiana by 100,000 persons, Henry M. Baker, national director of disaster relief, estimated. The enormous relief forces in Louisiana steadily increased with the arrival on the scene of more men and boats. The erratic nature of the flood emergencies daily complicates the problems of headquarters office.

Imperative Calls for Aid.

While most of Arkansas sections reported waters receding steadily, promising more easiness in the situation in that sector, imperative calls for men, boats and supplies came from Ashley county, where waters were reported rising.

A heavy rain in sections of the Mississippi delta caused a rise of three inches overnight in Belzoni, Miss., after the flood began receding. Boats continually reported discovery of additional marooned people in the older flooded sections and many of these refused to be evacuated after receiving supplies, preferring to remain with their property until the waters recede.

Looting of dwellings continued in the Mississippi flood zone and five negroes were in jail at Belzoni, while officers investigated reports of robbery throughout that section.

Red Cross field agents report that evacuation of several towns in southeast Arkansas continues, despite that in most places the waters are receding slowly. Lake Village, Ark., is being evacuated to the government levee across the lake there and tents and food have been shipped from here. The dredge boat Kappa is quartering women and children until accommodations for sheltering them can arrive.

About 2,500 persons are living on the Arkansas river levee at Arkansas City. A few cases of typhoid in that vicinity has caused medical officers to take the utmost precautions, and this led to the arrangement of a water supply by attachment of fire hose to an artesion well on the mainland.

While in some communities to the north of Memphis, in both Arkansas and Kentucky, families are returning to their homes with the recession of the floods. No reduction in the refugee camps in the St. Francis river basin of Arkansas is expected for another ten days.

Vicksburg became the largest refugee center in the entire flood area today, when the Red Cross announced there were about 18,000 persons in the camps of that city.

New camps were established today in Winnsboro and Columbia, La., in preparation for refugees fleeing from new breaks in the Mississippi levees.

15,000 AWAIT BOATS IN A SINGLE PARISH; TRAPPED BY FLOOD

Deer, Muskrats and Birds Are Being Aided by Score of Game Officials.

Natchez, Miss., May 4 (By A. P.).—Cornered by flood and backwaters, some 15,000 inhabitants of Tensas parish—men, women and children—must depend entirely upon relief boats for their salvation.

Hundreds from St. Joseph, Parish Seat and other small towns already have been evacuated by a large fleet rushed to the scene from this place and it is the expectation of the relief corps that all will be taken out safely before the flood waters complete the inundation of the parish.

Gurgling springs of murky water appearing at the base of levees are danger signals most feared by those who battle the raging Mississippi and its tributaries at flood time.

Sand boils are what engineers call them and unless they are checked promptly they will cause crevasses through which the rivers pour out their fury upon the land.

Decaying Root May Be Cause.

A crawfish hole in the dyke, a decaying root that may have been covered up when the embankment was built or a fissure developing in the base of the levee are reasons for the development of sand boils.

The water seeps through and the rushing current quickly widens the hole until a geyser appears on the shore side of the levee. Cofferdams or wells of sandbags are hastily constructed around the openings at the levee base until the spouting water is brought up to the level of the river. Then a blanket of dirt is dumped down where the opening is on the river side, filling the gap there after the current has ceased to flow with the raising of the water on the shore side to the river level.

80-Mile Battle Front.

New Orleans, May 4 (By A. P.).—Making a last stand for the defense of Louisiana's broad sugar belt in the south, army, State and local engineers have joined forces in a determined battle along a treacherous, muddy front of about 80 miles of winding, twisting width from the Mississippi westward along the Old, Red and Atchafalaya rivers.

Here is a battle against a never-resting foe, a battle to forestall and curb every dangerous move of millions of tons of massed flood waters from the Arkansas, Mississippi, Red, Black and Ouachita rivers now blocked behind the levee lines of the Red, Old and Atchafalaya.

If the vast sea of water can be held behind these dikes, the sugar belt, with its millions of property and its thousands of inhabitants will be saved and the flood waters sent racing back into the Mississippi through the Red and the Old rivers to add to the mighty avalanche, moving swiftly to the gulf.

That would mean increased dangers for the towns and territory along the Mississippi from Angola to New Orleans, where a never-ceasing struggle against the weight and rise of the water is being waged by large forces of men.

Waters Force Army Back.

Slowly, but steadily the floodwaters in the northeast have have pressed back the army of workers there. In night and day relays, thousands have worked to dam up the waters from five rivers in that section, only to lose in the end and fall back to the next line of defense.

The last barrier now has been reached and unless the line holds there this State will suffer by far its greatest disaster in all the history of Mississippi floods.

The protection of wild life so abundant in this State has become a serious problem for the Louisiana department of conservation.

Crevasse waters in Madison parish are encroaching upon the 81,000-acre game refuge in that parish, one of the largest in the country, where deer and native birds abound.

Muskrats Are in Danger.

In the extreme southeast, waters from the artificial break at Caernarvon are flooding areas in St. Bernard and Plaquemines, thickly populated by muskrats whose pelts to the value of several millions of dollars are sold annually.

Hurry calls for additional men to help in caring for birds and deer came from the Singer refuge in Madison parish to Stanley C. Arthur, State director of wild life conservation. For the most part, however, deer were taking care of themselves, swimming to high ground and even crossing the Mississippi to the hills in the State across the river.

In the parishes below New Orleans, Mr. Arthur has appointed a score or more of trappers as special agents in caring for the muskrats, and a large number of rafts are being constructed as havens for them.

"We have reports of as many as 150 muskrats on a single raft," Mr. Arthur said tonight, "and we are rushing timber to that section to construct many more so that the rats can be saved."

Briton Cables Sympathy For Mississippi Sufferers

Richmond, Va., May 4 (By A. P.) A cablegram expressing his sympathy for the inhabitants of the flooded Mississippi valley was received here today by Junius P. Fishburn, president of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, from Gilbert C. Vyle, president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce. Mr. Vyle sailed today from Southampton for New York to head a party of 25 British business men who will make a month's tour of the south Atlantic and central States under the auspices of the Virginia chamber.

His message follows:

"On eve of my departure for Virginia, beg to express through you my deep sympathy for the inhabitants of the Mississippi valley in the great calamity which has befallen them through disastrous floods."

Snakebite Serum Pronounced Effective

Philadelphia, May 4 (By A. P.).—Dr. Alfranio de Amaral, formerly chief of the St. Paulo Serum Institute of Brazil, has perfected a serum which is declared to be effective against the bites of al three types of poisonous North American snakes—rattlesnake, moccasin and copperhead.

The manufacture of the serum, like the research, is under the direction of the Antivenom Institute of America.

Federalship, Freed, Takes Rum to Sea

San Francisco, May 4 (By A. P.).—The alleged rum runner Federalship, with her 12,500 cases of liquor and crew of 20 men, steamed out through the Golden Gate today free from the tangled skein of the United States' officialdom.

Following in the wake of the vessel was the coast guard cutter Shawnee with orders to see that not so much as one bottle was dropped from the liquor-laden ship.

Release of the Federalship followed Federal court decisions holding that the seizure, 270 miles at sea, was illegal.

"Cat Bandit" Attacks 3 Women in Chicago

Chicago, May 4 (By A. P.).—Chicago's "cat bandit," who preys on women, brought the number of his victims to more than 100 last night by waylaying 3 women at 15-minute intervals.

Ether was used by "the cat" in one of his attacks. He halted Miss Germaine Servais, 20-year-old French teacher, and threatened her with a revolver while with his free hand he pressed an ether-soaked handkerchief to her nostrils. She screamed and he fled.

Two other young women who were held up by "the cat" lost their purses, but escaped harm.

LAWYER SHOT DEAD AFTER MAKING WILL

Partner of Former Gov. Major of Missouri Was Warned by Robbers.

St. Louis, Mo., May 4 (By A. P.).—Clifford M. Hicks, 28-year-old law partner of former Gov. Elliott W. Major, made a will at 11:30 a. m. last Saturday, about ten hours before he was shot to death, it was learned late today. Hicks bequeathed $10 to his wife and $1 to his mother, stating they were provided for by his life insurance, and left the residue of his estate to Glenn Hicks, a brother, whom he named as executor. He carried $360,000 insurance.

A receiver was appointed late today for the St. Louis Finance Co., of which the slain attorney was secretary-treasurer. The petition alleged that Hicks was indebted to the company "to an amount unknown."

Hicks probably was killed by gangsters, Chief of Detectives Kaiser said today.

Chief Kaiser said the presumed use of a woman as a decoy, the scene on a lonely St. Louis county road where the body was found Sunday and the fact that Hicks was shot six times by a .45 caliber automatic, a favorite weapon of professional gunmen, all pointed to a gangster killing.

ITALIAN COMEDY WINS AUDIENCE AT NATIONAL

"The Mistress of the Inn" Proves One of Finest Bits of Year.

THE CAST

The Marquis of Forlipopoli.....Sayre Crawley
The Count of Albaflorita.....Paul Leyssac
Fabrizio, a servant in the inn, Robert F. Ross
The Cavalier of Ripafratta...Egon Brecher
Mirandolina, the mistress of the inn, Eva Le Gallienne
Servant to the Cavalier...Barlowe Borland
Actresses—
Ortensia.....Josephine Hutchinson
Djansira.....Beatrice de Neergaard

In the role of Mirandolina, mistress of the inn, Eva Le Gallienne finds a part far different from any she has essayed heretofore—and a comedy the like of which has not been seen on the American stage since what old timers like to call the good old days.

Aside and innuendos and soliloquies tumble over one another in the treatment of this particular comedy, and all to make a glorious Italian holiday—a relic of the eighteenth century, when cavaliers were cavaliers and women fainted.

In truth, there is not much to the story of "La Locandiera" save that she was a delightful little minx, with the roguishness of her sex predominant, and men of all stations in life loving her, from the lords and masters down to the lackeys who blacked their boots. A day of the bootmaker and not the bootlegger, wine, women and song played their part in the domain of all save the cavalier of Ripafratta, who, stopping at Mirandolina's inn, finally fell before the onslaughts of that damsel. Upon the play of these two extremes hinges all the action—and there is much of it; whimsical, delightful, wholehearted comedy.

In this day of sex drama and such slush, the current offering on the stage of the Nations comes like a breath from heaven—God given and sent. The New York Civic Repertoire company here strikes its stride, and it has been some time since better all-round acting graced the boards in this vicinity.

Mr. Egon Brecher, playing opposite Miss LeGallienne, rises to a height of comedy little suspected in his kitbag, since his characterizations hereabout have been of more serious turn. The little lady herself, an actress to the core, was never better. She has surrounded herself with fine talent. Last night Miss Josephine Hutchinson, again added laurels to her growing wreath, and with Miss Beatrice De Neergaard, a charming comedienne, played stranded actresses. There were, too, artistic touches by Paul Leyssac and Sayre Crawley, respectively a count and a marquis.

It must have taken nerve and a certain amount of audaciousness, not to metnion good business acumen, to have ventured forth with a play of this type in New York when the call of the wild was rampant on Broadway.

GAYETY.

The Gayety theatre will close a very successful season with Saturday night's performance, and Manager La Motte takes this opportunity to thank Gayety patrons for their appreciated attendance at the popular Ninth street theater this season. Mr. La Motte also wishes to state that this week's attraction "4-11-44," Hurtig & Seamon's all-new colored novelty, has proven one of the current season's most successful attractions, and will continue throughout the week with Saturday night's performance, which closes the house, to reopen early in August. There will be a special midnight performance of "4-11

COMING TO THE THEATERS

NATIONAL.

When three young men adopt a likeable, vivacious actress who is "down on her luck," things are bound to happen. So they do in "Laff That Off," the farce which the National Players will open their summer season with at the National theater next Monday night.

What, with the cool weather, summer stock sounds premature, though it will be interesting to readers to recall that the Players are opening a full month later than last year.

"Laff That Off" concerns three young fellows, two reporters and an actor. Their offer of food and shelter to a stranded young thing brings complications but these are obviated by their pledges not to make love to her. Immediately each goes back on his promise, but the world war, in addition to saving democracy, saves the young lady from bigamous connections. What happens in the end is to be seen and not read.

Leona Powers and John MacFarlane will carry the leads, with the full strength of the new company seen in varied parts.

KEITH'S.

None other than the supreme comic of the age, the sure-fire laugh producer, Will Mahoney, will top the bill at B. F. Keith's theater for the week of May 8. Nothing more need be said, except that Mr. Mahoney bills himself "Why Be Serious," and after seeing him there is no answer.

Vaudeville's youthful producers, Hackett and Delmar, will be featured with their sixth annual revue, "Luxuries." The cast includes Betty Webb, Nita Johns, assisted by Irene Griffith, Mary O'Rourke, Priscilla Thompson, Betty Rieman, Margie Hallick and many others.

The vaudeville author, Johnny Hyman, will be heard in his playing pranks with Webster.

W. B. Groh and his piano hounds will be presented with George La Rowe.

The strolling players, the three vagrants, will come next, "The Merry Singers and Musicians."

"Color Poems," visions in artistic beauty, will follow and the usual screen features will complete the bill.

STRAND.

The Strand's musical comedy for next week, beginning with Saturday matinee of this week, will be "World Dancers," the players headed by the comedian Irvin B. Hamp, the chorus led by Mary Deery and Tereta Sheaffer.

The entire production is produced by William Grant, the comedy and dialogue by Irvin B. Hamp, and the musical numbers arranged by Harry C. and Arthur J. Manvell, of the Strand orchestra.

The screen presentation will be a first-time shown Universal Jewel production of "Down the Stretch," starring Marion Nixon and Robert Agnew and in support Otis Harlan, Virginia True Broadman and Ward Crane, directed by King Baggot. It is a dramatic tale of the race track.

Arthur Manvell's music and the usual comedies and Newsreel shown at matinee only will complete the program.

LITTLE THEATER.

Benjamin Christiansen, the famous Swedish director, now working in this country, appears in his only acting role next week at the Little theater. He has a wonderful part in "Chained," the beautiful story based on the life of Rodin. This is a psychological drama, one of the latest and finest from the famous UFA studios. The surrounding bill is unusual, consisting of a scenic in colors of the polar seas and the Northern lights, a Will Rogers comedy, a guild superproduction by Harold Phillips, dramatic editor of the Washington Times.

Troupe Arrives Today.

The new leading man of the National Players, who begin their third summer season next Monday night, is John McFarlane. He will be remembered as having succeeded Minor Watson as lead for the players during their first season. The impression he made with patrons was sufficient to call for his return.

Mr. McFarlane is tall and dark and rather broad. Leona Powers, new leading lady, is small, slender and very much Titian. The contrast at once asserts itself as an attractive one.

The new company has been rehearsing "Laff That Off" for the last week at Wallack's theater in New York under Clifford Brooke. The troupe will arrive in town today to complete rehearsals on the National stage. An entire car on the Congressional Limited has been reserved so that rehearsals can continue en route, such a taskmaster being Mr. Brooke.

PALACE.

Another program of exceptional promise features the screen and stage at Loew's Palace next week, beginning Sunday, when the screen attraction will be "Casey at the Bat," with Wallace Beery, the Babe Ruth of comedy, in a picture that'll keep the world from becoming serious. The stage portion of the program will be headed by Hal Kemp and his boys, a winning team of melodists, with George Lyons, harpist and singer, and the international tango favorites, Sebastian and Nord, in a dance creation, "Argentine Nights." The stage attractions will be augmented with excellent musical features and stellar screen subjects.

Fresh from triumphs in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Old Ironsides," Wallace Beery is said to heap new laurels upon himself for his portrayal of the immortal Casey, "America's most beloved baseball character."

COLUMBIA.

A picture described as the world's funniest comedy comes to Loew's Columbia theater next week, beginning Sunday. It is "Rookies," with Karl Dane and George K. Arthur featured as a new comedy team, with Marceline Day in the leading feminine role. Sam Wood directed this new Metro-Goldyn-Mayer success from a story and continuity by Byron Morgan.

"Rookie" tells an exceedingly amusing tale of life in a citizens' military training camp. Dane has the role of a hard-boiled top sergeant, whose rival for the hand of Marceline Day is a scrubby young private played in inimitable fashion by George K. Arthur. The warfare between these two is carried on through scenes of alternate laughter and terror, as many episodes take place in a runaway balloon above the clouds.

Cooperation from the United States government in staging this production has made possible an authentic and graphic background of military life in the training camps.

METROPOLITAN.

Crandall's Metropolitan theater next week, beginning Sunday afternoon, will present what has been acclaimed in all of the principal cities of the country where shown the greatest of all motion picture feature comedies, the Warner Brothers' production of "The Better 'Ole," with Syd Chaplin, cast in the role of Ole Bill, supported by Jack Acroud as his buddy of the trenches Alf, and a specially selected cast. The original vitaphone score will be utilized throughout the current engagement at the Metropolitan, although instead of being played exclusively by vitaphone the Metropolitan Symphony, under the conductorship of Daniel Breeskin will alternate with vitaphone in the interpretation of this exceptional compilation of appropriate numbers. This engagement, therefore, will be distinctive in that "The Better 'Ole" will be accorded full orchestral accompaniment from the opening of the theater at 3 o'clock on Sunday and at 11 a. m. on week days, until closing at 11 p. m., the customary intervals where the organ would take up the score being devoted to the vitaphone presentations of the original work.

RIALTO.

Belle Bennett in "The Fourth Commandment," is the feature picture at the Rialto starting Saturday.

How the commandment "Honor thy father and thy mother," becomes vividly poignant to a struggling husband and a mockery to an indiscreet wife is told with great dramatic power, that is said to make the picture one of the supreme emotional treats of the year.

The production is notable, also, from the fact that it features two of the screen's greatest mothers, Belle Bennett, whose fame became international almost overnight as the result of her work in "Stella Dallas," is supported by Mary Carr, the little mother of "Over the Hill."

Rommell music and short reels round out the program.

EARLE.

Vincent Lopez, one of the most famous of modern conductors, and his world famous Casa Lopez orchestra, is the headline attraction at the Earle theater next week, beginning Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Vincent Lopez orchestra, personally conducted by Mr. Lopez, who is recognized as one of the foremost pianists in America, needs no introduction to the amusement seekers of the National Capital, having appeared here frequently before.

The extra added attraction for the new week will be supplied by Joe Keno and Rosie Green, celebrated musical comedy stars, in a "Hilarious Hodge-Podge." Other inclusions in the vaudeville portion of the entertainment will embrace Jackie Collier and sister in an unusual dance offering; Carol Racine and Dorothea Ray, on "Cook's Tour," assisted by Fred Lloyd, in a skit written by Eugene J. W. Conrad; Tommy Reilly, in "The Wife Hunter," a love episode expressed in song and dance, and Cleveland and Downey in a satire of present-day conditions, written, arranged and staged by Harry C. Danforth.

The photoplay feature for the week beginning Sunday afternoon will be "Love 'Em and Leave 'Em."

CHESAPEAKE BEACH.

"Dance and dine where the silvery moon shines on the beach" will be the battle call of the Casino at Chesapeake Beach, which opens for the season on May 28. The Casino this year will be under the direction of Ciro Gallotti, owner of the Gallotti restaurants of this city and Tampa, Fla. Brother Gallotti will specialize in sea food, Italian and fried chicken dinners. Dancing to snappy music. Cover charge? Why none at all.

Hoehling Receives Jackson's Plea.

Justice Hoehling in criminal court took under advisement yesterday the motion of Philip Jackson, colored, for a new trial on an indictment charging an attack on Mrs. Daisy Welling in the Capitol grounds February 18. The jury which convicted Jackson recommended the death penalty. The motion for a new trial was submitted by John H. Wilson, counsel for the accused, without argument.

Spring is calling—buy a Buick now

The smart style of Buick's Fisher Bodies, their graceful lines and magnificent Duco colorings, are like a breath of spring. The tasteful luxury and soft-cushioned comfort of Buick are comparable with the costliest cars.

Buick performance, too, is like the springtime. Drive hour after hour, over any road—Buick's driving comfort will surprise you. Soar over the crest of a hill, flash through the countryside, Buick's Six-Cylinder Valve-in-Head engine delivers a smooth, even flow of power—vibrationless beyond belief at every point on the speedometer.

And above all, Buick is a dependable, enduring motor car. Famous for long life, because it is built for rugged service, Buick has the Sealed Chassis and Triple-Sealed-Engine to shield operating parts from dirt, dust and water. And Buick Authorized Service Stations are everywhere, throughout America.

Buy a Buick, for style and comfort, for finer performance, for sterling dependability—and for greater value.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Does Love Last?

"DOES love last?" asks Ruth in a letter pouring out her soul! Does it last? Never a day's mail but some one asks me wistfully that question. And for every one who asks there are 10,000 who want to know. The young today do not believe in love—and that is sad, for love is a beautiful thing—and very, very real. It is as real as the sunshine that comes and goes—and just because, like the sunshine, it is a little beyond our understanding we grow impatient of its vagaries and say it does not exist. But if love did not exist, how explain all the sacrifices made the world over by one person for another? How explain the tender service, the unfailing care bestowed upon disabled husbands, sick wives? How explain the patience, the tolerance, the compassion and forgiveness found in the most unexpected places? Yet the young—the very ones who need most to believe in love—deny it or repudiate it, and why? Just because a few discontented cynics howl very loudly that there is no Santa Claus—and love is a disease. Meanwhile mothers wear the same coat for four years because father has a heavy burden educating the children. And mother is utterly happy in her four-year-old coat. She is encompassed with love—and only if some trouble threatens dad can you see mother disturbed. Love builds, stone upon stone, the homes that make this land the wonder country of the world. If here and there small bands of social tramps call loudly and with feeling that there is no love because they have not known it, that should not make the young feel panic clutching at their hearts. These spiritual beggars whining of their impoverishment could quite as truly say there are no homes—they even do say this—and all because they know no homes. Great cities do not make the world! It is the town, with its shaded streets, its lawns and baby carriages, dogs, cats, chickens at dawn and peace at night—it is the town, the thousands and thousands of towns, that make the nation and preserve the home. And so the social pauper, loveless and homeless because he is tuned all wrong, can squeal as loudly as he will of his woes, and not change love, which lives and lasts and gives to life its meaning and its worth.

Love lasts—and is worth its cost. So let not the squawkers take the joy out of life! Love lasts that life may last; for without it humanity could not long endure the meaninglessness that is the daily grind of life. Love lasts!

You, who have loved, do you agree? And can you add a word of hope to these questing young hearts who are chilled and afraid to love?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

MEASLES GERM IS A FRIENDLY CUSS.

THE measles germ likes company. When it gets into a man it says to all the tribe of germs: "Come on in, the water's fine." Especially does it like to swim around in the same pool with the pneumonia germ.

As a rule, every germ likes to be the cock of its own walk. When it gets into any part of a man all other germs disappear from that zone, and even the remoter parts of the man's anatomy are fairly well depopulated of their other zoological specimens for the time being. But the measles bug is a friendly cuss and believes in associating with its fellow germs against the rules.

In the army during the world war they found that in uncomplicated measles there was only one death for about every 2,000 cases, but in complicated measles there was one death for about every 40 cases. I expect about the same proportions hold true in civil life. If a school child has measles and escapes all complications, I presume the chances that he will get well are about 1,000 to 1. If he gets complications, the chances that he will get well are much less than 40 to 1.

Of all the complications of measles, pneumonia is the worst, but there are others that are bad enough. There is no way to know in advance that a given case will fall into the fairly safe no complication class.

The various things that health departments do to control measles amount to just about a bluff and that is all. Sticking up quarantine cards accomplishes almost nothing, principally because so few cards go up. Some have said that for every person who obeys the measles law there are ten who disobey it. The health authorities themselves are not very strong for the law. The disease is so contagious that our present methods of controlling it would not be very effective if we could enforce them. To make matters worse, the presently to be case of measles is highly contagious; the measles as is is almost noncontagious. The child due to break out next Monday becomes contagious about Thursday of this week. By Monday he may be a mass of red, but he is not overly contagious. By the following Thursday he is almost a safe companion. How can you control a disease which is most contagious before it even exists? The answer is, by vaccination.

There are many ways of vaccinating against measles. In a recent editorial the Journal of the American Medical association gave five methods, all under trial somewhere. No health department has adopted any of them officially, but all health departments are watching all of them, and some of them are trying some of them.

Any superintendent of an institution who persists can get his charges vaccinated. Any parent can have his children vaccinated, but to do so he will need to insist.

Poppy Popularity

© HOUSE AND GARDEN

THERE was a time not so long ago when the name poppy usually signified merely the common annual kind that flamed in masses among the other flowers in thousands of gardens the country over. That there were other far more lovely species some of them hardy perennials and others biennials, was known by only a few enthusiasts who had delved particularly deep into the subject.

But matters are different today, and the poppy family has come in for a much more honored place than ever before. The magnificent perennial Oriental type is one of the garden's finest features, and the Iceland Poppy has won its way into countless situations where a less brilliant but more delicately beautiful display is sought. A little research among flower books and plantsmen's catalogs will bring to light others quite as desirable, such as the Thibetan Poppy pictured here.

JUST FOLKS

CARESSES.

When Nellie comes to me at night
And showers me with caresses,
I know I'll shortly have to write
Another check for dresses.

When Nellie smoothes my hair away
And speaks of love undying,
I know she's seen some trinket gay
Her heart is set on buying.

Oh, I can read my Nellie's smiles—
They're plain as English printing;
I'm on to all her lovely wiles
And all her ways of hinting.

I know, although her kisses still
Are sweet as clover honey,
At our age such affection will Require a sum of money.

And yet I'm glad she plays that game
For hats and shoes and dresses;
Although I'd buy them just the same,
I like those fond caresses.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

BANNING BLEMISHES.

HERE we are back to our old subject—pimples and blackheads! I am going to keep at it as long as I continue to get so many letters on the subject. And will the writers of these letters please follow the advice given in my artcles and not expect repetitions and individual replies?

Suppose we set down a few good rules—not all the rules possible, but some sound and sensible ones. These, if followed, will decidedly benefit any case of skin blemishes.

1. Correct the diet. This means avoiding all rich and greasy foods, candy and pastry, fancy and alcoholic beverages.

2. Keep scrupulously clean, both interiorly and exteriorly.

3. Don't be afraid of soap and water—a pure, mild soap and quite warm water.

4. Be fearful of very greasy, heavy creams. It is much betetr to use liquids.

5. Avoid "powder bases," vanishing creams and so on.

6. Make sure of using—not too heavily—a light, fine face powder.

7. Never go to bed without thoroughly removing every trace of make-up from the skin.

Dear Viola Paris: I have been suffering from whiteheads all over the left side of my face. I use only the best grades of face powder and cold creams; also use a lotion as a powder base. I usually steam my face and squeeze the blemishes, but this bruises my skin. I should greatly appreciate your advice.

H. L. C.

Answer: Whiteheads are simply not so grimy blackheads. Read what I have written above about blemishes in general. The usual cold cream is not suitable for you; it is farr too dense and heavy. For cleansing, use a liquid cream or a clear lotion. Almond meal is also very good. It is not necessary to abuse the skin. Press out only the secretions lodged in the surface and do this gently with a soft towel wound around the fingers.

Dear Viola Paris: Please tell me how to get rid of blackheads and pimples. Also, please advise me as to the best colors for a decided brunette. What shades of powder and rouge should I use?

PRISCILLA W.

Answer: Again—see the article above. Don't indulge in fried foods, sauces and gravies, fat meats, fancy desserts and beverages.

A decided brunette can usually wear decided colors—reds, greens, yellows and certain shades of blue. Pastel tints are good, too—gray, beige and apricot. White and black, unrelieved, are apt not to be so becoming. I would suggest for you Spanish rachel powder and medium rouge, with a fairly vivid lipstick.

Bathing-Suit No. 2695.
Motif No. 605.

IN these days, it is a strange child who does not go into the water. Indeed, the younger generation is as much in evidence at the seaside as the very seashells. She who swims like the proverbial eel should wear a real swimming suit, of which there is none better than this model having a jersey top with a shoulder closing. The top may be worn inside or outside of the flannel trunks in a contrasting color. Motif No. 605, embroidered in wool, may distinguish the suit of one sister from that of another. Designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

NOW, I'LL ASK ONE!

Everybody's doing it! Get in the swim. Test your own knowledge—and that of your friends. It is a delightful game and is educational at the same time. Printed below are ten questions—if any of them stump you, you will find the answers on the last page.

QUESTIONS.

1. Whom did Jesus raise from the dead in Bethany?
2. How did Joan of Arc meet her death?
3. Where are the Shetland islands and what domestic animal originally came from there?
4. When it is 12 o'clock noon in New York city what time is it in San Francisco?
5. What is Esperanto?
6. What is the Phi Beta Kappa society?
7. From what is linen made?
8. What is the name given the great plague which swept Europe, Asia and Africa in the fourteenth century and which killed almost 40,000,000 people?
9. What game is sometimes called "barnyard golf?"
10. Of what political party was George Washington a member?

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

"KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES."

"I WOULD like to see your view about people who try so pitifully to 'keep up with the Joneses' when they haven't the means," —writes a nice woman to me.

I am delighted to oblige her, for I think most of the discontent and all the pretentiousness in the Unied States come from a false notion that not our ideas but our neighbor's are the ones to live up to. We don't live our own life pleasantly. We are always trying to live his. Now, I see no reason why any man shouldn't adopt such of his neighbor's customs as really suit him. But I see every reason why he should hold his own against those that are inappropriate. He mustn't be dominated by them, for he can't be self-respecting unless he keeps some individuality. Of course, I don't mean that he should be too individual in another person's house. The man who insists upon having his own way in his neighbor's house is quite as bad as the man who wants to ape his neighbor's ways at home because he thinks they are grander than his.

Really well-bred people are not concerned about keeping up with anybody. They, themselves, are the only judges of their habits and customs. If they are poor they contrive to make their poverty smart. They don't try to hide it or pretend they are any better off than they happen to be. It is a matter of pride with them to appear as well as they can, but no better. Apply this test to the second-rate and you will see that they nearly always assume some quality, manner or custom that does not genuinely belong to them. They are afraid to be themselves and pursue their own ways.

This strange anxiety to follow another person's lead is found even among the nicest people when they live out of the world. I often have to assure women that because they happen to see two candlesticks on a firend's dinner-table they need not stop using their four, or that even if Mrs. Jones of the Joneses prefers glass-soup plates they aren't obliged to discard all china ones. If they happen to dislike glass plates of any kind, except under fingerbowls, as much as I do, for anything but (possibly) summer table-setting, a round dozen Mrs. Joneses shouldn't change their opinion.

INVENTOR DESIGNING BICYCLE FOR THE AIR

Flights of a Mile or More Are Made by Englishman in "Aerial Bus."

Andover, England, May 4 (By A. P.). Jules E. Palmer, of Andover, an electrical engineer, has become known here as "the bicycle man of the air."

Palmer for months has been making experimental flights with a one-man-propelled flying machine which is a rough design of an air bicycle which he hopes soon to perfect. Numerous flights of a mile or more at the height of 30 or 40 feet have been made by Palmer in his "aerial bus" with fan-shaped paddles strapped to his arms and suspended by a small balloon.

"The 'air-cycle' which I am building," said the engineer, "consists of an aluminum cycle frame weighing 3 pounds, suspended below a cigar-shaped gas bag. To the front of the frame is a propeller, driven by gear and chain from the cycle pedals, and at the rear is an elevator and rudder."

Palmer estimated that he would be able to make about 25 miles an hour in still air with this machine.

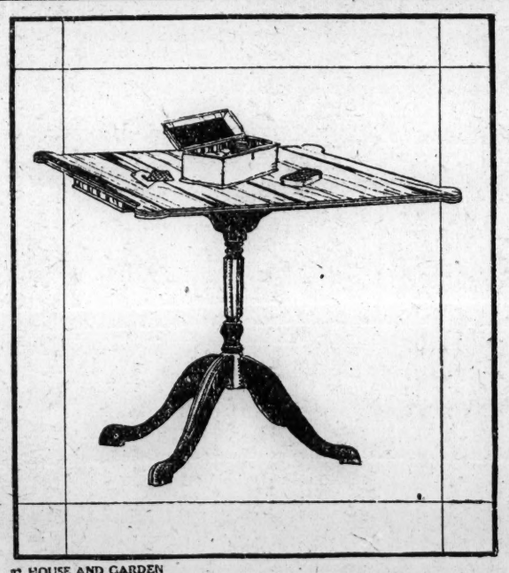
Double-Duty Gaming Table



© HOUSE AND GARDEN

THE card table that makes a good looking furniture piece when not in actual use for a game is a rare delight. Most of them are designed with the idea in mind that they are to be used for card games and put away when their purpose has been served, with the result that little attention is given to line and proportion in their manufacture.

The table sketched above is one of those rare objects—a card table designed for permanency. It is happily provided with a drawer to hold cards and bridge scores, and has a flap top which folds over, turning it into a most convenient end table for everyday use. In mahogany or maple, this would make a distinctive living room piece, convertible at any time into a really steady and altogether satisfactory gaming table.

The Housekeeper

WE disposed of the lamb that was left in the house on Tuesday, and probably in the meantime have had a dinner of chops, slice of ham, eggs or some other one time article of food. Nevertheless, and in spite of all this, I am today going to plan a one-meal food in the form of halibut steak for dinner tonight or tomorrow night, as the fancy may direct. And in a way that is, probably, new to many of us. Halibut a la pot roast with vegetables.

But first we have a question to answer. Some one has said to a reader of this column that when a person has a title or their husband has a title they should use it—for instance, if we, any one of us, were wife of the President of these United States, we would so sign ourselves. Who can have suggested such a thing. Fame or fortune need not be broadcasted, nor written across one's head to make one great. We are just what we are, neither more nor less, and it is what we do and are, that makes us either great or small. Can you fancy Martha Washington signing herself Mrs. President George Washington, United States of America. Can you fancy the wife of a general in our army signing herself Mrs. General? I had as soon sign myself Mrs. Washington Post, my dear, as to see you use this courteous splendid title that the members of your circle have given your husband, and am delighted that you, being a bit uncertain, asked about it rather than take the advice of one whom you yourself fear to be ambitious and aspiring. Strange as it may seem, this incident brings to my mind vividly that once, a very few short weeks ago, a circumstance not unlike this arose—only in this case the one who wished to wear the title was rather farther removed from the title itself than you are, and this was a case of commercializing, which was also far from what you wished to consider.

And, by the way, the young lady to whom we gave our attention the other day, has made the pie, and it was a successful venture—in spite of a meringue that shrunk just a bit, and the next step in her cooking efforts is to be home-made hot biscuits.

Now for our menu with its new dish:

MENU.

Clear Consomme
Toasted Crackers Olives
Halibut a la Pot Roast

Baked Potatoes Buttered Turnips
Tomato Aspic Salad
Peach Pie
Iced Tea or Coffee

Halibut a la Pot Roast With Vegetables.

Chop finely 2 large or 3 small carrots, 3 large onions, 2 cups of celery and 1 clove of garlic. Remove the skin from a 3 or 4 pound piece of halibut and heat a half cup of salad oil in a large frying pan and put the skinned clove of garlic in the oil, where it must cook until the oil is flavored. Then add the halibut and brown it on each side. Remove the fish to an earthen casserole dish or tightly covered aluminum kettle. Pour the oil from the pan over the top of the fish and pour a little water into the pan and then turn it over the fish. Add salt and pepper to the fish and after parboiling the vegetables add them, with the small amount of water in which they were parboiled, to the kettle containing the fish. Cover the kettle closely and bake in the oven at a moderate temperature or simmer over a very low flame on the top of the stove. If the oven process is used it will require about an hour's cooking, or if the top of the stove, 50 minutes. Remove the fish to a hot platter and surround with the cooked vegetables and thicken the liquor in the kettle with a bit of flour, season it well with salt and a dash of red pepper and add some finely chopped parsley. Serve with pieces of lemon. If the dish has not been cooked in the oven it is best to substitute mashed potatoes in this menu, that the oven need not be employed for the construction of the meal.

We have had a number of request recipes that I wish to turn to today and so shall omit the tomato aspic and give only the peach pie.

Peach Pie.

Line a shallow pie shell with our usual pie paste and bake it. Peel eight peaches (if fresh, or use ten halves if canned), and slice them. Sprinkle generously with sugar and stew them (in a saucepan, of course, not in the pie shell), over a slow fire until they thicken. Turn into the pie shell when they are thoroughly cool and just before the pie is served cover with whipped cream. The better part of valor with this pie is not to turn the fruit into the pie shell at all until ready to serve the pie, for there is then no danger of the shell soaking, and the whole will be perfectly delicious.

Baked Turnips (Mrs. J. K. M.).

Wash two bunches of turnips, pare them, and cut them in small cubes. Place them in a casserole dish with a teaspoon of salt, one and three quarters teaspoons of sugar and two tablespoons of butter. Add to this from one-third to a half cup of white stock (made with chicken bouilion cubes), and cover closely. Bake in a moderate oven until turnips are soft.

Banana Pie (A. S.).

1 tablespoon cornstrach.
2 tablespoons flour.
Pinch of salt.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
Pint of milk.

Beat the eggs, add the sugar, cornstarch, salt and flour. Beat well and add the scalding hot milk. Cook for two minutes. Have a baked crust ready and cover the bottom of the crust with sliced bananas, then pour on the custard. Set aside until cold and then cover the top with whipped cream.

READ THIS ADVICE FROM A BEAUTY SPECIALIST

She says that the first essential to a good shampoo is that it should stimulate the scalp slightly to encourage a healthy growth of hair roots.

Here is a simple but effective shampoo which does this to perfection. Just dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of warm water and work it up into a soft, creamy lather which must be rubbed all over the head into the hair. You can do this in a hurry any time, because the hair dries so quickly and the results are delightful. Every strand will be lusterful and fluffy, and it rids the scalp of all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. All good druggists can supply you with canthrox, which is very inexpensive, costing only about three cents a shampoo.—Adv.

New way discards
like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

OLD-TIME "sanitary pads" are rapidly disappearing, because of a new way called KOTEX, that 8 in 10 better class women now employ.

Being 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," it permits lightest gowns and frocks without slightest fear. Dance, motor, go about for hours without a moment's doubt. And it deodorizes; thus ending all fear of offense.

Obtain at any store without embarrassment simply by saying "KOTEX." Try today and you'll never again risk the uncertainty of old ways.

Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

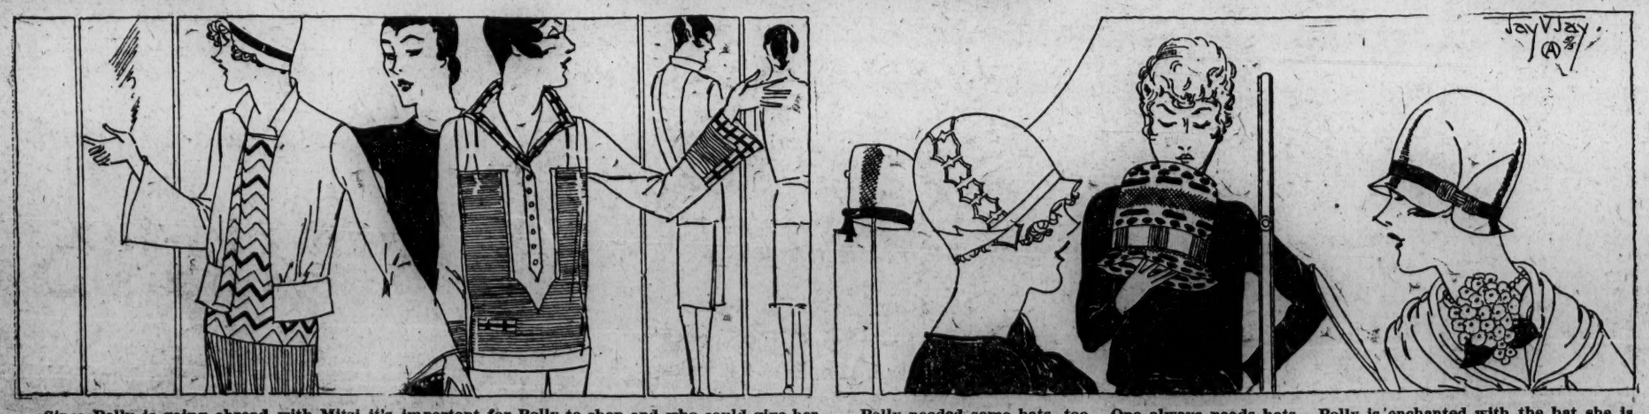
MODISH MITZI — Polly Tries to Buy Some Clothes — By Jay V. Jay



Since Polly is going abroad with Mitzi it's important for Polly to shop and who could give her better advice than Mitzi who has already done her travel shopping? Polly thinks this little jacket frock of jersey with its blouse knit in zigzags would be handy for somewhere, sometime. Mitzi is rather absent-minded about it because she is so engrossed in persuading herself that she really needs another dress—that is, if it is this dress with the pointed yoke effect in a material very much like kasha. She's just about convinced herself.

Polly needed some hats, too. One always needs hats. Polly is enchanted with the hat she is trying on—of rose colored felt with a brim cut into little peaks in front and turned up in back. The saleswoman is holding her other favorite—a simple affair that looks like an extremely disagreeable serpent skin. So smart! Polly would like Mitzi's advice on which to take, but Mitzi is rather engrossed with the effect of a little felt cut in an unusual way to fold above the ears. Yes, she thinks she'll really have to have this, herself.

BOND OFFERINGS REVEAL INCREASE DURING APRIL

R. E. JONES GIVES TALK

By F. W. PATTERSON.

The April total of new bond offerings reached $697,972,500, an increase of $190,306,000 over March offerings and a gain of $44,619,500 for the previous high figure of $653,353,000 in January, according to compilation by Dow, Jones & Co., made public yesterday.

Each month of the current year has outdistanced the corresponding month of 1926 in new offerings, this year's total for four months being $2,385,011,000 compared with $1,749,529,500, an increase of $635,481,500, or 36 per cent.

Although the total April offerings set up a new monthly record, there were not so many $10,000,000 issues, the number in this amount or better reaching 17 in April, compared with 19 in January, 13 in March and 14 in April last year.

Much of this financing, due to the expanding demand for bonds for investment and the low level of interest rates, was for refunding purposes. Of the $100,000,000 Federal Land Bank bonds, $8,000,000 was new money, as $92,000,000 was for refunding purposes. The Duquesne Light 4½ issue of $55,000,000 went to refund approximately $42,000,000 of the 5½s and 6s, so that the total of new money raised was small.

Large bond offerings in the foreign group were more frequent than in any of the others, with seven issues of $10,000,000 or more, exclusive of Canadian issues.

	1927	1926
January	$653,353,500	$470,048,000
February	578,500,500	400,981,000
March	455,185,000	370,834,000
April	697,972,500	507,666,500
Total	$2,385,011,000	$1,749,529,500

Bond Dealing Falls Off.

The volume of turnover in stocks in yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange was about on a parity with that of Tuesday, but there was a marked falling off in bond transactions. In the case of both types of securities there was no appreciable change in price levels.

Washington Gas Light was the market leader, and coming out unchanged at 73¾, it picked up ⅛ on next transaction, advanced to 74 on sales of 103 shares, and continued upward to 74⅛ on closing transaction. Capital Traction was firm, at 104⅞, while Potomac Electric Power preferred sold in a small lot at 103¾.

Bid price for bank stocks continued strong with shares of three institutions only moving. Washington Loan & Trust Co., sold in an odd lot at 484. Union Trust moved in an 8-share lot at 270, while Liberty National Bank sold at 207. Mergenthaler Linotype was the only stock of the miscellaneous group to come out, and advanced ½ point, to 110¼, on a small turnover.

In the bond division Georgetown Gas Light 5s sold at 101½, Washington Gas Light 6s, series "A," at 103⅞, and Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone 5s moved at 101.

Jones Addresses Luncheon.

Raymond E. Jones, vice president of the Bank of the Manhattan Co., was a guest yesterday of Robert V. Fleming, president Riggs National Bank, at the weekly forum luncheon of the District Bankers association at the Willard hotel. Mr. Jones, who is an authority on the early banking history of New York, was called on to speak and responded with some interesting and informative data of banking as it existed in the days of its infancy.

Due to the secrecy surrounding discussions at these weekly luncheons no information as to the proceedings is obtainable, but it is understood that the matter of early closing of the banks during the summer months was freely discussed, and so generally favorable were most of the bankers present, it is not beyond the realms of possibility that the plan may yet be satisfactorily worked out.

Building Association Elects.

Assets of the Washington 6 Per Cent Permanent Building association were $5,718,596.85 on January 31, 1927, an increase of $1,399,247.04 over the corresponding period last year, shareholders were told yesterday by J. A. Maedel, president, at the annual meeting in the company's offices, 629 F street northwest.

The election of officers and directors resulted in the reelection of the entire official family. They are J. A. Maedel, president; E. J. Sacks, vice president; H. H. Bergmann, treasurer, and L. G. Ostermayer, secretary, and these officials with the following comprise the board of directors: John H. Clipper, C. Rammling, John Henderson, C. J. Bergmann, John Waldman and Max Walten.

Final Steps in Latvian Funding.

Final steps were taken yesterday in connection with the funding of the indebtedness of the Republic of Latvia to the United States, according to announcement by the Secretary of the Treasury. Dr. Louis Seya, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Latvia at Washington, delivered to the Treasury, gold bonds of the Republic of Latvia in the principal amount of $5,775,000, receiving in exchange original obligations given by this government in connection with the purchase on credit of surplus war material from the United States liquidation commission and relief supplies from the American relief administration. The act approving the Latvian settlement was signed by the President on April 30, 1926.

Phone Offering Today.

Offering is made today by G. L. Ohstrom & Co., Inc., of a new issue of $1,000,000 first mortgage 5½ per cent gold bonds, series A, due 1942, of Consolidated Telephone Co. of Wisconsin. The bonds are priced at 97½ and interest, to yield about 5.75 per cent. The purpose of the issue is to retire all funded indebtedness outstanding in the hands of the public, to reimburse the company for additions and improvements recently made, and to provide funds for other corporate purposes.

Murphy Review Issued.

Cheap money and declining profits appear to be the conflicting forces either of which will determine the trend of the present securities market, according to the fortnightly review issued yesterday by G. M.-P. Murphy & Co., investment brokers.

"Everything points to reinforcement of both forces," says the review. "The field in which cheap money can exert the dominating influence is that of companies whose earnings are so far in excess of present dividends that no ordinary conditions can raise a doubt as to the continuance of the regular distribution. As to the rest of the general list, the question arises whether declining prices are not likely to be witnessed, and if so, when the decline may start. Individual securities in some of the weaker industries have, of course, already declined substantially.

"Considering our domestic situation alone, we must watch for signs of overdevelopment of particular industries," concludes the Murphy review. "Provided industry is balanced, it is possible to carry on with a declining commodity price level because adjustments of wages and profits tend to the gradual and more or less equalized; though the present trend of wages is, if anything, upward. But as soon as one special industry is thrown out of gear, it also throws out of gear a number of related industries."

Greene to Enter Loan Business.

Martin E. Greene, formerly assistant treasurer of the Mortgage Bond & Guaranty Corporation, which company was recently merged with the Mortgage Security Corporation of America, of Norfolk, Va., has resigned to enter the real estate loans and general insurance business, with offices at 1707 I street northwest.

Mr. Greene, who has been with the Mortgage Bond & Guaranty Corporation since its inception, is well acquainted with the first trust mortgage field of Washington and Virginia, and it is his purpose to specialize in District of Columbia and nearby Virginia loans.

PRICES CLOSE AT PEAK IN DAY'S BRISK UPSWING

Few Stocks Fail to Participate in Advance; Laclede Gas Up 18½ Points.

OILS DEVELOP STRENGTH

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, May 4.—Stocks continued to advance today in the most active session of the week, at least in point of volume of turnover, which was just under 2,200,000 shares. Call money was loaned freely at 4 per cent on the stock exchange, with plenty of funds available on the outside at 3¾. Few stocks failed to participate in the day's advance, with net gains of 1 to 4⅞ points numerous, and many new high records scored.

Laclede Gas was thrilled up from a low for the day of 199 to 216 and closed at that figure, up 18½ points net as compared with yesterday's final quotation. The previous record high was 200. Impetus was given to buying here by reports of an approaching stock split.

The forward movement in stocks went ahead, as usual now adays, with no particular basis in the day's news and apparently almost entirely because of the shifting speculative position. Presumably, the advance both yesterday and today was helped by "covering" purchases for the account of last week's speculative sellers.

Prices as a rule closed near the day's highs, although some issues eased off in the late trading under moderate selling pressure. In the latter class was General Motors, which had moved into new high ground at 198 in the early trading, finally closing at 196¼, its opening price. Paige-Detroit moved up 2¼ net, and Hudson gained 1½ points under active buying, but the other members of the automobile group just about held their own.

The oils generally stiffened, some of them, notably Houston, General Asphalt, Phillips Petroleum, Pan-American Petroleum, Marland, Standard Oil of California, Union Oil of California and several others, closed with substantial net gains extended to nearly 3 points. Assistance was given to the buying movement here by news that the refiners on the Pacific coast had settled their gasoline price war and advanced quotations. California Oil stocks rallied sharply on the news and carried other members of the group up with them.

The demand for standard issues in the industrial and railroad divisions was excellent. National Biscuit, highly favored, was boosted into new high territory at 124½, finishing the day with a net gain of 4⅞. United States Steel common moved listlessly, but closed with a net gain of almost a point. The independent steels were strong, most of them gaining 1 to 2 points net.

Gabriel Snubber topped its recent high, advancing to 39¾, a net gain of 1¼. Electric Automobile Light also entered new high ground at 81¼, up 1¼ net. Other new highs were scored by Congoleum-Nairn, Cleveland-Chandler preferred, Brooklyn Union Gas, Allis Chalmers, American Bank Note, Colorado Fuel, Paige-Detroit, Schulte Stores, White Sewing Machine, Western Union and Submarine Boat. Many other industrials and specialties scored good net gains but failed to regain all of their recent losses. Baldwin, American Smelting and Refining and other favorites were in good demand.

Baltimore & Ohio featured the carrier group, going to 120¾, its best level in twelve years, and closing with a net gain of 1⅜. Strength here was looked upon as foreshadowing the establishment of the stock on a regular $7 basis in the near future, preparatory to an offering of new stock to shareholders.

Many of the other rails were higher, those bullish on this group taking the falling off in car loadings as a reflection of the interference to business caused by the flood and the soft coal miners' strike.

Attention was directed to the motor shares by the announcement that Graham Brothers had acquired control of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. in one of the industry's most important transactions. Paige shares were in good demand at rising prices.

A sharp rise in American Ice was accompanied by rumors that the directors of the company soon would move to propose a split-up of the stock on a four-for-one basis.

United Drug was a trifle weak on the poor showing in its report for the first quarter of the year.

A further rise in sterling exchange to $4.86 was the outstanding development in the foreign exchange market. Sterling has not equaled today's quotation since last August. Italian lire slumped under speculative profit-taking. French francs were firm and about unchanged. Canadian dollars, which have been hovering near the gold shipping point for some time, lost a little ground.

NATS SCORE 7 RUNS IN FIRST TO DEFEAT YANKS, 7-4

July 9 Named For Dempsey Comeback

Paulino Has Agreed to Terms for Bout at Yanks' Stadium.

Winner Will Encounter Maloney-Sharkey Bout Victor.

NEW YORK, May 4 (By A. P.).—Tex Rickard today took his first definite step toward matching Jack Dempsey and Paulino Uzcudun for a heavyweight elimination boot this summer.

The Spaniard agreed to terms for two matches on a percentage basis of about 20 per cent. The first is scheduled to pit him against Dempsey at the Yankee stadium here July 9. If he beats the former champion, Paulino's second match will be against the winner of the Jimmy Maloney-Jack Sharkey bout in the stadium, May 19.

Only one detail remains for settlement before actual signing of contracts, Rickard said. The Basque woodchopper has demanded that the promoter post a guarantee of $25,000 to be paid in the event that Dempsey fails to carry through his intended comeback.

The guarantee, unprecedented here in any but championship battles, would insure Paulino against loss of bouts while waiting for Dempsey to come out of retirement, he said. Promoter Humbert Fugazy already has offered the Basque a match against Harry Wills, giant negro, at the Polo grounds, June 29.

Rickard objects to posting $25,000 on the ground that a match for Paulino with either Maloney or Sharkey and the prospect of meeting Gene Tunney for the championship is sufficient insurance against a summer of inactivity, even if Dempsey failed to return to the ring.

A's Lead Red Sox, 7-1; Rain Halts Game in 3d

Philadelphia, May 4 (By A. P.).—Rain today ended the Philadelphia-Boston American league game at the end of the third inning with the Athletics leading, 7 to 1. Russell started for Boston and was taken out in the second inning after a total of five runs had been scored off him. Lundgren succeeded him and was replaced in the third inning by Wilson. Walberg pitched for the Athletics.

Nats Face First Trip West Minus Services of Goslin

Slugger, Ill, Suffers Relapse and Will Be Out of St. Louis Series—Lisenbee Opposes Yanks in Final Game Today.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

REPORTS received yesterday regarding the progress of the Washington team's injured players were both encouraging and adverse. Goose Goslin, who had shown improvement Tuesday, suffered a slight relapse yesterday and it is indefinite how long he will be out of the line-up. He will not travel to St. Louis with the other members of the Washington club, but Pilot Harris hopes he will be able to rejoin the team in time for the series which opens in Chicago Tuesday.

Manager Harris expects to be able to take his place at second base in Saturday's opening game of the Western invasion, but he must recuperate rapidly to follow this schedule, for he is on crutches now and plans to take them with him when he and his charges leave on the tour tonight.

Sam Rice and Ossie Bluege also will take this trip with their mates, but neither is expected to play Saturday, although there is a possibility that the right fielder will be ready. His sinus trouble is responding rapidly to treatment. Bluege's strained leg muscle behind and above his right knee, might keep him idle until it has been given two or three more days of rest and treatment.

Naturally, all of the difficulties which the Nats have encountered this spring have somewhat affected the team's morale and, in the hope of bolstering the team's spirit, Manager Harris has decided to take Walter Johnson on the Western trip, although the veteran is not expected to be available until possibly the final game—the contest scheduled in Detroit with the Tigers on Sunday, May 22.

In making this decision to take the Old Master along, Harris reckons that his presence will act as a mental tonic to his men, all of whom are admirers of Johnson and whose confidence is likely to be partially restored by the veteran's presence.

Horace Lisenbee, who pitched a masterly game against the Red Sox Sunday, will try to make his record read "three in a row" this afternoon, when he will ascend the pitching mound for the Harrismen. Spit-baller Urban Shocker is likely to oppose him. Since the Memphis rookie's ruptured stomach-muscle has healed, he has done some fine flinging for the Nats.

Tony Lazzeri, Yankee second sacker, who has not been charged with an error this season, had three narrow escapes yesterday. On all three occasions the official scorer debated with himself before giving the batters the benefits of doubts.

"Stuffy" Stewart did some fast work in the first inning, but not fast enough to save Hollis Thurston an error. With Koenig on first, Ruth rolled to the Washington pitcher. He had a double

Shorey Leads Qualifiers In Golf

Leads Houghton by a Stroke in Wash. C.C. Medal Round.

Hagan, Sarazen Play Cruickshank and Armour Sunday.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

IN the first day of the qualification round of the Washington Golf and Country club's spring invitation tournament, the field was led by John C. Shorey, of the Argyle club, and District High school champion, with a card of 41—35—76. His nearest competitor was A. L. Houghton, Manor, whose card totaled 39—38—77.

Houghton's score was marred by four three-putt greens, and on three of the four par 3 holes he lost five strokes through too many putts or encounters with traps. The cards of the leaders were as follows:

Out—
Shorey	4	4	5	5	6	4	5	4	4	—41
Houghton	4	3	5	5	4	5	4	4	5	—39
In—
Shorey	4	3	4	4	4	5	3	3	5	—35—76
Houghton	3	5	4	4	4	4	4	4	6	—38—77

Although more than 100 contestants participated in the qualification round of eighteen holes, only 54 turned in cards of 99 or under and Shorey and Houghton were the only two players who were under 80.

Miss Dorothy White, the District woman champion, who is a member of the Washington club and who competed, had a card of 46—45—91, with no less than four 7s, although six holes of the round were played in par figures

Many of the other cards were interesting, Ray J. Morman, Washington, having eleven 5s in the eighteen holes, and James A. Drain, jr., Washington, scoring 8 on the short eleventh hole, when, with his ball within a few inches of the hole, he carelessly knocked it away and then lost all his other strokes in an endeavor to drop it in the cup.

E. A. Morse, Columbia, was making a good score, but when he finally holed out on the fifteenth hole with his thirteenth stroke he tore up his card.

John C. Shorey, Argyle	76
A. L. Houghton, Manor	77
Gordon Stone, Washington	80
Forrest Thompson, Argyle	81
J. B. Murphy, Columbia	81
John H. Davidson, Washington	84
Norman B. Frost, Indian Spring	85
E. W. Cushing, Washington	85
W. S. Warner, Washington	85
Dr. J. T. McClenahan, Washington	85
J. T. Barnes, Washington	86
T. Y. Milburn, Columbia	86
C. B. Hatch, Columbia	87
Ray J. Morman, Washington	88
H. M. Singleton, Washington	88
Hugh Mackenzie, Columbia	89

Chicago Seeks 1928 Public Links Tourney

Chicago, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Municipal Golf association has definitely decided to seek the national public links golf championship tournament of 1928 for one of the forest preserve courses. The tournament this year is to be held at Cleveland.

Chick Evans, former national titleholder, and now golf architect for the Cook county (Chicago) board of commissioners, has pledged the support of the board to secure the tournament and promised to have at least one of the three forest preserve courses "in championship form" by next year.

Webb Stars for Cubs As Reds Lose, 13 to 9

Chicago, May 4 (By A. P.).—Chicago blasted Pete Donahue and Jakie May off the hill in the third inning today, scoring eight runs and easily defeating Cincinnati in a slugging match, 13 to 9.

In the third innng Webb started a rally with a double on Donahue and finished with a home run at the expense of Jakie May with two men scoring in front of him.

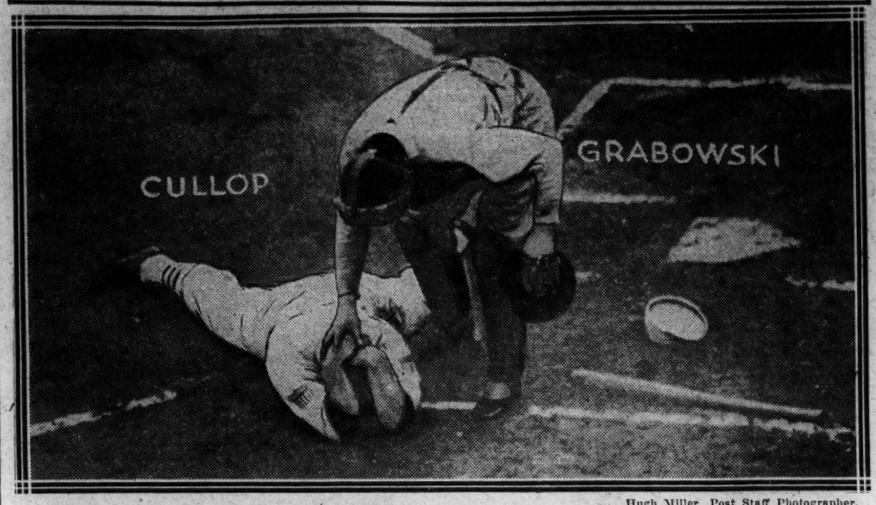
CULLOP STUNNED BY DUTCH RUETHER'S PITCH



Hugh Miller, Post Staff Photographer.

Nick Cullop, substitute Washington outfielder, was felled in the first inning when hit on the head by one of Ruether's curves. He is seen above after being struck with Catcher Grabowski, of the Yankees, the first to reach his side. The crack of the ball as it hit Cullop's head was heard in the grandstand. It was several minutes before the outfielder recovered, but he gamely continued in the game.

CARDS LEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pirates Defeated, 8-3; Frisch Stars at Bat and Afield.

PITTSBURGH, May 4 (By A. P.). St. Louis avenged yesterday's defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh by hammering two Pirate hurlers today for an 8 to 3 victory. The win put the Cards at the head of the league.

Bunched hits, coupled with costly Pirate errors, made it easy for St. Louis Haines chalked up his fifth consecutive win of the season.

It was a field day for Frankie Frisch. He collected two triples and two runs, and took nine chances in the field without a slip. P. Waner, with three hits, including a triple, starred for the Pirates. L. Bell hit the only homer of the game.

Browns Hit Hard; Down Indians, 13-9

St. Louis, Mo., May 4 (By A. P.).—The St. Louis Browns knocked Levsen and Shaute out of the box today and won from the Cleveland Indians, 13 to 3.

The Browns garnered six of their runs in the sixth inning on five hits. Sisler stole home in that frame.

Chisox Beat Tigers; Fothergill Hits Again

Detroit, May 4 (By A. P.).—A grouping of hits by the Chicago White Sox with Gibson's wildness and one Detroit error, resulted in the Tigers losing the third game of the series today 11 to 5. Ted Blankenship, who started in the box for Chicago, was taken out in the seventh when the Tigers threatened but Connally, who relieved him, held the opposition safe for the remainder of the game Fothergill contributed three hits, including a double and triple to the lost Tiger cause.

It was the sixteenth successive game in which Fothergill, the leading batter of the America league, has hit safely. McCurdy cracked out a circuit clout for the visitors.

Dempsey Quits Races With $7,500 Profit

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—Jack Dempsey is out of the horse racing game with a profit of $7,500, according to George Coburn, his trainer, who has bought the former champion's horses and will continue to race them under the name of the Canyon stable.

The principal money-winner of Dempsey's string was Old Kickapoo, who won several races after being purchased for $3,600. Dempsey never went to extremes in betting on his horses, Coburn says, his wagers averaging less than $200. His biggest plunge was $500 on Old Kickapoo at 6 to 5.

Although he is selling his racers, Dempsey likes horses and plans to come back with "a bigger and better stable," he told Coburn. The wish to get rid of all excess baggage in his attempted comeback to the ring is given as his reason for disposing of his horses now.

Varsity "G" Banquet Tonight at Willard

Final arrangements have been completed for the third annual varsity "G" banquet to be held tonight at the Willard hotel under the auspices of the Georgetown University Athletic association.

Knute Rockne, John T. McGovern and "Navy Bill" Ingram will head the list of speakers. A capacity crowd of 750 is assured by a sellout of tickets.

DERBY CHOICE IN SPEEDY TRIAL

Recent Injury Fails to Handicap Osmand, Widener Star.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4 (By A. P.). Osmand, whose recent injury created a stir among those who had made him the favorite in the winter books, turned in a good workout at Churchill Downs today in preparation for the Kentucky derby. Jockey Earl Sande took him a mile in 1:43. The big chestnut gelding ran with his left forefoot in a bandage, but showed no ill effects after the workout.

Over a sloppy course, the son of Sweeper-Ormanda stepped the first quarter mile in 0:23 3-5, half in 0:48 1-5, five eighths in 1:00 3-5, three quarters in 1:14, seven eighths in 1:28, and the mile in 1:43, although some clockers caught him in 1:42.

Trainers for the Joseph E. Widener stable, encouraged by their charge's improvement, expect to carry out their original intention and give Osmond his first race under colors in the mile derby trial at the Downs Saturday.

All of the derby eligibles brought here from Lexington, where the ten-day meet closed today, were out for gallops. J. S. Taylor's Scotland Light cantered a mile in 1:52; Hydromel, from the Johnson N. Hydromel, from the Johnson M. Camden stable, did not attempt any fast work.

This candidate is thoroughly fit and is rapidly gaining favor as a result of his record-breaking performances at Lexington last week.

Creek Indian and Canaan, which were named for the derby, worked a creditable mile in 1:44 2-5.

Bentley's Hit in 10th Defeats Robins, 4 to 3

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—Brooklyn's winning streak ended today when the Giants poked through to a 4-to-3 victory in the tenth inning. Bentley drove Lindstrom home from second with the deciding run with a single to center field.

Elliott pitched great ball for Brooklyn up to the ninth, when four straight hits and a wild pitch scored two runs.

Cobb to Be Honored On Return to Detroit

Detroit, May 4 (By A. P.).—Arrangements have been completed here for a testimonial to Ty Cobb, under the auspices of the University of Michigan and intercollegiate clubs, to be held next Tuesday, the day the famous Georgian pays his first visit to Detroit in the garb of a rival baseball club—the Philadelphia Athletics.

A welcoming committee composed of persons prominent in State and local affairs has been appointed and a luncheon arranged at which Cobb will be presented with a number of gifts.

Ruether Fails To Last an Inning

Thurston Twirls Well; Stewart and Ruel Lead Attack.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH,
Sports Editor The Post.

THE crippled Washington ball club suffered a relapse yesterday and won a game from the Yankees. The Yankees didn't suspect that any team with four rookies and a few reclaimed ball players in the line-up could carry the batting punch which Washington exhibited yesterday and were taken unawares by the ferocity with which the Nationals waved their bats.

The blast came without warning. Beaten successively by the Yanks earlier in the week, the Washington club seemed possessed of a spirit to make a lot of hits, and when the first inning was over the Nats were leading, 7 to 3, and won the game by 7 to 4.

Dutch Ruether, who used to pitch for Bucky Harris and who now is the star lefthander of the Yankees' staff, pitched yesterday and was ignorant of the change which had transformed the Washington hitters from meek, submissive willow wavers into demon sluggers swinging from the heels at every pitch and connecting with most of them.

MURZIM FINISHES FAST TO TAKE PIMLICO FEATURE

Salmon Horse Scores By A Nose

Peter Fiz Is Second, With The Heathen Third.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 4.—In a thrilling finish, coming from last place at the top of the home stretch, Walter J. Salmon's 3-year-old, Murzim, got up in the final stride to win the fourth renewal of the Rennert handicap at Pimlico this afternoon. This stake, fashioned for 3-year-olds, $5,000 added, at 6 furlongs, brought out a field of nine.

There were two entries, Sir Harry and Wandering Minstrel, racing for the Seagram stable, and Candy May and Candy Pig for H. T. Archibald. The major portion of the play was divided between them. Wandering Minstrel caused a delay of 4 minutes at the post and when the barrier was sprung he was off in front.

Peter Fiz, showing a great flight of early speed, soon caught and passed him and, after assuming an easy lead, was taken in hand and he'd command. He was still in front entering the home stretch, where he appeared to have a safe lead.

In the meantime Murzim was a trailer and looked to be hopelessly out of it. Maiben was sitting still putting up one of his famous chilly rides. Not until straightened out for the final run did he make an effort and, when he let Murzim out, the latter began mowing down the leaders, closing with a great burst of speed that landed him in front of Peter Fiz in the last stride.

It was the closest sort of a finish, with the winner in doubt until the official placing was displayed. The Heathen was third, beaten a length for the place. The winner's portion of the purse was $4,740. Trainer T. J. Healey appears to have a mortgage on this stake. In the five runnings he has saddled the winner on three different occasions, R. T. Wilson's Tail Timber winning in 1923 and the same owner's Senaldo capturing the stake in 1925.

J. Healey, acting for the Laurel Park stud, disposed of the steeplechaser Crimson Dawn to Messrs. Gough Thompson and D. V. Croker, of Detroit. He also sold to H. Booker the 2-year-old Pagonetta, by Pagan Pan and Route Step, by Sir Barton.

The Bostwick horses will probably be shipped from here to New York and later on to Chicago, where they will be campaigned this summer.

Johnny Callahan probably will have the mount on Fair Star in the Pimlico Oaks tomorrow. Bourassa, who had been engaged to ride the mare, is confined to his home suffering from an attack of pleurisy.

W. du Pont, jr., was a visitor at Pimlico. He reports that his young stallion, The Satrap, by The Tetrarch has been bred to three mares, one of them Lustre Hour, a filly that carried his colors last season.

With his wonderful breeding and splendid conformation, The Satrap should be a great success in the stud. He will be bred to a few more mares this spring.

Dr. William Hopkins, brother of Freddy Hopkins, one of James Rowe's assistant trainers and a successful rider himself a few years back, will be seen in the saddle in the Old Timers' race, which will be run at Pimlico Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Hopkins will have the mount on the Kentucky derby winner, Paul Jones, who has been used as a saddle pony by William Garth for the past two years.

The field in this event will number nine or ten and all of the riders will be presented with a handsome souvenir by the Maryland Jockey club. The rider of the winner will have his choice of these souvenirs and a split second gold watch will be given to the owner of the winning horse.

The Greentree stable has shipped the jumper, Jolly Roger, over from Belmont park to start in the Green Spring Valley steeplechase.

Justice F. is coming over to start in the Preakness. He is due to arrive at the old hilltop track tomorrow.

Capt. P. M. Walker and Frank V. Tilford, two well-known breeders from Berryville, Va., were visitors. Mr. Tilford has eleven mares on his place. He is sending two colts to the Saratoga sales this summer, the first of the get of Sunference, one out of the Merry Sinner by Bryn Mawr and another out of Colette by Ormsdale. He has bred several of his mares this spring to Dunlin.

The Tilford stud is located on a farm on which his great-great-grandfather raced horses over 150 years ago. It is one of the most historical places in that part of Virginia and is adjacent to the farm of Capt. P. M. Walker.

D. Kearney will take a division of the stable that James Boden is handling from here to Toronto. Goldbeater will be among them. Boden will take the main string to New York. The clever apprentice, M. Fishman, will accompany Kearney to Canada.

The mare, Mrs. Finley, came out of her race yesterday lame. She spread her foot during the running of the race and will be on the shelf for a time.

† H. P. Whitney entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Royal Pennant (H. P. Whitney entry), $4.90, $2.80, $2.20; Inquisitor, $4.80, $2.90; Pink Lilly, $2.80.

Royal Pennant, a keen factor from the start, was outfooted rounding the turn out of the backstretch, came to the outside of the leaders in stretch run and, closing resolutely under punishment, wore Inquisitor down to get up in the concluding strides. Inquisitor broke from the extreme outside position, moved into contention fast, disposed of keen opposition from Birdwood, but faltered the last furlong. Pink Lilly, away well and placed forwardly, swerved several times during the stretch run, but finished with good energy.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won ridden out. Place easily. Went to post at 3:03. Off at 3:04. Winner, W. S. Kilmer's blk. f. (3), by Allnemier—St. Fey. Trained by H. McDaniel. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:16, 1:42 3-5, 1:49 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Allfey, $4.50, $3.00, $2.50; Dexter, $3.60, $2.00; Ambition, $4.30.

Allfey broke well, but immediately dropped out of contention going to the first turn, gained rapidly on the outside of her opposition in the run down the backstretch, was blocked slightly at the far turn and taken to the outside; again gained command and was kept under urging to stall off Dexter. Latter took the lead midway of the backstretch, was rated in front, saved ground all the way and held on gamely to the finish. Ambition was forced wide into the main stretch. He closed stoutly.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won driving. Place easily. Went to post at 3:34. Off at 3:37. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—Forestar, $19.70, $10.50, $7.20; Forest Lore $16.90,, $14.20; Powder, $3.80.

Forestar, reserved off the pace for the first five furlongs, moved to the leaders with good courage, raced Powder into submission and, holding on gamely, just managed to stall off Forest Lore. Latter, slow to get going, improved his position steadily the last part of the trip and finished going strong on the inside of the winner. Powder, a keen factor throughout, weakened when the real issue came.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Rennert handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 4:10. Off at 4:14. Winner, W. J. Salmon's ch. c. (3), by North Star III—Woodflower. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $4,740; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 2-5.

† H. T. Archibald entry. ‡ Seagram Stable entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Murzim, $14.40, $9.50, $6.30; Peter Fiz, $20.60, $12.40; The Heathen, $10.80.

Murzim, slow to get into his stride and badly outpaced for the first five furlongs, continued wide the entire trip and, finishing with a belated rush the last quarter, passed his opposition handily and was up in the last strides. Peter Fiz displayed keen early speed, showed keen opposition from the Heathen entering the home stretch, but Hebert appeared overconfident and eased his mount the last sixteenth and he could not be gotten together in time to stave off the winner's rush. The Heathen, a keen factor throughout, held on well and outstayed Wandering Minstrel.

FIFTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,500. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47. Winner, W. J. Salmon's br. c. (2), by Sweep—Retrieve. Trained by J. R. Pryce. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; fourth, $200. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 0:54.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Thuron, $10.50, $6.00, $4.10; Knight, $6.00, $3.30; Flower Girl, $3.90.

Thuron, hustled along the first part of the trip, sprinted into a good lead, opened up at his leisure the last furlong and was kept going at his best clip to the end. Knight was rushed into contention, was placed to punishment and finished with excellent courage, but could not threaten the winner. Flower Girl, in nearest pursuit in the early running, faltered slightly when the final issue came.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place same. Went to post at 5:15. Off at 5:24. Winner, R. Jay Johnson's b. g. (6), by Ballot—Ursula Emma. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Long Point, $8.30, $5.20, $3.60; King O'Neill II, $12.40, $8.30; Ice (Field), $4.70.

Long Point, prominent in the early running, disposed of Red Light without effort, sprinted into a commanding lead and was in hand all the last furlong. King O'Neill II, slow to get under way, improved position over winner down stretch. Ice moved up stoutly rounding the far turn and finished well.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place same. Went to post at 5:53. Off at 5:54. Winner, R. Parr's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—Backrope, $14.80, $4.80, $3.20; Architect, $4.10, $2.70; Long Joe, $2.50.

Backrope was taken back off the pace on reaching the backstretch, was steered to the outside of the leaders and, moving into the lead with a rush, drew out into a long lead, but was bearing out all through the stretch run. Architect, always well up with the pace, disposed of Abul Fath, but was unable to keep pace with the winner the last of the journey. Long Joe closed with good courage, but could not make up any ground.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER.

PIMLICO OAKS.

This splendid feature is the outstanding attraction at the old Hilltop course this afternoon. Overnight ten fillies have been named but of these several must, because of class, be eliminated. After careful deduction I have narrowed the issue down to a battle between FAIR STAR, PANDERA and CANDY MAY, with a slight favor shown to the latter. This because of the race she ran to Canter and when beaten the shortest of margins by the Griffith racer.

The "dark horse" is MINNA DOON, which is making her 1927 debut.

In the day's opener I am stringing along with KANGAROO, which was schooled over this course and on which an overnight commission was reported. GASPER, TOP NOTCH and BEVERWICK are also closely bunched.

In the second I am going to drag an old-fashioned pickler from the vat in "Sammy" Ross' sleeper, ONE CENT. John Loew has this one rearin' to go. The JONES ENTRY will rule favorite, and on paper seems a tough nut to crack. INLAID is the chief reliance, and was heavily bet on last time.

The fourth brings out an angle of "dope" that should prove or disprove its worth. I refer to PENSTICK and BLACK PANTHER. The latter was beaten a whisker by Saxon, while he won his previous race. PENSTICK was given a pipe opener last time, but is reported fit as the proverbial fiddle.

MARINER may split out BANTON and SANFORD. In the closing dash, I believe CANISTER is better placed than in some time. Also, I understand the stable is down hook, line and sinker. KATHLEEN CROSBY is also well placed and should furnish the contention, with SIR LEONID the dangerous outsider.

Over at Aurora, if they do have some more rain, the card is also pretty well balanced. I understand they are betting on SETH'S ROMANCE. Nuff sed.

MARYLAND U. MEET DRAWS DISTRICT SCHOOL TEAMS

Central High Favorite in Meet

Local Entries Named for Events Listed Saturday.

Devitt Is Washington's Single Prep School Representative.

By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD.

THE Washington high schools and Devitt Prep face a formidable rival in Episcopal High school track team, of Alexandria, as the Episcopal stars are rated among the strongest of the 310 athletes of 29 schools who will compete in the University of Maryland interscholastic track meet at College Park Saturday.

The District high schools, with the exception of Business, which is not represented, and Devitt Prep, are entering practically their entire squads. From comparative performances of the teams, granting that Devitt has not shown its strength as yet, the local schools should run Central, Tech, Eastern, Devitt and Western.

In the dashes, Central will rely upon Price, Brashears, Hall and Huhn, while M. Perry, Plumley, Krupshaw, W. Perry, McGarry, Cultman and Moore will run in the middle distance and distance events. Kennedy, Colley, Allen, Hyde and Fischer will compete in the high and low hurdles.

In the field events, Central's best point winners should be Kline, Davis and James, in the discus; James, Cross and Stevens, in the shot; Kline, Milans and Lange, in the high jump; Reinohl, Colley and Kennedy, in the broad jump; Proctor and Stevens, in the pole vault and Kline, James and Hall for the javelin.

Coach Hardell, of Tech, declares that his squad is showing steady improvement, but that it will not reach its full strength for the Maryland meet. Havell, Blackistone and Shaw shape up as his best runners and Jeter and McDonald are expected to be strong in the field events.

Florence and Postlewaite will run the 100 and 220; Havell, Blackistone and Geiger the 440 and Shaw, Griffith and Mitchell the half-mile.

The other Tech entries are: Grigga, Adams and Saunders, mile; Blanford, Morhart and Fellows, high hurdles and low hurdles; Casassa and Bailey, shot put; McDonald, Jeter, Stutz, Kriemelmeyer, javelin; Jeter, Oehmann, McDonald, discus; Jeter, McDonald Edelblut, pole vault; McDonald, Wollner, Rosenthal, Morhart, high jump, and Postelwaite and Casassa, broad jump.

Coach Rath, of Eastern, has made 48 entries in the 13 events and the Eastenders will rely upon their veterans to put them in the running as follows: Talbert, Zambreny, Clow, Clapper and Smoke in the dashes; Roper, in the quarter mile; Entwisle, O'Brien and Brown, McCullough and Witney, in the half mile; Entwisle, O'Brien, Miles and Shorb, in the mile.

In the field events, Wynn and Riley are the hopes in the pole vault; Brasear and Langhenry, in the shot put; Anderson, Fogle and Snell, in the discus; Cosimano and Hartman, in the javelin and high jump; Camera and Bushong, in high jump; Talbert, Cosimano and McGlathery, in the broad jump; Bushong, McGlathe:y, Camera and Cosimano will run the hurdles.

Western, the weakest of the District schools, has Buckley, a hurdler and high jumper; Gilbert, a half miler; Zimmerman, a quarter miler; Jumper, a miler; Bell and Brownfield will compete in the sprints and Fouts, Stanley, Joseph and Nyman in the field events. Outstanding among the Devitt entries are Hopper and South in the quarter; Guthlen and Mettles in the mile; Russells in the half, and Harris in the hurdles.

TIGERS PLAY PARK VIEW.

The Takoma Tigers will meet the Park View nine at 3:30 tomorrow on No. 3 diamond.

BUSY SPORTS DAY FOR MD. SATURDAY.

Track, Baseball and Lacrosse Booked for Varsity.

WHILE the interscholastic games, in which 29 schools have entered more than 300 athletes for the thirteen open and 8 events closed to county high school of the State, will feature the field day at the University of Maryland at College Park Saturday, there are three other contests that hold probably as much interest.

Old Line varsity teams will meet two old rivals in tackling Virginia at baseball in the morning at 10:30 in the first event of the big program and in engaging Johns Hopkins in a dual meet in the afternoon at 1:30, that will be run concurrently with the scholastic competition.

Another contest that promises real fireworks, the final of the day, will be staged when the Maryland and Princeton lacrosse teams take the field. Both have top notch twelves and on what they have shown so far this season are well matched.

They should provide a stirring finale to a big day. It will be the Old Liners' last home game of the season, as Stevens will be met in Hoboken on May 14 and Johns Hopkins in Baltimore on May 21.

In addition to the events already enumerated, the Terrapin tennis team will take on the Randolph Macon racketers at noon.

All of the Washington High schools will have large representations in the open interscholastic events, but the Capital lads will have their work cut out for them to gain some of the watches that go to the winner in each of the thirteen open contests. Episcopal High and Woodberry Forest have their sterling bunch of athletes entered, while two North Carolina and a pair of West Virginia schools are sending squads that contain clever performers.

It is regretted that Baltimore City college will not be represented, but the school was a day late in an effort to put in its entries and had to be left out.

Tri-City League Nines Meet at Post Tonight

Representatives of the six teams which will comprise the new Tri-City league will meet tonight at The Post to complete their plans for the coming season. The present plans call for two clubs from each of the following cities: Baltimore, Annapolis and Washington.

Frank A. Ruth, president of Baltimore's sandlot body, will be present at the meeting.

The six clubs included Bethlehem Steel and Hampteds, of Baltimore; Eastport and Reina Mercedes, of Annapolis and Georgetown A. C. and Shamrocks, of Washington.

College Tennis Teams In Action Here Today

The Georgetown and University of Maryland tennis teams will be the only local college athletic teams in action today on local fields. Georgetown will oppose the Carnegie Tech netmen and the Old Liners will meet North Carolina.

Catholic university's baseball team, which was defeated by Mount St. Mary's at the Brookland stadium two weeks ago, will journey to Emmitsburg to oppose the same team in an effort to even up the count.

Byrne will get the pitching assignment for Coach Moran's men today. Ray Foley, star centerfielder, who was out of the game for three weeks with a dislocated ankle, is back in the line-up.

Virginia Surprises Fordham Nine, 4 to 2

New York, May 4.—Johnny Murphy, star twirler of Fordham's Freshman team of last year, found varsity competition a somewhat sterner brand of sport when he faced the University of Virginia nine at Fordham field this afternoon and, after having been knicked for eight hits and four runs, Johnny was yanked. The damage had been done, however, for the Southerners won, 4 to 2.

Beard, a talented southpaw, twirled fine ball for the visiting array and not until the Virginians had piled up their four-run lead was Fordham able to score off his delivery.

GAME POSTPONED.

The Central High School-Georgetown Prep baseball game scheduled for yesterday was called off at the request of Coach Kimble, of Central. The game may be played Saturday, but if not arranged then will be played on May 18 or 25.

CARDINAL PEEWEES WIN.

The Cardinal Peewees defeated the Holy Comforter Peewees, 4 to 0, yesterday. Simpson was the winning pitcher. James and Hunt starred at bat.

SMITHFIELD JRS. MEET.

The Smithfield Juniors will meet Friday night at 8 o'clock at the home of George Faina, 308 Fourteenth street northwest. Plans for entering the Capital City league will be discussed and all players are requested to be present.

REDS HAVE SUITS.

The Central Reds are craving an opportunity to display their new uniforms. Games are wanted with midget teams. Call Adams 3833 between 6 and 7 o'clock.

Auroras vs. Tates.

The Aurora Midgets will play the Tate Midgets on the East Ellipse diamond Saturday at 11 o'clock. The Auroras are also looking for Sunday games. Call Lincoln 4085.

Washington City Association Bowling Tournament Results

The District Duckpin league came into the limelight when Meyer Davis rolled 1,767 on the Convention hall alleys last night to take the lead in Class A team event of the seventeenth annual tournament of the Washington City Duckpin association. The Moore, Naples, Watson, Logan, McGoldrich quintet turned in games of 572, 569 and 612.

Arthur Logan, rolling anchor, was the individual star with 406, which gave him an all-event total of 1,106, just one pin short of Baxter's 1,109.

YANKEES BOW TO BATTING OF NATS

First intimation that Washington was a different team yesterday came when Stewart, lead-off man, tripled over Meusel's head. McNeely, who found his way into the line-up yesterday, scored Stewart with a single. He went to second on Speaker's single to right and advanced to third when Grabowski threw wildly attempting to catch Speaker off first base. Speaker died stealing. Cullop was hit by Ruether and with two on base, Judge doubled to right field, scoring McNeely.

The lower end of the Nats' batting order also proved effective and Rigney beat out a hit down the third base line, scoring Cullop. Reeves singled to right, scoring Judge and sending Rigney to third. Shawkey replaced Ruether, and Muddy Ruel greeted him with a lusty triple to center field, clearing the bases and accounting for the fifth and sixth runs of the inning.

Thurston singled sharply to left, scoring Ruel, and then Stuffy Stewart obtained his second hit of the inning, a single. Koenig backed under McNeely's fly and Lazzeri threw out Speaker to end the inning with two on base.

Thereafter the Washington attack was negligible. A few hits were scattered throughout the remainder of the game, but Thomas, relieving Shawkey, was always in command.

The Yanks scored a run in the second after Morehart, hitting for Shawkey, walked with one out. He went to third on Koenig's single and scored on Ruth's single off Stewart's glove.

Not until the ninth, when Thurston weakened, did the Yanks seriously threaten again. With one out, Combs singled, but Koenig flied to McNeely. Thurston walked Ruth and with two balls on Gehrig, Harris sent Braxton in. Braxton completed the job of passing Gehrig to fill the bases, but Meusel ended the game with a fly to West.

TEAM FACES TOUR WITH GOSLIN ABSENT

play in sight, but pegged badly. Rigney knocked the ball down and Stewart, backing him up, recovered it in time to catch Koenig overrunning the base. The miscue was charged because the runner was caught after instead of before he reached the sack.

Although the box score does not show it, Outfielder Nick Cullop received a nasty blow on the head when he was unable to get out of the way of one of Dutch Ruether's slants in the first inning yesterday. The pitcher was not charged with a hit batsman, because the scoring rules give the batter a base on balls when the pitch that hits him happens to be a fourth ball.

Ballplayers are not superstitious, but it will take much argument to convince Manager Harris that yesterday's victory was not due to the fact that, just before the game, he removed the little blackboard reading "88 more needed" from the home locker room. This was his first move in his search for the "something" which has been "jinxing" his 1927 American league entry.

As a time-saver, the Yankees offered to let some one run for Cullop without forcing him from the game, but Manager Harris is not overly fond of the Huggmen and declined to accept any favors from them. Cullop ran for himself and then gave way to West in the next inning. Nick was not badly hurt, although a big bump marks the spot where he was struck.

Win or lose, the Harrismen were determined to play yesterday's game. Ordinarily, with their team so badly handicapped, they would have prayed for rain, but this is the Yankees' second visit here, and under the league rules a postponement yesterday would have meant a twin bill today. And for a crippled team two single games are better than a double-decker.

Babe Ruth certainly is getting his share of strikeouts of late. He fanned twice Monday, twice Tuesday and once yesterday.

Grabowski's arm was in fine fettle yesterday, the Yankee back-stopper catching the only three Harrismen who attempted to steal. When he nailed Speaker in the first, he made the only out registered while 10 Washington batters were doing their stuff. Stewart made the first and last of the Nats' nine hits in this frame, opening with a triple and closing the rally with a one-baser.

play will follow tomorrow and Saturday, with the final rounds on Saturday afternoon. At the conclusion of the tournament the prizes, which are unusually unique and attractive, will be presented by Senator Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, who will be introduced by the president of the club, Representative R. Walton Moore.

The officials of the Congressional Country club have decided to make the golf classic next Sunday—a four-ball match with Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen paired against Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruickshank—an open-for-all event, except that badges will be sold to nonmembers of the club at $1 each.

It was at first thought desirable, if not necessary, to limit the size of the gallery to insure against interference with the play and for the convenience of those witnessing the game. It has been determined, however, not to limit the gallery other than to bar children under 12 years of age.

The announcement issued by the president of the club, Joseph H. Himes, states that "the Congressional course is roomy, and it is believed that, by use of the control system now being perfected, it will be possible for even an unprecedented gallery to be handled so as to enable all to see each shot made by the players.

Arrangements have been made for serving lunch for members and nonmembers. The first round is scheduled to start at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and the second round at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

EAGLE MIDGETS VS. TATES.

The Anacostia Eagle Midgets will play the Tate Midgets at 2 o'clock Sunday on the Fairlawn diamond.

The Sportswoman

THE McFarland Junior High girls' baseball team scored an easy victory over the girls from Brightwood yesterday, piling up 20 runs to Brightwood's 1. Virginia Miller and Winifred Ellis, of McFarland, knocked two home runs each, and Frances Wilson, of Brightwood, obtained one.

McFarland starred afield as well as at bat. Three double plays were completed by its infield and no costly errors were made. Members of the team were Virginia Miller, pitcher; Winifred Ellis, catcher; Berkley Hendrix, first base; Georgie Keller, second base; Olivene Brufley, third base; Eloise Wilson, shortstop; Harriet Behrend, right field; Margaret Griges, center field; Bessie Buchanan, left field; substitutes, Helen Sherwood and Sally Aman.

SCHOOL RIFLISTS IN MATCH.

The second match of the girls' interhigh school rifle shot will be held today on the Eastern range with Center and Eastern meeting. Central has one win to its credit, having nosed out Western on Monday by 23 points.

The match is scheduled for 3 o'clock with the teams lined up as follows:

N. A. A. F. Here to Resume.

The Washington group of the women's division of the National Amateur Athletic Federation is planning to resume activities some time after May 15, depending on word from the national headquarters.

According to Miss Elsie Sanders, president of the local branch, some interesting material is expected from the committee, which has recently been in session in Des Moines. A program of games and folk dancing will be arranged.

The girls of the municipal playgrounds who completed the athletic efficiency test this week received their buttons yesterday. One hundred and sixty girls who failed in one requirement on May day were given another trial and 63 passed.

The awards were given to the following for their proficiency in goal throwing, balancing, hiking, swimming, leadership, vocational, rating, collecting, folk dancing and sportsmanship, covering the gold, silver and bronze tests.

Gold button—Betty Cornwell, of Mitchell Park.

Soccer Association Planning for Season

The Washington and Southeastern District Soccer association last night issued a call to all clubs expecting to place a soccer eleven in the local leagues of the association.

All teams, including those which played in the Washington Soccer league during the past two seasons and others that will compete the first time next fall, are expected to signify this in writing to William Oram, secretary of the association, room 2, District building, before June 5.

Officials of the association explained that this move is necessary in order to state to the United States Football association the number of teams that will compete locally when application is made for a permanent Washington-controlled association.

Women Golf Stars Win in Dixie Tourney

Laurel, Miss., May 4 (By A. P.).—Favorites came through the first round of match play in the woman's Southern Golf association tournament in almost every instance today, with Miss Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, the present champion, standing out in a brilliant field.

Miss Turpie added to her honors by winning the driving contest, her three balls going a total of 485 yards, or an average of 161 2-3 yards.

Joe Dundee Battles Drako at Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., May 4.—Joe Dundee, Baltimore's challenger of Pete Latzo, for the world's welterweight boxing championship, will fight in Annapolis next week as the headline attraction of a card of contests to be staged under auspices of the Annapolis post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. His opponent will be Billy Drako, visiting German welterweight king.

The Hagerstown Baseball association, which sponsored a number of boxing meets during the winter, sought Dundee for a mill with Drako, but Joe preferred Annapolis, owing to its proximity to Washington and Baltimore, and the prospect of drawing a bigger gallery.

John Law Threatens Fight Game in Hawaii

Honolulu, May 4 (By A. P.).—Boxing in the Hawaiian islands is in for another legal struggle for its existence in the belief of sports followers here.

After a winter and spring of numerous ring shows the edict has gone forth that the Federal laws against prize fighting in the Territory must be obeyed. In the past, officials say, the statutes have been evaded through the formation of "clubs," which have sold "memberships" entitling the "member" to a seat at one fight program. Boxers were paid only "training expenses," but the "expenses" in some cases have been very high.

The territorial legislature has memorialized congress for an amendment of the law against boxing.

Hilltop A. C. Team Boasts Star Players

The Hilltop A. C. is seeking Sunday games for June, July and August against the leading unlimited teams of this locality.

The Hilltops boast a strong line-up, composed of Boroman, McClelland, catchers; Foley, Kines, Wheeler and Wesley, pitchers; Manager Alsop, Edinger, F. Wesley and McCathran, infielders; Harks, Hays, E. Edinger and Glotzbach, outfielders.

RAIL AND UTILITY BONDS SCORE GOOD ADVANCES

Market Generally Displays a Firm Undertone; New Issues Oversubscribed.

FOREIGN GROUP IS ACTIVE

New York, May 4 (By the Associated Press).—Prompt oversubscription of two new bond issues, aggregating $65,000,000, coupled with easy money rates and a revival of rumors of an early decrease in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate, imparted a firm undertone to prices in today's bond market. While the demand was not heavy, substantial gains were nevertheless recorded by a number of the railroad and public utility shares.

Insurance companies and other large financial institutions are reported to be heavy purchasers of seasoned listed securities. Several of the speculative issues, particularly those with convertible features, rallied in sympathy with the upward movement in stock prices.

Increased interest in the foreign group resulted from discussions on foreign financing at the meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington. Most of the liens were firm on the theory that the warnings issued at that meeting would result in fewer new foreign issues to compete with those outstanding. French bonds were strong on private cable advices that the troublesome match monopoly problem finally had been settled on terms satisfactory to the French government. Holland-American 6s and Rhinelbe 7s were conspicuously strong.

Revival of activity and strength in Erie convertible 4s, series D, which jumped 5½ points to 111½, was the outstanding feature in the rail group. Substantial gains also were recorded by St. Paul refunding 4½s of 1914, and some of the other low priced issues. Strong spots in the public utilities included the Third Avenue issues, market Street railway 7s of 1940, New York railway income 6s, and Brooklyn Union Gas debentures.

United States government issues were firm.

Industrial mortgages moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Armour of Delaware 5½s sank to a new 1927 low at 89½ and then rallied above 90.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, May 4 (By the Associated Press).—Prices moved generally higher in the curb market today, with buying well distributed. Advances, however, were moderate, except in a few specialties, among which there were several new highs.

Oil shares continued in demand despite a further increase in production, buying probably being inspired by short covering and reports that the California price war has been terminated. Pandem moved up more than a point following the development of a new field in Texas, but later lost most of the gain. Richfield oil and pipe line issues advanced a point or so.

Celanese Corporation preferred, led the advance in the specialty group with an advance of nearly 5 points to a new high of 138⅞, while the common stock also sold up 5 points. American Rayon Products touched a new high at 10 and Melville Shoe went up 4½ points to 79½, also a new top. Safeway Stores jumped 7 to 269, while Warner Brothers pictures and Van Camp preferred each gained a point or so.

Motor shares showed early strength on expectations of favorable second quarter earnings exhibits by some companies, but eased off in the later dealings. Auburn auto lost all its early gain of a point. Marmon went up to 36½, a gain of 1½ points on the day, in response to the inauguration of dividends.

Public Utilities displayed strength, gains of a point or more being scored by American Superpower A, Commonwealth Power, Penn Ohio Edison and American Light & Traction.

The new Remington-Rand 5½ per cent bonds, listed today, were in demand around 100¾.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 4 (By A. P.).—Additional overflows in the Mississippi valley, reports of rains or showers in some parts of the central belt, and continued firmness of Liverpool in Alexandria, seemed responsible for further advances in the cotton market today. Prices made new high ground for the movement on all positions, July selling up to 15.98, or 30 points net higher and 373 points above the low level of early last December. July closed at 15.85, the general market closing there barely steady at net advances of 17 to 20 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 12 to 15 points in response to the sharp advance in Liverpool, and overnight reports of another break in the levee near Tallulah, La. There was heavy realizing at the initial figures, and selling for a reaction became a little more active after publication of the weekly weather report, which was regarded by local traders as indicating fair crop progress outside the flooded areas. These offerings were absorbed on declines of some 13 to 15 points from the best, however, and the market firmed up again during the afternoon on reports of additional overflows in the Mississippi valley and the detailed weather reports showing rains or showers in the Little Rock and Memphis districts.

Private cables attributed a further sharp advance in the market for Egyptian futures to American and Alexandria buying, and the advance in the Liverpool market to calling, covering and speculative buying.

A few additional May notices were issued here at the opening, but at the close May was within 21 points of July, compared with an apparent difference of 24 points at the close yesterday.

Exports today, 30,621, making 9,790,352 so far this season. Port receipts, 17,981. United States port stocks, 1,965,555.

A BIGGER INCOME
We require several more salesmen, experienced or inexperienced, to work in Lee Heights, Washington's fastest-growing subdivision. Beginners have free training and help in closing from experienced sales managers. In this way newcomers in the business often are able to make $200 to $300 a month even before they are qualified to take their own trips.
This may be your opportunity to enter a business in which the earnings are limited only by your own ability and energy. A high-class, experienced, hard-working real estate salesman should average $500 to $1,000 a month. Investigate our proposition now at the beginning of the year's selling season. Call at 1405 New York avenue and ask for salesmanager.

EFFICIENCY BUREAU RECOMMENDS PLAN TO CHECK SUPPLIES

ADEQUATE PROPERTY SYSTEM ADVOCATED

Approval of Proper, Official and Stock Requisition Are Among Suggestions.

Absence of proper safeguards by the District electrical department in keeping stock of supplies and disbursing them, was charged in a report of the bureau of efficiency submitted to the commissioners yesterday. The report recommended temporary steps to correct the condition, in describing which it said:

"Destructional loss by theft may be covered by a statement that the goods were never received and this statement would be difficult to dispute."

Herbert D. Brown, chief of the bureau, transmitted the report with a letter in which he said:

"You will recall that during the hearings on the traffic department it was disclosed that no record was maintained of the material issued to the Potomac Electric Power Co. for use in making installations of traffic lights."

The report was prepared by A. G. Thomas and V. P. Simmons, who investigated the conditions, and Herbert D. Brown said that he would be glad to have them assist the electrical department install records suggested by them. Their report said:

Storehouses Visited.

"On a visit to the storehouse and receiving station of the electrical department at Thirteenth and D streets southwest we found that no stock records were kept other than pencil memoranda showing receipts and disbursements, in a notebook, by the man in charge.

We found that in disbursing large quantities of street-lighting equipment to the Potomac Electric Power Co., in pursuance of installation contracts made with that company, no requisition is required and no receipt is taken from the men who receive the goods. Obviously, the employes of the Potomac Electric Power Co. commit themselves to no responsibility for receipt of this valuable apparatus.

"We visited the Georgetown warehouse, which is subsidiary to the Thirteenth and D storehouse, and there saw the loading of a Potomac Electric Power Co. truck and had our information confirmed.

Outlines Check Plan.

"Correction of this situation is of course a matter included in the necessity of establishing an adequate property system for the District of Columbia. We recommend at this time that the inadequate procedure of the electrical department outlined herein be corrected by two simple steps:

"1. Requirement that no property be disbursed without a requisition prepared by the proper official of the Potomac Electric Power Co. or of the District government and duly submitted to the head of the warehouse by the employe who is to receive the goods.

"2. That no person receiving goods from the warehouse be allowed to depart with them without signing a receipt recognizing his responsibility."

Secretary of Labor Asks Bill's Dismissal

James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, through his counsel, District Attorney Peyton Gordon and Assistant District Attorney Leo A. Rover, asked the equity court yesterday to dismiss an injunction bill filed against the Secretary by H. Ely Goldsmith, of New York. The latter complained that Mr. Davis had unlawfully and arbitrarily refused to allow him to represent certain aliens before the bureau of immigration.

Mr. Davis now says the court can not interfere with his official duties and that the injunction bill should be dismissed. The matter will come before the court tomorrow.

W. G. Davis' Appeal For Release Denied

The appeal of William G. Davis, alias Billy Madden, former baseball player, from an order of the lower court refusing him his release from jail, was dismissed yesterday by the Court of Appeals for the failure of his counsel to file a brief in time.

Davis was sentenced to serve two years on a narcotic charge in March, 1926, after a plea of guilty entered in July, 1925. He contended that the term of court had expired between the date of his plea and the date of his sentence and that therefore the sentence was illegal. The release of Davis was opposed by Assistant District Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Mrs. Poindexter Leaves $82,126.

RURAL WOMEN PROBLEM ABROAD, SAYS MME. MUTT

DELEGATES AT CONCERT

The problem of how to keep the rural women on the farms and away from the enticements of cities is a vital issue in Esthonia as well as in the United States, declared Mme. Victor Mutt, wife of the secretary of the Esthonian legation, at the afternoon session yesterday of the second conference on world welfare work of the Woman's Universal Alliance, held at the Carlton hotel.

Mme. Mutt said measures are being taken to make farm life in Esthonia more attractive for women. She also pointed out that in Esthonia women have equal suffrage and civil rights with men and that the proportion of college women for the population is greater than that of any other country. Women in the new countries of Europe are doing their full share in reconstruction, she concluded.

Stephen P. Bisseroff, first secretary of the Bulgarian legation, told of the feminist movement in Bulgaria. The position of women in Haiti was outlined by Raoul Lizaire, secretary of the Haitian legation. At the morning session talks were made by the Minister of Persia, Mirzah Davoud Khan Meftah, and Mme. Lida Lipa, wife of the counselor of the Czechoslovakian legation.

An invitation is extended to all to view the art exhibition in connection with the conference at the Carlton hotel.

Last night's session was given over to a concert under the direction of Richard Copley, of New York. The artists were Lorraine Foster, coloratura soprano, who made her debut in Europe and who will be introduced to the American public in concert in October;; Vernon Williams, tenor of Evan Williams, the oratorio singer, and Raoul Vidas, a French violinist.

Today will be Pan-American day at the conference and representatives of Pan-American embassies and legations will speak, while the night session will be a musical symposium with recital by composers and singers and interpretative dancing by the students of the Marjorie Webster school.

ELEVATOR MEN TOUR STANDARDS BUREAU

Delegates See Breaking Point Tests of Wire Cables Conducted.

Delegates attending the annual convention of the Elevator Manufacturers' association of the United States, yesterday witnessed tests of the breaking point of wire cables, under the supervision of John A. Dickinson, research associate at the Bureau of Standards. The convention is being held at the Wardman Park hotel, and will end tomorrow night.

Approximately 75 delegates saw the tests yesterday afternoon, and made a tour of the bureau of standards. At a morning session held in the lecture hall of the bureau, they listened to an address by Bassett Jones, consulting engineer of New York city, who specializes in elevator practice. Mr. Jones told of new methods being introduced by engineers for the safety of elevator patrons, and described the system used today for the proper regulation of elevators.

George K. Burgess, director of the bureau of standards, welcomed the delegates to Washington, and later acted as their host at an informal luncheon in the bureau of standards cafeteria. The annual dinner of the organization will be held tonight at Wardman Park hotel and will be preceded by a series of talks by association members in the bureau of standards lecture hall. I. N. Haughton, president of the association, is presiding at the sessions.

Aukam Seeks $500 For Dog's Death.

Judge George C. Aukam, of the municipal court, filed a suit in that tribunal yesterday to recover $500 damages against John F. Clark for the alleged killing of a pointer dog by the Clark automobile. According to the declaration presented by Attorneys Newmyer, King & Jacobson, counsel for the judge, the automobile struck the dog march 30 at Mt. Pleasant and Irving streets northwest.

CHAMBER DELEGATES ROTARY CLUB GUESTS

W. W. Everett, New President, Conducts His First Luncheon Meeting.

Approximately 150 delegates to the United States Chamber of Commerce convention attended the luncheon of the Rotary club held in the Willard hotel yesterday. W. W. Everett presided for the first time since he was elected president.

The club turned over $3,000 to the Red Cross Mississippi flood relief fund. Members of the club contributed $2,500, while the club donated $500. Roy Williams, of Oklahoma City, Okla., led the gathering of approximately 300 people in singing. This was followed by songs by Ethel Davis. The president of the first Rotary club founded, John N. Van der Vries, of Chicago, Ill., and the president of the 2,536th club founded, Chester A. Davis, of Cohoes, N. Y., were presented to the members.

George Harris, James Sharp and W. W. Everett will be delegates to the international Rotary convention this summer in Ostend, Belgium. John L. Weaver, Oscar R. Evans and Henry N. Brawner, jr., will be alternates. The new committee chairmen, under Mr. Everett's administration, were named as follows: Allen Pope, attendance; J. Philip Herrmann, health and welfare; William L. Radcliffe, music; Martin H. Rittenhouse, program; E. C. Graham, classification; Harrison E. Howe, Rotary education; Harry H. Kidwell, fellowship; Daniel J. Callahan, public affairs; Arthur C. ANTIAIRCRAFT UNIT WELCOMED TO CITY

Battery A, Sixty-first coast artillery, Fort Monroe, Va., antiaircraft unit of the army, carrying four of the most powerful searchlights in the world, on its way to New London, Conn., to participate in the army-navy maneuvers, was escorted through the city yesterday by a group of autoists headed by Maj. Gen. Anton Stephen, commander of the District national guard, and Rudolph Jose, president of the City club.

The battery, a completely motorized unit, entered the city in two sections, the first composed of heavy truck equipment, the second bearing the searchlights on chassis. Virginia state police escorted the battery from Camp Humphreys and an escort of Washington police met it at the Highway bridge, Maryland police taking it through that State.

Capt. William F. Marquat, commanding the battery, was greeted by Maj. Gen. Stephans and Mr. Jose and extended an invitation to give a demonstration of the searchlights on its return here after May 21. The invitation was accepted and the demonstration will be held probably June 1.

Kay Extradition Case To Court of Appeals

The Kay extradition case, invilving return of Maurice Kay and Benjamin Kay, attorneys, from this city to Omaha, Nebr., for trial on charges of using the mails to defraud, was submitted yesterday to the Court of Appeals by Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, for the government, and Col. James S. Easby-Smith for the defendants. This case has been pending since May 28, 1926.

The defendants are alleged to have sent a letter to Omaha which contained false representations concerning the services of the defendants in an income tax case, in which they are charged with having solicited a fee of more than $100,000 from Sarah H. Joselyn, of Omaha. Counsel for the defendants contended that they committed no offense in Omaha, but counsel for the government contended the placing of the letter in the mails here for delivery in Omaha was an offense in that city and that the government had elected to try the defendants there.

CITY REPRESENTED IN BALLOON TEAMS

Settle and Reichelderfer on Groups Entered in National Race.

Washington will be represented in the three teams entered by the navy in the national elimination balloon race for the Gordon Bennett cup at Akron, Ohio, May 30, Lieut. T. G. W. Settle, of this city, and Lieut. F. W. Reichelderfer, aerologist of the bureau of aeronautics, Navy Department, being two of the balloonists.

Lieut. Settle, stationed at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., was born here in 1895, commissioned from Annapolis in 1918, served with the destroyer force in the world war, and was with the dirigible Los Angeles on its flight to Bermuda and Porto Rico. Lieut. Reichelderfer was born in Harlan, Ind., in 1895, and participated in the national elimination balloon race at Indianapolis in 1923, and the international balloon race in Belgium that year.

The personnel of the navy teams is the following: Team 1, Lieut. Settle, pilot; Chief Boatswain's Mate Geo. N. Steelman, Brooklyn, N. Y., aid. Team No. 2, Lieut. G. V. Whittle, Tuckahoe, N. Y., pilot; Chief Rigger F. E. Master, Akron, Ohio, a survivor of the Shenandoah disaster, aid. Team No. 3, Lieut. Charles E. Bauch, Dorchester, Mass, who was communication officer of the Shenandoah at the time of the wreck, pilot; Lieut. Reichelderfer or Aviation Chief Rigger Frank L. Peckham, Frontstone, Md., aid. The teams are now in training at Lakehurst, N. J.

Day Nursery Dietary To Be Planned Today

Preparation of a new dietary for day nurseries will be undertaken at the biennial meeting of the national federation of day nurseries, to be held today and tomorrow in the Mayflower hotel. The dietary, it is said, will contain "valuable recipes which have been contributed by outstanding nurseries throughout the country and will be entirely practical, simple and useful for any and every mother."

FEW OBJECT TO NEW STREET CAR ROUTES

Michigan Park and Columbia Heights Fight Transfers Downtown for Pupils.

Few objections were voiced against the proposed rerouting of three one-man car lines of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., at a public hearing yesterday before the public utilities commission.

E. J. Brennan, representing the Michigan Park Citizens association, and J. Clinton Hiatt, secretary of the Columbia Heights Real Estate Onwers association, objected to the changing of the Brookland-Eleventh street line, saying that school children would be forced to transfer in the congested district.

The Brookland Citizens association wrote a letter asking the commission to defer decision until its meeting, May 9, at which the subject would be considered. The other lines proposed for rerouting are the LeDroit-Wharves and Central High school-Anacostia lines.

Gives Special Show For Flood Relief

Tomorrow night, starting at 11:30 o'clock, after the regular performance at Loew's Palace, will be held a gigantic benefit show in aid of the Mississippi flood sufferers. Marcus Loew, owner of the Palace and Columbia theaters in Washington, has instructed his representative to stage a monster benefit performance and turn over to the local chapter of the American Red Cross the entire proceeds.

On this occasion the feature screen attraction will be "Rookies," featuring Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, a new comedy team. "Rookies" is said to be the world's funniest comedy and was especially chosen for showing at this benefit. The stage attractions include Frank Silver, composer of "Yes, We Have No Bananas," and his orchestra; Sid Gary, "The Jazz Song Caruso," and numerous other guest artists. Frank Silver will act as master of ceremonies.

The general admission to all parts of the house will be $1 per seat with the exception of the boxes and loges which are priced at $2. Tickets can now be purchased from ladies of the Red Cross at the Palace or Columbia theaters.

The entire house staff of both the Palace and Columbia are cooperating with the American Red Cross to make this performance a huge success.

Bliss Denies Promise To Remarry Wife

Arthur L. Bliss, wealthy real estate man, whose former wife, Mrs. Ruth C. Bliss, sued him for $500,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to remarry her, denied yesterday in his plea, filed in circuit court through Attorney George P. Hoover, that he ever became engaged to remarry the plaintiff.

Bliss also denies the allegation that he lavished money on his former wife or that she ever expended any money, time or thought toward him with the idea of again being his wife.

Epiphany Episcopal Is Bequeathed $1,000

Epiphany Protestant Episcopal church is given $1,000 in the will of Princilla Kent filed yesterday in probate court. Certain relatives are remembered with bequests of personalty. The residue of the estate is given to a nephew, William C. Curtis. The testatrix died May 1.

The Epiphany Church Home is named residuary legatee in the will of Irene deM. Colton, who died April 29. Fred L. Pomeroy, cousin of the testatrix, is given jewelry.

23 ARRESTED AS POLICE MAKE GAMBLING RAIDS

$46 Seized as Evidence Along With the Alleged Racing Slips.

RUSH FOR DOOR FAILS

Twenty-three men were arrested and a quantity of alleged gambling paraphernalia was seized when Headquarters Detectives Hubert E. Brodie and Frank Varney made raids at 1712 Pennsylvania avenue northwest and 1102 Twentieth street northwest yesterday afternoon.

William McDougal, 1712 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and George Lewis, 1428 Chapin street northwest, were charged with setting up gaming tables after they admitted, according to the detectives, that they were in charge of the raided establishments. Lewis was arrested at the Twentieth street establishment.

McDougal was not arrested until more than an hour after the raid at the Pennsylvania avenue address. He appeared at police headquarters with his bondsman, Milton Kronheim, and surrendered. Before he appeared the detectives had charged the twelve men found at the Pennsylvania avenue address with setting up a gaming table. Following McDougal's appearance these charges were dismissed and the men were booked as United States witnesses. They were held in $200 bond.

Varney and Brodie conducted both of the raids without assistance. They left the Third precinct shortly after 3 o'clock and went immediately to the Pennsylvania avenue address. Forcing open the door they said they saw men grouped around two card tables. They seized $46 lying on the tables as evidence.

While Varney guarded the men who were grouped in one corner of the room, Brodie summoned the patrol. According to Varney, all of the men said that they had no idea who owned or who was in charge of the establishment.

After the men had been placed in two patrols and sent to the Third precinct, Varney and Brodie went to the Twentieth street address. Lewis and ten men were found on the second floor, Varney said. A quantity of alleged racing slips and racing information was seized. The men attempted to rush from the room when the detectives entered, but were forced back.

BRIGANTINE CARNEGIE TOWED TO NEW YORK

Scientists' Ship Deserts City After 6 Years, for General Overhauling.

Abandoning the waters of the Potomac at the Seventh street wharves for the first time in six years, the Carnegie, observation ship of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, left for New York yesterday for a general overhauling preparatory to its seventh cruise of the oceans next spring.

The repairs will include the replacement with sound timbers of all that have been begun to decay. In short, the Carnegie will look like a new ship when the overhauling is finished, despite the fact that it has been buffeted by sea billows over 291,012 miles of trackless deep.

The Carnegie boasts the distinction of being one of the most unique vessels that sail the high seas. It is an auxiliary brigantine, 156 feet long, and having a displacement of some 600 tons. However, there is not a particle of steel about it. It is built of wood, and all metallic parts, fastenings and equipment are of copper, bronze and brass.

The principal work of the ship is to take observations in terrestrial magnetism. Its next cruise will require three years to complete, will cover 110,000 miles. The route will extend through four oceans.

Woman Given Year on Knifing Charge.

Beatrice Henderson, indicted on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault before Justice Hitz in criminal court yesterday and was sent to jail for one year. She was alleged to have cut Mamie Belt, 62 Pierce street northwest, January 19.

Asks Change in Name.

Hooper W. Alvy, 21 years old, of Mt. Rainier, petitioned the equity court yesterday for permission to change his name to Wilson H. Reisinger. He says Reisinger is the name of his stepfather and that he has been known by that name since he was 4 years old.

DEPARTMENT HEADS URGE CITY PRINTING BE DONE BY G. P. O.

Employment of Practical Printer Also Recommended by Donovan and Hargrove.

VOIDING OF CONTRACTS MEETS DISAPPROVAL

Efficiency Bureau's Proposal Might Lead to Litigation, Commissioner Told.

Reorganization of procedure in contracting for municipal printing, as recommended to the commissioners by the bureau of efficiency last month, was partly concurred in yesterday by Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and M. C. Hargrove, purchasing officer, in an official report.

The two department heads approved the bureau's recommendations that all printing be done by the government printing office and that a practical printer be placed on the purchasing officer's pay roll to prepare copy. They asked that the lumping of printing for all departments into one central item in the budget be deferred until the fiscal year 1929-1930, so that figures whereon to base an estimate might be gathered during the coming fiscal year.

Cancellation Is Opposed.

The bureau advocated immediate cancellation of the existing running contracts for the present year's printing, in view of the fact that much printing has been delivered in violation of specifications on which the contracts were awarded. Donovan and Hargrove recommended against this step, saying:

"We hesitate to ask the commissioners to approve this recommendation. We believe that this particular matter should be passed upon by the corporation counsel for the reason that such proposed cancellation of these contracts may result in litigation. In these circumstances the advice of the corporation counsel as to whether the evidence set forth in the report of the efficiency bureau is sufficient to warrant action by the commissioners in canceling the contracts should be ascertained."

Neighborhood House Festival Begins Today

Neighborhood house, a welfare settlement at 470 N street southwest, will begin today the celebration of its twenty-fifth anniversary spring festival. The festival is to begin at 4 o'clock this afternoon and will be continued until Saturday night.

Announcement of the festival, accompanied by the statement that it will be open to the public, was made yesterday by Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, president of the settlement. Mrs. Clara S. Neligh is chairman of the festival committee. The program will open this afternoon with an exhibit of the settlement's welfare work and with exhibitions by children of school grades in several forms of entertainment.

President's Policies Praised by Farnum

The people of the United States have the "utmost confidence" in President Coolidge, Assistant Attorney General George R. Farnum, of Boston, declared in an address before the reunion and annual maple sugar party of the Vermont Society of Washington, which was held last night in Rauscher's.

His statement, Mr. Farnum said, was based on conversations with many persons from all sections of the country, all of whom had expressed confidence in the President and his policies. He praised Attorney General Sargent as an "eminent lawyer and a fine gentleman," under whom it was a pleasure to serve.

Radical Change Issue In Building Project

Representatives of the National Capital park and planning commission, which will be in session Monday, will confer with fine arts commission and Treasury officials that day regarding a radical change in the building plan for the Federal building triangle south of Pennsylvania avenue.

Edward H. Bennett, Chicago, special architectural adviser to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, will be here to attend the conference which will consider a single building plan for the triangle and plaza treatment at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Hotel Inn Changes Hands.

John J. Noonan, for many years prominent in local business circles, has leased the Hotel inn, Ninth street, near F, to Thomas Johnson, former owner of the Virginia theater, who will continue to operate the hotel under its present name. Mr. Noonan, having now disposed of his Ninth street enterprises, will leave Washington shortly with Mrs. Noonnan for a summer in the Rocky mountains.

Baseball Injures Woman.

Struck by a baseball while walking in F street near Sixth street southwest yesterday, Mrs. Annie Globius, 67 years old, 474 I street northwest, was knocked down and injured. She was treated at Emergency hospital for lacerations and bruises on the head and shock. The ball was thrown, police said, by a school boy.

Turnage's Coat and Keys Stolen.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage reported to police yesterday that his overcoat containing the keys to his office was stolen from his automobile while he was sleeping Tuesday night. The automobile was parked in front of his home at 2914 Eleventh street northwest, Turnage said.

Iris Now in Bloom.

Iris is now in bloom in East Potomac park, growing along the borders of the roadway. Public buildings and parks officials called the attention of the public yesterday to the beautiful floral display. A fine English hawthorne tree on the north side of the Freer Art gallery is also in blossom.

Mrs. Liggett Wins Decree.

Mrs. Norma J. Liggett was awarded an interlocutory decree for absolute divorce yesterday by Justice Stafford in equity court against Walter W. Liggett. The parties were married at Juneau, Alaska, on December 1, 1909. Attorney John R. Shields appeared for Mrs. Liggett.

Thompson Divorce Bill Dismissed.

The bill for absolute divorce filed April 19, 1926, against Mary L. Thompson, was dismissed yesterday in equity court by Justice Stafford for want of prosecution.

Auto Bus lines travel every direction out of Washington. Their schedules appear every morning at the head of the Classified Section in The Post.
